Dutchess 'Dumps' Ulster

By Lynn Mulvaney

POUGHKEEPSIE—Dutchess County, which has to find by next Thursday a new place other than its airport to dump its unbaled garbage, will look for a new site "somewhere in its own county" instead of looking to Plattekill in Ulster County.

Dutchess County Executive Edward Schueler said he will research sites with an eye toward condemnation proceedings. The move came on the heels of a one-vote defeat of a proposed county contract with Dutchess Sanitation Service Inc. The board voted 17 to 14 (18 votes were needed for passage) not to contract with Dutchess Sanitation to bale refuse and cart it to the Dutchess County Airport at $6.90 per ton. The baling was to have taken place at a Van Wagner Road site in the Town of Poughkeepsie and transported to the airport, the county's present dumping site.

However, Joseph Fiorello who owns Dutchess Sanitation, reportedly implied that if a breakdown of his baler occurred, he would cart the Dutchess garbage to his privately-owned Plattekill landfill in Ulster County, according to Schueler.

A huge delegation of Plattekill residents appeared at the Thursday night meeting of the Dutchess County Board of Representatives to protest the proposed dumping in their town, feeling that if the airport landfill is closed next week Plattekill would become heir-apparent to the garbage.

"I don't blame them," Schueler said. "It is not correct to even look to Ulster County. If Ulster were looking to us, I'd have state troopers at the bridge."

An opponent of the proposed contract, Robert Robar, Dist. 6, Town of Poughkeepsie, voted against the proposal with Dutchess Sanitation because there was no backup or alternative to the baling; because the airport site is not prepared for baled dumping April 1; and because there is a law suit pending, brought by Town of Poughkeepsie against Dutchess Sanitation for alleged violation of zoning laws.

Robar suggests that each town now solve its own refuse problems or that the county establish its own baling facility. He said he does not feel an interim solution is the county's responsibility.

Schueler, however, feels the towns and villages should "fend for themselves" until such time as the county researches a new site.

The airport facility is being closed to dumping of unbaled garbage due to the Federal Aviation Administration's warning that it would close the airport unless the dumping ceased. The loose garbage, a great attraction for birds, poses a safety problem, FAA said.

The Plattekill site has also been recognized as a possible dumping site for City of Kingston garbage. The town has been mentioned as the possible dumping ground for Spada Sanitation Inc. which was recently awarded a contract to haul 400 tons of garbage a week.

The Jury's Still Out On County Construction

KINGSTON—Enveloped in an austerity program in which just about everything from paper clips to personnel is frozen, Ulster County must now ponder what to do about the capital construction projects it has contemplated, underway or just beginning.

Until the emergency financial program was unanimously apporved earlier this week, the county had at least five projects on the drawing boards, under construction or planned for a future date.

One project, the New Paltz pool, is nearing completion, Another, the renovation of the Court House on Wall Street and conversion of the old County Jail into courtroom and office space ahs had its contract awarded, nd demolition bids are expected next week for the old Buick garage, the site of a proposed paid parking facility. Although plans have been drawn for a new administration building for the highway deprtment and proposals have been made for an addition to the new infirmary, the county has taken no concrete steps have been made toward either.

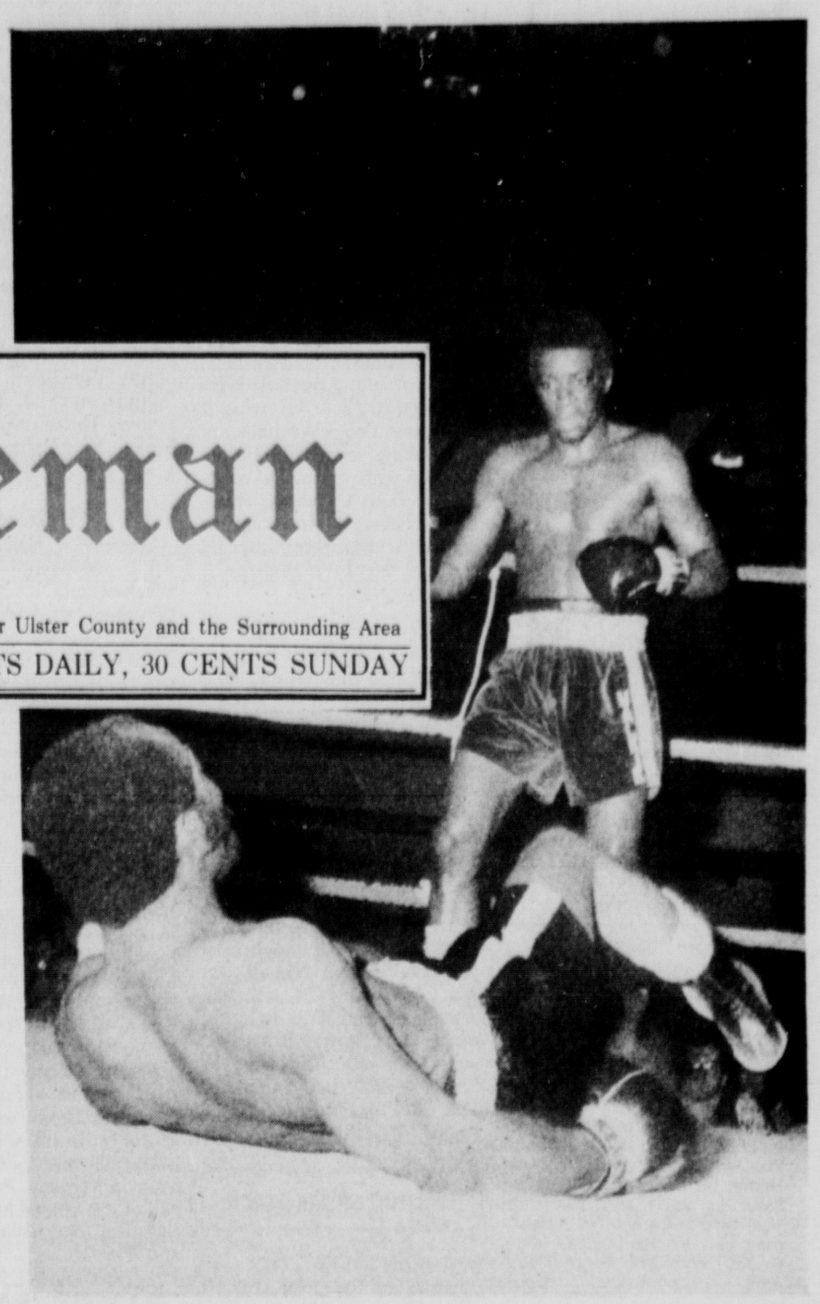

Those projects already underway including the pool and the jail renovation, will be completed, Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Dist. 8, said Thursday. Much of the money for those projects will come from federal revenue sharing funds and the balance from county ources but just how much of each has yet to be finalized Savago said, explaining that a study is presently in progress in view of the changing financial conditions. For instance, the Court House bids came in many thousands of dollars under estimate; therefore, some of the excess funds allocated to one project may be diverted to another, as needed.

Savago sees the highway administration building as one project which can be delayed or abandoned. The pool is completed and filled with water but other buildin construction at the site and finishing touches to the pool decks are among the things still to be completed, according to county contracts.

Demolition of the garage property adjacent to the Ulster County Office Building will be carried out since the bids ahve already been advertised and not a gread deal of money is involved. The present Buick garage is seen as a safety hazard and legislators feel it ould be in the interests of the ounty to emolish it. Savago also pointed out that the property will become income-producing when the parking lot is completed and he sees it as a profitable venture rather than a financial burden.

Meetings are being held now by the various committees involved in the building projects according to Kenneth Whispell, county superintendent of buildings. Once all cost factors nd priorities are taken into consideration, the county plans to make know the status of th e projects.

The question of building an addtion to the ounty Infirmary may hinge on state mandates. The ounty has been notified by the State Health Department that it cannot continue to use the old TB Hospital as a health-related facility and plans to use the building for its welfare department.

NEVER FELT IT . . . Randy Milton appears to have Beau Whyms at his mercy during their junior welterweight bout Thursday night at the Municipal Auditorium, but it was merely a slip that caused Whyms to hit the canvas. Beau recovered from the temporary setback and battled Milton to a draw. The fight card, which contained five action-packed contests, drew the largest crowd yet since the sport returned to town leaving ringside observers to agreee that boxing is here to stay. Dragnet for Paltz Robbers

By Matt Spireng

NEW PALTZ—A massive night-long manhunt for three armed robbers who fled with some $3,300 in cash from the New Paltz Shop-Rite supermarket late Thursday wound down somewhat at midmorning today, but state and local police, using roving patrols, continued to seek the trio, considered "armed and very dangerous," in the New Paltz area.

The huge manhunt, conducted from the air, using a helicopter, and on the ground, with roadblocks and building-to-building searches, was launched following the 11:35 p.m. robbery.

State police said three black males, all believed to be in their mid-twenties, entered the Shop-Rite store on Route 299. Brandishing two shotguns and one handgun, the trio collected $3,300 in cash from employes on duty.

The three jumped into a car in the store's parking lot, but in their haste to flee the scene, they ran the car across a roadway and into a deep ditch, authorities said. Leaving one shotgun behind in the vehicle, the trio fled on foot into a nearby wooded area off South Putt Corners Road, near the Thruway.

State police and New Paltz police threw up roadblocks around the area and teams of police went from house to house attempting to locate the trio. At daybreak, the state police helicopter hovered in the sky over the area where the three were last seen, but later returned to its base in Middletown when nothing was found. The roadblocks, no longer considered useful according to one investigator, were also later taken down. Roving patrols remained in the area, however.

Police described three holdup men as follows: one was about 6-feet, 4, wearing a black jacket; the other two were both said to be about 5-feet, 10, with one wearing a beige sweater. None were masked at the time of the robbery.

Highland State Police Senior BCI Investigator Roger Gardner said authorities are investigating the possibility that Thursday night's robbery is connected with similar armed holdups last September and October at the New Paltz Shop-Rite and the Highland Grand Union supermarket.

In the September holdup at the New Paltz Shop-Rite, two black males armed with sawed-off shotguns confronted workers and customers and fled with some $1,200.

In the October robbery in Highland three black males, one armed with a shotgun, made off with $6,500 from the Grand Union store.

In January, Linwood Spearman, 35, of 25 South Miller Street, Newburgh, was charged by state police with first degree robbery in connection with the September holdup. Last month he was released after an Ulster County Grand Jury dismissed the charge.

Another Nickel

The new controversial 20-minute parking meters on Wall and North Front Streets in the uptown Kingston Stockade area are being installed this week. One of the first customers was Frank Ferraro of Saugerties shown putting his nickel in for 10 minutes of parking. Two nickels or a dime are required for 20 minutes. The short parking time was implemented in order to keep a flow of traffic moving in the shopping area. (Freeman photo)

Pinch Prostitute Promoter

KINGSTON—A 48-year-old Kingston man who authorities said allegedly offered two teenage girls ages 13 and 15, for the purposes of prostitution, was arrested Thursday night on multiple felony and misdemeanor charges after allegedly delivering the two girls to state police undercover investigators at an undisclosed motel outside the City of Kingston.

BCI investigators charged Samuel Rauch of 38 Furnace Street, Kingston, with two counts each of promoting prostitution in the first degree, a misdemeanor, and incest, a felony, and with one count of endangering the welfare of a child, a misdemeanor.

The two teenage girls were charged with juvenile delinquency (prostitution) and were placed in juvenile detention facility pending action in Ulster County Family Court.

Rauch was taken before Hurley Town Justice C. H. DuMond and was ordered held at the Ulster County Jail on $5,000 bail pending further court action.

Authorities said the arrests were made at about 10 p.m. after Rauch allegedly solicited and received money from an undercover investigator in return for promised sexual favors of the two girls. The "fee" was reportedly $150.

Police said the investigation was begun by Hurley BCI Investigators Wayne Beyea and Robert Stabile, who were assisted by Hurley BCI Investigator Frank Petraglia, Middletown BCI Investigator Robert King and Trooper Maureen Gardinier.

'War of Genocide' in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Moslem leftists battled rightwing Christians across Beirut and the Mt. Lebanon countryside today in what one newspaper described as a "war of genocide."

In the capital, raging fires and furious artillery barrages tinted the skies the color of blood and left the streets littered with corpses.

Mrs. Hearst Blames Terrorism

SAN FRANCISCO — Patricia Hearst's mother said it was impossible for her daughter to get a fair trial because the public has failed to understand the potency of terrorism in the United States.

Mrs. Catherine Hearst said Thursday in an interview with the Chicago Tribune that her daughter was "the first civilian casualty of the terrorist assaults in this country."

Claims Their Policy Erred

TEL AVIV, Israel — Defense Minister Shimon Peres today blamed 28 years of misguided Israeli policy for the recent wave of Arab protests on the occupied West Bank of Jordan and within Israel itself.

"Israel has erred for 28 years in its attitude to its Arab minority," Peres said in an interview with the newspaper Ma'ariv.

Ford Halting Its Lines

DETROIT — Ford Motor Co. will begin the complex task of stopping its auto assembly lines next week because of a strike at a key manufacturing plant that eventually could idle more than 150,000 workers.

The first assembly plants to be closed are the Dearborn, Mich., and Metuchen, N.J., idling 4,675 workers. They will be closed all of next week even if the labor dispute is settled.

Leftist Parties Outlawed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Argentina's new military government has outlawed five leftist parties in a move to check opposition and announced the country's next president will come from the armed forces.

In a new law decreed late Thursday, the government announced that a three-man junta made up of the commanders of the army, navy and air force will be the country's supreme governing body and the president "will be a high ranking officer of the armed forces appointed by the military junta."

This Veto Favors Israelis

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United States has vetoed a Security Council resolution criticizing Israel's administration of occupied Arab territory, prompting Arab charges the vote was motivated by election year politics.

Newly appointed U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton, who earlier criticized Israeli policies, cast the veto Thursday after four days of debate. The Council's other 14 members, including the Soviet Union, voted for the resolution sponsored by five nonaligned nations.

South Africans Pulling Out

CALAI, Angola — South African troops completed preparations for their withdrawal from war-torn Angola today in exchange for assurances that vital water and power installations along the border will be protected.

The South African soldiers will leave this ramshackle town on the banks of the Kavango river — the international frontier between Angola and South West Africa (Namibia) — at 7 a.m. Saturday, closing the ferry that leads to Rundu in South West Africa.

There Is an Oasis for Spring Lake Area

KINGSTON—Members of the Ulster Town Board will be meeting with the Kingston Water Board on April 8 for a review of the Spring Lake water situation but indications are the water board won't budge from its 4-1 rejection of a petition to sell water to Spring Lake unless it is convinced that the town has exhausted every effort to get the water elsewhere.

The latest word on "elsewhere" is that up to two million gallons per day of top quality water could be available from the Rolling Meadows/Elmendorf Heights water company owned by Kendall Vogt.

"We're ready, willing and able to supply it," Vogt told the Freeman.

Whether or not the residents of some 60 homes in Spring Lake immediately adjacent to the city line are ready, willing and able to afford the difference in cost between hooking up to the city system 100 feet away and hooking up to Vogt's, perhaps half mile or more distant remains to be seen.

The difference in cost would be substantial given the limited tax base available from 60 homes. The latest figures on water pipe installation indicate a cost of around $30 a linear foot. Connecting to the Rolling Meadows/Elmendorf Heights system would cost a minimum of $80,000, based on linear feet. Indications are that a million-gallon water tower may be needed; figures on that have not been made available.

Town officials indicate, however, that the tax base could be broadened considerably by the inclusion of some other nearby areas that presently don't have water. A number of homes on Lucas Avenue have been mentioned along with other homes on a hill overlooking Spring Lake but not Hillside Acres itself which has its own water supply.

The idea of pumping water into the Spring Lake Area—specifically, Gulf Terrace, Saccoman Avenue and Catskill Avenue and to a lesser extent, Spring Lake Drive—is not a new one. The area has been victimized by impure water for at least 15 years.

Ten years ago a plan was put forth whereby water would be piped in from Elmendorf Heights and Hurley. Residents of that area successfully petitioned against it.

Since then the situation has changed somewhat. Vogt bought out the Elmendorf Water Company and in his words, "ours (Rolling Meadows) and Elmendorf function as one." The Vogt water company services 265 homes along with the Coleman High School and the Hudson Valley Quality Meat Plant on Hurley Avenue. "The engineers say we've got at least two million gallons," he said. "We don't use a fraction of that."

The emphasis the last few years has been on city water or as one town official put it, "Our first priority was getting Kingston water. Our second was getting it any way we could." City officials feel the town has its priorities reversed.

Town officials engaged the engineering firm o f Brinnier and Larios several months ago for a feasibility study. The results of that study are expected within a few weeks.

Residents of the affected area are aware of the study—it was detailed at a recent Ulster Town Board meeting—but apparently have little hope for it leading to solution to their problem. "We still think that joining the Kingston water system is the most economical way to go," said Kenneth Pillsworth, a spokesman for the Spring Lake residents.

Final Days of Nixon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Nixon, in the final phase of his days as President of the United States, was portrayed in newspaper and magazine accounts today as a man who drank to excess and was obsessed with suicide.

His wife, the quiet First Lady, also was reported to have sought solace in alcohol and began slipping down to the servants quarters at night and returning to her private bedroom with glasses full of bourbon.

The New York Daily News and Time magazine based their reports of the final days of Nixon's reign at the White House on a soon to be published book by Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, the Washington Post reporters credited with breaking the Watergate scandal.

Both publications reported that Nixon's drinking became a big problem in the summer of 1974 and the Daily News said Pat Nixon had confided to someone in the White House physician's office that she and her husband had not had sexual relations for the last 14 years of their marriage.

The reports said that Nixon became erratic and despondent and began drinking heavily despite a low tolerance for alcohol.

The former President's son-in-law, David Eisenhower, according to the Daily News, was the source of a report in Time magazine that Nixon wandered through the White House saying "goodbye" to the portraits of his predecessors.

Legal Notice

NOTICE OF PROPOSED INTRODUCTION OF TELEPHONE RATE SCHEDULES FOR DIMENSION* PBX SERVICE

Notice is hereby given that the Telephone Company has submitted to the Public Service Commission, with a proposed effective date of April 1, 1976, tariff amendments providing for the introduction of Dimension PBX service.

DESCRIPTION OF SERVICE

The Dimension PBX is an electronic system using stored program control, a time division switching network and switched loop console. It has a maximum capacity of 400 lines and 64 trunks or 300 lines and 128 trunks, depending upon the subscriber's traffic requirements. The inherent flexibility of the system enables the provision of comprehensive customer features such as call forwarding, call hold, call waiting, outgoing trunk queueing, and outgoing trunk restrictions. The switching equipment is housed in relatively small, easily installed cabinets. The cabinets and attendant consoles come in a variety of colors.

RATE STRUCTURE

The service is offered under 3 rate plans designated Types 40, 42 and 44. Under Types 40 and 42 Service, the monthly rates for the service consist of two parts, "A" and "B". The subscriber has the option of selecting "A" rate payment periods of 36, 60, 84 or 120 months. The selected "A" rates are guaranteed against Company-initiated change. The "B" part of the monthly rates apply subject to change, from the date of installation. The service is designated Type 40 when the customer elects to pay an installation charge based on the estimated cost for the individual job, and Type 42 when the customer pays no installation charge. The monthly rates for Type 42 service are higher than the monthly rates for Type 40 service. As an option to paying the "A" portion of the charge over the selected payment period, the subscriber may elect to make a one-time payment.

Type 44 service is offered on the basis of standard monthly rates and installation charges, which are subject to change.

RATES AND CHARGES

The rates and charges are set forth in tariffs which are available for inspection at any office of the Telephone Company where business is transacted in person. The location of these offices can be found in the first pages of telephone directories. Tariffs are also available at the offices of the Public Service Commission. A list of the rates and charges will also be furnished to any person who requests it by writing to the following address:

Ax Honed Again in 'Fun City'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Beame has unveiled a new "tough" budget-balancing plan which includes the elimination of 8,500 city jobs, a 50 per cent cut in air pollution funds and the withdrawal of most municipal workers from the Social Security plan.

The mayor Thursday told a joint session of the Board of Estimate and City Council that his new city solvency plan called for spending cuts of $379 million in the coming fiscal year.

In addition, Beame's new timetable provides for cuts of $442 million in the 1977-78 fiscal year for a total of 821 million — the city's current estimated deficit.

"This is a tough plan," Beame said. "It means a further reduction of the work force and it offers nothing in the way of wage increases over the next two years."

Beame planned to submit the revised plan to the state-creatd Emergency Finanical Control Board today. Under state law, the city is required to balance its spending budget by the end of fiscal year 197778.

$100 Million Heroin Racket From Cell

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A 50-year-old retired master sergeant has been charged with running — from his federal prison cell — a $100 million heroin smuggling operation using military aircraft.

Authorities announced one of the largest heroin rings in the world was broken Wednesday with the arrest of 14 persons in North Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and California.

According to the indictments, the Thailand-to-America ring was headed by Leslie "Ike" Atkinson even after he was sentenced to federal prison in Atlanta last year on drug charges.

"I would say this organization would have to be classified as one of the largest heroin smuggling organizations in the world which directly affects the United States, particularly the East Coast," said Don Ashton, the chief Drug Enforcement Administration agent in North Carolina.

The six-page indictment charged the heroin was flown in from Thailand by unsuspecting Air Force transport crews and funneled through Atkinson's home at Goldsboro, N.C., for distribution on the East Coast.

The shipments allegedly came into the country at Seymour Johnson Air Force base in Goldsboro, Travis Air Force base in California and Langley Air Force base in Virginia.

Ashton said the operation had been going on "roughly seven years — since 1967. We've been working on it for some time. Over the years we've been knocking little chunks out of it various places.

The indictment said Atkinson "ran the organization from the United States with frequent trips to Thailand" and after he was jailed his daughter and son-in-law "did transmit messages to and from Leslie Atkinson and other members of the organization and assisted in running the Atkinson organization acting under the advice and orders of Leslie Atkinson."

The heroin bought by the "Atkinson organization," said the indictment, came from a Thai national identified as Luchai Ruviwat, known as "Chai."

Ashton said two of those charged, James Warren Smedley, 53, and Jasper Myrick Jr., 23, both among the military personnel allegedly involved, were jailed earlier by Thai authorities and were held at Khlang prison in Bangkok.

Leslie Atkinson Arrington, Atkinson's daughter, and her husband, Michael Otis Arrington, both 24, of Raleigh, were jailed in Raleigh on $250,000 bonds.

Nuclear 'First Use' Upheld

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has promised its allies for years that it would use nuclear weapons if necessary to assure their survival, senior state department officials have disclosed to Congress.

Thus, they said, for the United States to forswear "first use" of nuclear weapons would strike a blow at allied confidence and could encourage non-nuclear nations to acquire atomic weapons.

A House subcommittee heard this testimony as it considered a variety of resolutions calling on the Ford administration to renounce the "first use" of nuclear weapons.

"Over the years," said Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense James P. Wade, "we have given repeated assurances to our allies that nuclear weapons would be used in their defense, if needed to assure their survival."

He said denying the first use option "would tell all of our allies that we would be willing to see them suffer a conventional defeat without coming to their aid with nuclear weapons."

"It could convince them they must acquire their own nuclear weapons with all the attendant implications for nuclear proliferation," he said.

George S. Vest, director of the State Department's Bureau of Politico-Military Affairs testified Thursday: "We cannot ... categorically rule out the tactical use of nuclear weapons in response to major nonnuclear aggression if such an attack could not be contained by conventional forces."

This is a scenario which U.S. military planners have specifically envisioned in the event of an overwhelming Soviet bloc attack in central Europe against NATO countries, or across the 17th parallel on the Korean peninsula.

Soviet Lashes U.S. on Terror Acts

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union accused the United States today of backing "Zionist thugs" in acts of terrorism against Soviet interests in New York.

A spokesman at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow said this was the first time in his recollection that the Soviets had, in effect, accused American authorities of supporting the actions of the radical Zionist groups.

Previous protests, in which Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel Jr. has been admonished three times in recent days, had accused American officials of not trying hard enough to prevent the actions.

Referring to the placing of a bomb Thursday in the building of the Soviet trade organization Amtorg in New York, the Tass news agency said:

"Zionist thugs, enjoying the patronage of U.S. authorities, resort to new provocations."

Tass said directors of Amtorg "lodged a resolute protest with the U.S. authorities in view of the new outrage by the Fascist Zionist gangs, and demanded that drastic measures be taken immediately to put an end to the Zionists' criminal acts."

The bomb was safely removed from the building.

The embassy spokesman said the implication that Washington officially supports the Zionist groups apparently was in retaliation for accusations that the Soviet government instigated a campaign of harassment against the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

The campaign included a recent series of harassing telephone calls and a bomb threat that forced the evacuation of part of the embassy Thursday.

U.S. officials said they believe Soviet authorities are behind the harassment incidents.

The United States has protested officially in Moscow and Washington about the harassment campaign.

Coming amid heated SovietAmerican exchanges over Kremlin involvement in Angola and at a time when the two countries have been unable to draw up a new arms limitation treaty, the incidents were another indication of chilling relations between the superpowers.

The bomb scare came minutes after noon Thursday. A man speaking fluent English telephoned the embassy and told a Marine security guard: "I want to inform you that a bomb has been placed on the first floor of the embassy. It will go off at 12:27."

Questioned by the guard, the man said the device was "a block of C-4" — a type of plastic explosive — "with a timer and a detonator." Then he hung up.

Fifty persons — including 14 infants from a nursery — were evacuated from the basement and first two floors of the nine-story building, but no explosives were found.

The scare followed two nights of telephone calls to diplomats living outside the embassy compound. More than 20 officials received calls on Tuesday night alone.

Help for the Bench

KINGSTON—A second judge has been assigned to Ulster County Court for several weeks next month to help clear up the backlog in criminal cases.

Last December, with some 100 criminal ases pending going into the new year, County Judge Raymond J. Mino requested the assignment of a second judge.

Mino said Thursday that Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley Jr., administrative judge of the Third Judicial District (of which Ulster County is a part) has assigned Sullivan County Family Court Judge Louis Scheinman to handle county court cases beginning April 12. The assignment will last through the month.

According to Mino, some 60 to 70 cases are ready to go to trial.

Last year, Scheinman, Schoharie County Judge Robert Ecker and Greene County Judge John J. Fromer were assigned to Ulster County for periods of from two to four weeks to help clear up the backlog in criminal cases.

When he made his request for the assignment of a second judge, Mino noted that such assignments last year resulted in "a great deal of success" in reducing the backlog of cases.

Mino had cited the state's drug laws, which carry mandatory life prison sentences on major charges, as a major reason for the backlog.

Indict Two for Phoenicia Bar Brawl

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON—Two Greene County men allegedly involved in an attack on several patrons of a Phoenicia bar in February were indicted Thursday on three counts each of first degree assault.

Named in the indictment handed up in Supreme Court were Lawrence Fay, 26, and Raymond Lindsay, 30, both of Lanesville.

The two men were arrested Feb. 3 along with several companions following the incident that has been described as "something out of a horror movie—people stabbed and beaten without provacation" by authorities who investigated.

The incident at the Sportsman's Grill, Main Street, Phoenicia left five patrons injured, one of whom was stabbed in the back, allegedly by Lindsay. Another man had part of his ear severed. Five police officers were also reported injured when they attempted to arrest the alleged assailants in Lanesville after they fled the bar. Charges against several were also lodged in Greene County.

Meanwhile, others indicted Thursday included:

• Mrs. Nina Vanderlaan, 36, of Turkey Hill Road, Kerhonkson, on one count of second degree grand larceny for allegedly defrauding the Ulster County Social Services Department out of more than $5,000 in welfare payments over the past four years. She was arrested on the charge last September following an investigation by the special investigation unit of the Social Services Department.

• Peter Ferraro, 35, of Kingston, on one count of third degree burglary in connection with a Dec. 5, 1975 burglary at the Lagnaf Lounge, Foxhall Avenue, Kingston.

• Randolph Miller, 17; Martin Miller, 17; and Ronald Sneyd, 20, all of Wappingers Falls, and Michael Lamb, age and address not available, on one count each of third degree burglary for a July 13, 1975 at the Marlboro Bakery in which cash and checks in excess of $1,000 were reported taken.

The grand jury dismissed the following charges:

• Two counts of first degree robbery against Trevor Anthony James, 22, of Poughkeepsie, a sophomore at the State University College at New Paltz. The charges stemmed from two armed robberies on the campus at the college earlier this year. First Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh explained that eye witnesses were unable to identify James, leading to the dismissal of the charges.

• Sexual abuse and attempted rape against Stanley Benner, 40, of Queens. Benner was arrested during January following an alleged attack on a woman guest at the Granit Hotel where he was also staying.

The grand jury asked that charge of driving while intoxicated against Mrs. Julie Ann Horvath, 36, of 30 Clinton Avenue, Ellenville, be returned to local court. Mrs. Horvath was arrested on the charge last month after her car struck Mrs. Arlene Sashin, 43, of 18 Sandra St nville. Mrs. Sashin was killed in the accident.

Arrest Napanoch Parolee For Holdup in Ellenville

Police Beat

By Matt Spireng

ELLENVILLE—A 31-year-old parolee from the Eastern Correctional Facility in Napanoch was arrested at his Ellenville home Thursday afternoon by a contingent of state and local police on a charge of first degree robbery in connection with a March 15 shotgun holdup.

The arrest culminated an intensive investigation by Ellenville State Police and Ellenville Village Police.

Authorities identified the suspect charged with the robbery as Mario Richard Morales of 9 Park Street, Ellenville. Police said he was on parole from Eastern Correctional Facility where he had been serving sentence for armed robbery.

The investigation began March 15 after Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kroop of Ulster Heights were robbed at their son's residence at 5 Warren Street. Police said the elderly couple had gone to their son's home to check it and were confronted by a man with a shotgun. The robber forced the couple to lie on the floor, tied the husband's hands with electric cord and fled with some $150 taken from the couple.

Thursday at about 3:30 p.m. a detail of state and village police under the direction of State Police Senior BCI Investigator James A. Fitzgerald and Village Police Chief George Sheeley arrested Morales at his residence.

Arraigned before Village Justice Ronald Elias, Morales was ordered confined in the Ulster County Jail without bail pending further court proceedings.

A 36-year-old Kingston man was charged with second degree assault Thursday after he allegedly broke a soda bottle in the face of a 44-year-old Town of Ulster woman at her residence.

John Myrick of 31 Gill Street, Kingston, was arrested on the felony assault charge by Ulster County Sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said he allegedly assaulted Earltine Paschall of Sunset Garden Apartments at about 2 p.m. She was treated for facial injuries at Kingston Hospital and was later released.

Myrick was jailed in lieu of $2,500 bail pending further court action.

New Paltz Police Thursday night arrested a 15-year-old female runaway from the Highland Training School on charges of first degree possession of stolen property and second degree grand larceny.

Police said the girl had stolen a 1973 Cadillac valued at $5,000 from the school grounds and ran it off Route 299 in New Paltz. The girl was turned over to school authorities.

Ulster County Sheriff's Department detectives late Thursday charged a 16-year-old Connelly youth with third degree burglary in connection with a break-in earlier this week at the Republic Marina in Connelly.

The youth, who was not identified because he is eligible for youthful offender treatment, allegedly took some $50 worth of fishing equipment, most of which was recovered, deputies said. He was jailed in lieu of $2,5000 bail.

Alexander Pranis, 30, of Box 138, Lake Katrine, was listed in serious condition today in the intensive care unit at Kingston Hospital suffering from head injuries sustained Thursday morning in a one-car crash on Route 32 in the Town of Ulster.

A three-car crash Thursday afternoon on Lucas Avenue Extension near Kingston sent two southern Ulster men to the hospital. Taken from the scene by Doctor's Ambulance were Michael Palmer, 86, of Accord, who was admitted to Benedictine Hospital and was listed in fair condition today, and Burton Knapp, 56, of Ellenville, who was treated and released at the hospital. A full description of the crash was not immediately available today.

Fire apparently of electrical origin damaged an unoccupied house on Stoll Road in Pine Grove late Thursday. Some 38 Centerville firemen battled the blaze from about 11:30 p.m. until 1:15 a.m. today. Fire Chief Warren Benz said the one-story house had been for sale. Fire damage was confined to the attic.

Group Care Petition 'All Messed Up'

By Hugh Reynolds

PORT EWEN—"The thing was all messed up. I figured the best way to go was start from scratch and go the whole route again."

That from Jonathan Wagman, chairman of the Esopus Zoning Board of Appeals on a petition for a variance to permit a group care facility at the McCauley House on Horton Lane.

Wagman blamed the McCauley family for some of the confusion at Wednesday night's ZBA public hearing at the town hall, attended by about 125 persons.

"They filed a petition with us stating that the St. Cabrini Home in West Park wanted to set up a youth care facility for youngsters 10 to 14 years old," Wagman said.

In fact, the organization seeking the variance was the Ulster County Chapter of the Association for Retarded Children and they wanted to set up group care home for "mildly mentally retarded" adults in the 20-40 age bracket.

Wagman said, "The people at Cabrini told me they first heard about it when Emeel Betros called them and wanted to know what was going on." Betros is the assemblyman who represents the 99th District which includes Esopus. He had gotten word that it was a state facility. It an't that, either.

A recent article in the Freeman added fuel to the fire and not a little bit of confusion. It dealt with an incident where a youth, described by police as a charge of the Cabrini Home, stole a car and smashed it up after leading police on high speed chase. The youth, Cabrini officials tell the Freeman, had been under their care for about week and a half. "We were doing the county a favor," said one source from Cabrini. "They didn't have any place to put the kid."

"People showed up at the public hearing waving that clipping," said Wagman. "They thought those kind of kids were going in there." Port Ewen has had serious problems with youthful vandalism the past few years.

Wagman said he didn't know what was going on, either, and he's the chairman. "It was an 11th hour thing," he said. "I thought we were dealing with a petition from St. Cabrini and I read in the paper at 6 o'clock (90 minutes before the hearing commenced) that it's the association children."

Wagman said he realized nothing could be accomplished by pursuing the "Cabrini petition" he had received from McCauley—"We thought about accepting an amendment to show that it wasn't really Cabrini, that it was ARC instead"—and decided it was best to start all over.

It will take another petition from McCauley and from ARC, another meeting of the County Planning Board and probably another month.

All parties concerned agree the wait should be worth it.

In a related matter, with the Association for Retarded Children the "real applicant" for the McCauley house, questions have been raised on when the Dr. Harris House on Broadway in Port Ewen, approved last fall as a short term treatment center for retarded adults, will be operational.

"We had hoped by April 1," Joseph Ryan, executive director of ARC, told the Freeman. "Obviously, we're not going to make it." Ryan said that training of personnel for the facility will be completed by next week and that furniture and equipment have been on order for some time. Renovation of the building to accommodate its new residents is expected to begin soon.

"All I can say is we'll be in there as soon as we can," said Ryan.

CSEA Talks 'Critical'

GOSHEN, N.Y. (UPI) — Negotiations in an effort to end a strike by Orange County Civil Service employes broke off early today, with neither side commenting.

The talks were scheduled to resume later in the day.

One union official said the negotiations had reached a "critical stage," the reason why no one would comment.

The strike, which began March 17, continued despite a court injunction barring the walkout.

During negotiations last Saturday with a Public Employment Relations Board mediator, the county legislature agreed to restore pay raises, which it previously refused to grant in the second year of an existing three-year contract. However, it rejected the union's demand for two 2 per ent raises spread over six months.

The River, in Depth, At Bear Mt. Seminar

BEAR MOUNTAIN—The Hudson River, its problems and projects to solve those problems will be discussed in depth at the Hudson River Environmental Society's fourth Hudson River Symposium Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at Bear Mountain State Park.

The symposium is designed to inform and orient lay people and scientists interested in the welfare of the river to current biological problems and programs involving the Huson.

Sunday's program, which begins at 1 p.m., will be chaired by Dr. Meril Eisenbud of New York University. It will include discussion on the health effects of PCB consumption and a review of a recent river study conducted by the Department of Environmental Conservation. The dinner speaker Sunday night will be Professor Leonard Dworsky of Cornell University, who will discus the Rockefeller Foundation's Hudson Basin Project.

Monday, papers will be presented dealing with the water quality of the Huson. The papers will be technically oriented, but of concern to the general public as well as the scientific community.

Tuesday's discussions will focus on the biological aspects of the Hudson and programs relating to the water-cooling systems of industries utilizing the river as a source.

Persons interested in attending any of the symposium programs can contact the Huson River Environmental Society, 675 West 252 Street, Riverdale, for information on reservations and registration fes. Reservations can be made either in advance or on the morning of each program. Reservations for Sunday's dinner must be made today.

The society held previous symposiums in 1966, 1969 and 1973.

All of the activities and programs during the three-day symposium will be held at Overlook Lodge.

Help The Red Cross

Remember when it was a familiar practice to take a bowl of soup to an ailing neighbor? Barn-raisings, quilting bees—there was time and the need to lend a hand.

Today, we rarely are aware of the wants of those around us—but society evolved a way of seeing to those in need. It's called the Red Cross.

Everyone expects them to be on the battlefield and in foreign lands when disaster strikes. But the Red Cross serves in a multitude of ways right here, at home, in the Hudson Valley.

They're there when the rivers rise. They'll bring urgent news to a far-off serviceman. They're available to help in whatever disaster we fall heir to.

If you haven't carried that bowl of broth to an ailing neighbor lately —reach in your pocket and help those who are dedicated to helping the Red Cross.

Life-Saving Nurse

Dear Editor:

Every so often something nice happens. Perhaps you can incorporate the material in the letters for your column.

LEN CANE
Chamber of Commerce

Dear Sir:

I was wondering if you could help me out on a very important matter. The wife, daughter, nephew and myself were in an accident that happened on Rt. 9 and Milton Turnpike, Dec. 21, 1974. The wife and daughter went through the windshield and both were cut, but the wife had a cut artery after an examinatiobn by a nurse at the scene. When the ambulance arrived, the wife and daughter were transported to Vassar Hospital and on the way this nurse held her thumb against the bleeding artery. This fine piece of work saved the wife's life and so I thought that the Chamber of Commerce would bestow a certificate upon her.

Sincerely yours,
JAMES PITTSLEY
Poughkeepsie

P.S.—The wife and I are going to get her a lapel pin with wording on the back and the Red Cross is trying to get her a Life Saving Medal and the presentation will be made some time in April at a Town Meeting at the Town Clerk's Office on 9W in Marlboro.

Editor's note: A follow -up letter was written by Mr. Pittsley after he learned the name of the registered nurse who saved his wife's life.

Maam:

It is real heart warming to know that you wish to offer an helping hand. It is greatly appreciated.

The short time it took the Town of Marlboro Volunteer Ambulance Corp. to get to the scene and the quick thinking and accurate diagnosis was the difference between life and death.

The registered nurse's name is Mrs. Mary Dilberto and she is attached to the Ambulance Corps in Marlboro on Rt. 9W.

Here's thanking you for your kind attention.

Sincerely yours,
JAMES PITTSLEY

Support For Morris

Dear Editor:

I was quite distressed to read the letter you recently printed admonishing Stephen Morris, the County Director of Probation, for accepting honorariums for lecturing at the New York State Correction Academy while employed by Ulster County.

Mr. Morris is a practicing professional, not dissimilar to a doctor, a lawyer, an engineer or for that matter a university professor. I have been associated with public and industrial education for a number of years and have had occasion to draw upon practicing professionals as lecturers on a frequent basis. The payment of honorariums to such lecturers is common place. Without their participation, trainning classes tend to be theoretical. They are decidedly far less effective, and lack a perspective on the real world. The benefits are by no means one way, as the interchanges between the lecturer and student have often provided a fertile spawning ground for innovative thoughts and creative approaches to our very real problems.

As a county resident and a taxpayer I am pleased that our director of probation is thought well enough of as a professional to be invited to lecturer at the New York State Corrections Acedemy. In addition, since Mr. Morris stated in an earlier article published by your newspaper that he had lectured on his personal time, I found the letters you printed to be totally unfair, unjustly accusing and completely devoid of the real issue at hand. The letters smack of a smear campaign written by individuals with self-serving interests.

Arm Yourself

Dear Editor:

Stop fooling yourself, in thinking just because we have law enforcing officers, that you will be free from crime. They cannot be at every house and business at the time of a crime. The only way is to protect yourself. Abolish all gun control laws because they mean nothing. All it does, is to cost fuel and time for the person getting their permits.

A safe country is a country with Arms.

God gave you hands and two feet. Use them, and stop depending on others to keep you safe and sound. Arm yourself!

"I am not interested" means your house cannot be touched by the outside world and that you don't care about your fellow beings.

Sincerely,
ROBERT J. TOMPKINS

Those 'Sick' People

Dear Editor:

As I sit here reading today's paper, I am horrified and feel terrible at what happened to the seven month fawn.

I could cry from what I saw in the picture, who ever is responsible for the brutal murdering of something that brought joy to children of this town and others who went to the zoo, in my opinion should be either shot or hung and I hope the police find the person or persons who did it, for they are truly sick.

Not Man Made

Dear Editor:

May I remind Mayor Koenig and the Water Department that water is not man made. It was put on earth for all mankind from God who gives it freely—without it we die. In effect then, is the Mayor and the Water Department saying—Whom shall live and whom shall die? They should take care of these people in Spring Lake immediately out of common decency, or God help us all.

Sincerely,

Dear Editor:

I believe that extra "lulu" payments, stipends or bonuses for legislators should be made unlawful and discontined this year. The salaries, expenses, travel pay, pension system and other fringe benefits are enough. If other areas of state government have to cut back, why not legislators?

Jerry Ford's Reflex

WASHINGTON—President Ford's sudden personal opposition last week to an antitrust bill his entire administration had long supported stemmed not from any ferocious lobbying campaign but from political reflexes developed by Gerald R. Ford over 25 years in Congress.

So, after nearly two years in the Oval Office, Mr. Ford has again revealed his distinctive resistance to change from the safe old ways of Capitol Hill.

For nearly two years, the administration had backed legislation authorizing the 50 state attorneys general to file antitrust suits for treble damages in federal courts in behalf of their citizens. Not until Jan. 17, the day before the bill reached the House floor, did Mr. Ford oppose it. Even though the House on Jan. 18 amended the bill to satisfy presidential objections before passing it, the probability is that Mr. Ford would still veto it.

While reopening old splits among House Republicans, this turnaround tells much about the President. This was no rerun of his reversal on the common situs picketing bill, when he yielded to massive lobbying and political pressure. This time, Mr. Ford instinctively responded to the big business position after a single telephone call from an old congressional colleague, scarcely considering the significant body of Republican opinion which feels the party must end its suicidal marriage with corporate business—or perish.

The Justice Department first supported the bill during the Nixon presidency. But shameless White House efforts to brand it a Nixon proposal are sheer nonsense. In truth, the measure never was put before either President.

It never had to go to the Oval Office because of unanimous approval inside the administration, with the Office of Management and Budget approving endorsement of the bill by the Justice Department's antitrust division. Inside the White House, the bill received clearance early this year from Mr. Ford's Economic Policy Board. Just one month ago, the Justice Department again formally endorsed the proposal.

Moreover, helping citizens recover damages from illegal price fixing fit Mr. Ford's State of the Union pledge to "strictly enforce the federal antitrust laws" in order to "foster competition and bring prices down for the consumer." Even some conservatives see reversion to Teddy Roosevelt Republicanism as a political imperative.

Although opposition from big business was tepid, its champions in Congress were active—particularly brainy Rep. Charles Wiggins of California, a relentless foe of the bill inside the Judiciary committee. Wiggins was not only lobbying the White House but talking to House Republican leaders, including Minority Leader John Rhodes of Arizona.

On March 10, Rhodes telephones Mr. Ford, his old comrade and predecessor as minority leader. That was the first the President had ever heard of the bill, and instinctive, visceral reaction was negative. He ordered his staff to restudy the bill, but it was clear Mr. Ford had made up his mind. No opposite recommendation came from Atty. Gen. Edward Levi, who, curiously, informed both Wiggins and Rhodes he agreed with them and not with his own antitrust division.

When the campaigning President met privately with businessmen in Chicago March 13, a corporate executive—not knowing he was preaching to the newly converted—urged Mr. Ford to oppose the treble damages bill. The President responded that businessmen ought to be more vocal in making their wishes known.

Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, the bill's principal Republican supporter on the Judiciary Committee, telephoned the White House to protest. "We are not the party of big business," McClory, a moderate conservative pleaded. "We are the party of the broad cross-section of the American people."

To no avail. When the President's March 17 letter to Rhodes opposed the bill, its Republican supporters were stunned. Rep. William Cohen of Maine, who backed the bill in the Judiciary Committee following Assistant Atty. Gen. Thomas Kauper's support for it, angrily suggested on the House floor that perhaps congressional committees should accept testimony only from cabinet members.

What followed was grimly reminiscent of 1974, when senior Republicans chided Cohen for his role in the Nixon impeachment proceedings. After Cohen charged the administration had "misled" the Judiciary Committee, the usually even-tempered Rhodes stalked into the cloakroom. Returning to the floor shortly thereafter, Rhodes engaged in a heated dialogue wih Cohen observable from the galleries and overheard by several Congressmen.

Will the President now sign the bill considering the changes adopted by the House? "He certainly should," McClory told us. But a key White House aide advised us the "serious reservations about the concept" remain. Against the unanimous approval of his staff and the judgment of shrewd Republican strategists, Jerry Ford is displaying the reflexive action of a party slowly suffocating in the embrace of big business.

Shah And The Oil

WASHINGTON—Secret intelligence reports warn that the shah of Iran, if he wanted to, could land his army in Saudi Arabia and annex its oil fields.

This possibility worries high-level U.S. officials. The shah, they realize is living beyond his means. For all his vaunted riches, he is deeply in debt. Iran has several billion dollars in bilateral and multilateral loans. The outstanding debt to the United States alone is over $1 billion.

Iran's oil reserves, meanwhile, are expected to last no longer than two decades. World demand for Iranian oil, at the same time, has fallen off sharply. This has left the shah embarrassingly short of money to pay for his grandiose dreams of a modern Persian empire.

He is burdened down, heaviest of all, with expensive armaments. The United States has sold him $8.6 billion worth of weapons during the past three years. The purpose has been to make the shah the protector of the Persian Gulf, the source of oil now needed to run America's factories and automobiles.

But some Arab nations, particularly Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, are beginning to wonder who will protect them from their protector. Intelligence reports tell of mounting tension in the vital Persian Gulf area.

The Pentagon's intelligence estimates, stamped "Secret-Sensitive," indicate that the shah's military machine could overwhelm Saudi Arabia. According to these documents, Iran has an Air Force of 75,000 men, including 645 pilots of whom 450 are trained to fly jets.

Saudi Arabia, in contrast, has a far smaller 15,000-man air force. Of these, 200 are pilots and only 90 are jet trained. The Saudis' 114 fighter planes would also be no match for the shah's 338 planes, which include 162 supersonic F-4 Phantoms.

Iran also has a fleet of 483 helicopters, many of them suitable for airlifting troops. Saudi Arabia has but 35 helicopters, all of them described as "utility" aircraft.

On the sea, the shah's 18,500-man navy is training to man three destroyers, four frigates and three submarines recently purchased from the United States. Saudi Arabia's insignficant 1,500-man navy doesn't possess a single warship of any size.

The shah, meanwhile, has established peaceful relations with neighboring Iraq, a traditional enemy of Iran. If the shah should move against Saudi Arabia, however, some analysts believe the Iraqis would break their agreement with the shah and support the Saudis.

This would involve a 15,000-man air force, with 358 jet fighters and 171 helicopters, plus a 3,000-man navy with 11 missile boats. And from a greater distance, Egypt and Jordan would also be expected to back Saudi Arabia. This would add another 628 fighter planes, 37 jet bombers, 5 destroyers, 12 submarines and 14 missile boats to the Arab forces.

SCREW SCANDAL: In a classic case of a battle being lost for want of a horseshoe nail, shoddy screws have cost the government billions and have contributed to air crashes.

Metal screws hold together everything from computers to high-stress airplane parts. When screws snap or loosen, the equipment may cease to function or may evenself-destruct.

Yet unscrupulous manufacturers have produced screws that have caused costly accidents. The nut-and-bolt industry could have avoided these disasters by manufacturing more craftsman like products. But the specifications for screws and nuts are fixed by industry-run "standards committees," which have been more interested in profits than in safety.

These are the disturbing findings of investigators for the Senate Antitrust subcommittee. In a staff report, they have put it bluntly:

"The present specifications for . . . screw-threads," they charge, "allow manufactures and distrubutors to dump millions of worthless fasteners into the market each year . . .

"Screw thread failures have cost the government billions of dollars and . . . contributed to the loss of aircraft and human life."

Although manufacturers and distributors are fully aware of this, the report adds grimly, they "have continuously blocked the development of new standards."The wreckage was inspected by Army experts who determined that faulty screw threads were "a probable contributing factor in the failure."

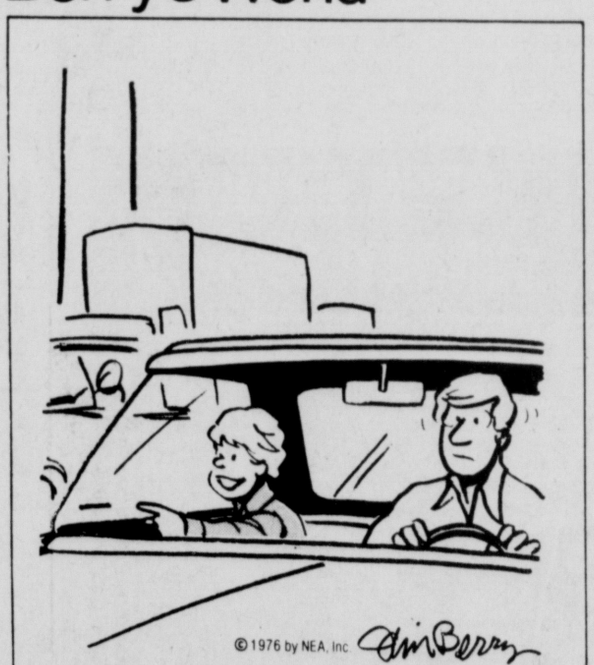

Another crash study reports that a helicopter suddenly lunged crazily at 126 miles an hour. "The tail rotor separated from the aircraft at 800 feet," states the study. The cause? Army specialists traced it to metal fatigue originating "at the intersection of a thread root and pin hole."

Army metallurgical scientists were outraged over the screws and nuts they found in crashed planes. In some parts, they discovered that 100 per cent of the screws and nuts failed to meet safety specifications. The best batch was only 47 per cent safe.

Yet the companies that made the faulty, perhaps fatal parts didn't seem to care. "Inspection . . . is not sufficient," the scientists concluded.

Footnote: Industrial spokesman insist that "the present specifications have served industry well" and that any new method would be "to costly and unnecessary."

Politics By the Numbers

WASHINGTON (KFS) — American politics have become a part of statistics. We are still dominated by the male gestalt this numerology may be traceable back to baseball, a game that is especially loved because small boys can qualify for it so easily

Millions of us are trained to know at least a little bit about bookkeeping, so that it may seem reasonable to capture politics and fracture it so that it can be reduced to a ledger. The computer has accelerated these tendencies not only by making more numbers more quickly available but also by enabling us to match these digits up into more and more fanciful statistical runs. Television stations can now instantaneously display the wildest correlations on our screens such as the fact that R. Sargent Shriver received 85 per cent of the vote of South Milwaukee one-eyed Roman Catholic lesbians of German descent.

Original Point Spread

The pervasion, or should we say perversion, of politics with numbers begins with the introduction of the public opinion poll in the 1930s. At first it wasn't taken that seriously. Men like George Gallup were regarded as fancy-pants versions of Jimmy the Greek. Public opinion polls established the point spread . . . Franklin Roosevelt by 57 per cent, two points either way and if you want to bet against that you could get better odds.

As entertainment it could hardly have seemed worth the bother to challenge. So few people asked whether indeed there is a public to be polled, or is the polled public like the public-interest public, a product of epistemological creativity? Today, however, the novelty of the numbers is an important device that the mass media uses to reinforce faith in democracy. The public opinion poll is the perpetual plebiscite, the proof that by the infallibility of the theory of random numbers that you count, that you are being consulted, that there is a place in the grand egalitarian scheme of things for your participation.

You yourself may never be polled personally but, if random probability theory is being followed in drawing the sample, your statistical alone 1,500 miles away will be called and, because you and he or she agree, you may for practical purposes feel as though you too had taken part in the plebiscite. Who is your statistical clone? Look at the paper the next time they print a public opinion poll and you'll be able to recognize yourself. "White Protestant," "college under 35," "blue collar," "female head of household, $9,000 to $12,000 a year," and so forth and so on.

The people that you are cloned with don't exist as a group except for the purposes of political discussions in the media. "White Protestant" or "Black" or any of the other designations whose opinions have been sampled on questions like "Detente" or "Busing" are fictional constructs necessary for quantification. "White Protestant," for example, covers everything from rural hard-shell Baptists, to Mormons who don't like to pray with Blacks, to hoity-toity Anglicans who love to pray with them.

The categories of people that polisters poll are so broad they contradict our every-day social knowledge. "'Blacks" simply don't all think alike, except per haps when confronted by a white figure in a sheet burning a fiery cross.

In order to sample the opinion of a group that is sufficiently well-defined to have cohesion, to have anything like enough common history and situation for someone to believe the members of it might think alike, you'd have to throw a number of other elements into the pot. White Protestants would have to be distinguished a s high church-low church, as rural-suburban, by years of school completed, in which case you'd have about eight different groups and a much, much more costly survey. That's why they don't do them, but rely on the cheapies in which imaginary groups have their temperatures taken.

By The Grunt

Nevertheless, people put into these imaginary categories do tend to respond to pollsters' inquiries in certain patterned fashions. The people assigned to the blue-collar classification will tend to show up in the numbers in somewhat the same way over a period of time when topics like law and order, inflation, detente or whatever are raised. These responses give no inkling as to what people are thinking, but only how they react when a pollster says certain words to them, and tells them they must agree, disagree or register on opinion. It is preposterous to assert that the mathematical conclusions drawn from this procedure, this counting up of positive and negative grunts, can give the tiniest indication of what one single individual, much less a nonexistent public, thinks.

This is not to say that polling may not be useful in manipulating the outcome of elections, but so in stealing votes. The point is that neither has much to do with "the public opinion." Since polling results are now massively disseminated by television as well as the newspapers, you can't help wondering how much public opinion polls affect opinion? When John Chancellor announces that the newest NBC polls show that Blacks think thus and so, do some Black people decide they ought to think the same way also? Can the polls be considered a foxy device for encouraging people to identify with fictional groups in such a way that they are made easier to manipulate?

But you don't have to buy that chilly hypothesis to understand the part polls play in legitimating a political status quo by conducting the perpetual plebiscite. In that sense they probably contribute more to public frustration than anything that happens on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

Bass and the Reformers

"This silly Watergate business," Rep. Philbert Bass exclaimed the last time I interviewed him, "is like spreading manure on weeds! They're out to ruin Congress!"

But when I saw Rep. Bass the other day he looked happy. I asked him why.

"The enemy has been routed, that's why I'm happy," chortled the 98-year-old chairman of the powerful reform subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee.

"We outflanked those scalawags . . . " he performed a complicated maneuver with his wheelchair in the middle of the room, brandishing his cane like a sword. ". . . and now we're going to crush them with a final frontal assault."

With that, Rep. Bass wheeled straight ahead, dispatching imaginary foes with vicious swings of his cane.

"They said they were going to reform everything," Bass said, chuckling and wheezing. "Tax reform, election reform, campaign reform, White House reform, judicial reform, CIA reform, FBI reform, and even," he sneered, "congressional reform.

"But we set 'em back on their be-hinds, son. You can bet those yellow-livered reformers are sorry they ever tangled with the likes of Wayne Hays, F. Edward Hebert, and me."

"It's a tough team to beat," I admitted. "What did you do?"

"Well, we didn't have much to worry about on the tax reform front, what with old Huey Long heading the Senate Finance Committee."

"You mean Russell Long, not Huey," I explained. "Huey is dead. Russell is his son."

"Sorry to hear about that," Bass said, shaking his head sadly. "I'm going to miss old Huey.

"Anyway, what we did was chop a piece off election reform, and slice a rasher off congressional reform, and then the Supreme Court helped us cut a hunk off campaign fund reform. And before you know, swoosh!" the cane cut through the air, "there wasn't anything left but bloody stumps.""So reform is dead, eh?"

"Not quite yet, son. But after the Ethics Committee gets those report-leaker reformers and . . . "

"The what?"

"The report-leaker reformers. The rodents who give away all our secret congressional reports in order to get the public all worked up over nothing. The Ethics Committee is investigating those low-down leakers, and when they're finished off . . . " He smiled a victorious smile.

"I'm glad you brought that up, Congressman Bass. This is the first time the Ethics Committee has ever investigated anyone. Don't you think there are members of Congress who deserve to be investigated as much as a television reporter and his source?"

Bass wheeled his chair over to me and squinted into my eyes.

"I'm going to pretend I didn't hear that, son," he said grimly, "but this interview is over. Congress investigate congressmen?! You're lucky I don't report you to the Un-American Activities Committee!"

"The Un-American Activites Committee has been abolished, Congressman Bass."

"Balderdash!" he roared. "They wouldn't dare! Anyway, somebody would have told me. J. Edgar Hoover wouldn't let something like that happen without giving me a call."

As Bass angrily rolled away, I noticed for the first time that the back of his wheelchair bore a bumper sticker. It said, "Congress — Love It or Leave It!"

An Arab Show of Strength

By Stewart Kellerman

JERUSALEM (UPI) — A mood of militancy is taking hold among Arabs ruled by Israel, adding a new dimension to the drive for a Palestinian homeland.

Arabs in Israel, on the occupied West Bank and in annexed East Jerusalem are becoming more active politically and are carrying their protests daily into the streets.

The Israeli government has sent thousands of troops to the West Bank and East Jerusalem in an attempt to quell seven weeks of turmoil in lands captured from Jordan in 1967.

Israeli officials predicted the show of strength would put an end to the disturbances, but Arabs insist the unrest is far from over.

Some diplomatic analysts attribute the Arab militancy to the Palestine Liberation Organization's growing acceptance around the world.

Many Palestinians ruled by Israel are proud of PLO leader Yasser Arafat's new diplomatic respectability.

The 500,000 Arabs in Israel emerged from more than a quarter-century of political docility to elect a Communist as mayor of Nazareth last December.

Mayor Tawfik Zayyad, who won the support of non-Communist intellectuals and professionals, has been an outspoken critic of Israeli policy since his election.

"The government throws stones at us, so it is time to throw stones at it—and it should keep in mind that it lives in a glass house," he recently told cheering supporters.

The government added fuel to the new militancy last month by approving the seizure of thousands of acres of Arab-owned land in the Galilee for a predominantly Jewish housing project and an army base.

Some Jewish leaders said the government took over the lands to encourage Jewish settlement and to keep the Arabs from becoming a majority in the region.

Arabs in the Galilee promptly formed a committee to fight against projects that take over Arab land.

"The issue is not one of development that requires land expropriations but the existence and future of half a million Arabs," the committee said.

The leaders of more than 30 Arab towns called on all Arabs in the region to strike, fast and demonstrate March 30 at an "Arab Lands Day" protest against the takeover.

The most serious anti-Israeli protests have taken place in the Old City of Jerusalem and the West Bank.

Young Arabs have demonstrated nearly every day since a Jerusalem magistrate ruled Jan. 29 that Jews have the right to pray at an Old City site sacred to both Moslems and Jews.

The government quickly condemned the decision and promised to keep barring Jews from the site, where both the silver-domed Al Aqsa mosque and the remains of a Jewish temple destroyed in 70 A.D. are located.

But Arab leaders turned the issue into an international ca use celebre. The mayors of nine Arab towns on the West Bank resigned in protest. Islamic nations complained to the U.N. Security Council.

The protests—the most serious in the region since 1967—have gradually evolved into a campaign against Israel's nine-year occupation of the West Bank and Old City.

"We are opposed to occupation and we want to be free," Bethlehem Mayor Elias Freij said.

'Battle of Holiday Inn'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There have been three major wars and a whole passel of minor ones in my lifetime and I reckon a body could never say anything good about armed conflict.

But if somebody stuck a gun to my head and forced me to name my all-time favorite battle, I would have to cite this week's fierce seesaw struggle in Lebanon for control of the Holiday Inn.

The dispatches from the front have been positively entrancing.

According to one account, "leftist and Moslem forces, backed by armored cars," attacked the Holiday Inn in the fashionable seaside area of Beirut and "overran the lobby."

Later, according to another dispatch, Christian Phalangist militia, "backed by tanks, artillery and antiaircraft fire, launched a counteroffensive" and recaptured the inn.

(I swear I'm not making this up. It was in all the papers.)

Details were scant but from the many Holiday Inns I have stayed in, I could picture it all in my mind. Armored cars deployed behind the potted palms...The surrender of the room clerk...

And through it all, amid shot and shell, the doughy reservations operator continuing to make bookings for the next dental convention.

You might think I'm joshing about the reservations. But apparently that service was not interrupted by the clash of arms.

Telephone directories in most American cities list a number you can call for "worldwide reservations" at Holiday Inns.

After reading about the combat raging in and around the inn in Beirut, I dialed the number and asked to reserve a room there for the night of March 31.

"One moment, please. I'll see if I can confirm," the operator said. Then, so help me, Hannah, she came back on the line and reported the place was already "completely filled" for that date.

The only question is, by which side?

I have no way of knowing who will be occupying the inn by the time you read this, but if I were the military type this is one campaign I would hate to have missed.

The rewarding part, if you survived, would come in later years when your grandchilden came to visit.

"Hey, Gramps, how come you walk with a limp?"

"Well, I'll tell you, Sonny. I was wounded in the Battle of Holiday Inn."

Holiday Inn — a name that will live with Waterloo, Balaklava, Stalingrad, Gettysburg, Yorktown. It would be well worth a shard of shrapnel in the leg to be able to spring something like that on your grandchildren.

Could what took place in Lebanon this week signal a new direction in warfare? Will future conflicts be decided by the conquest of franchises?

After the fall of the Holiday Inn, will the victors lay siege to the Kentucky Fried Chicken outlet and then storm the Pizza Hut?

Perhaps the Biblical prophesy was wr ong. The world may not end at Armageddon but at McDonald's.

Buckley's Mail Call Has a Real Backer

Sen. Jim Buckley has come out for permitting some test competition between the U.S. Postal Service and private enterprisers who would like to get into the mail-carrying field.

This can hardly please Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar, who has recently complained that the postal business has been drying up at the very time operating expenses have been climbing. Even though the Postal Service has a legal monopoly of the letter-carrying service, it is already suffering from the defensive ingenuity of companies that are organizing their own hand delivery departments. The competition is already there, and it is about to snowball.

In South Florida, for example, the Florida Power and Light Company has discovered through pilot projects that, at current postage rates, it costs four cents more to mail a bill than to deliver it by hand, which can be done for nine cents. Accordingly, the big Florida utility is commencing hand delivery of bills this month to 214,000 residential customers in the Miami and Hollywood districts. It will get around the rule against putting private messages in boxes that are post office property by enclosing the monthly statements in plastic bags that can be fastened to doorknobs.

Each deliverer will carry some 700 bills a day. When the service has been extended all the way from Miami to West Palm Beach, the company thinks it will achieve an annual savings of more than $250,000. Last year the company mailed bills to 1.8 million customers at a cost of some $2 million. With the increased postal rates and additional customers, the 1976 bill would be just short of $3 million. So a savings of $250,000 is very much worth making a change and telling Postmaster Bailar what he can do with his 13-cent stamp.

On the Bandwagon

Elsewhere Carolina Power and Light, Duke Power, Narragansett Electric and New Orleans Public Service plan to go the hand delivery route. This will shortly be the pattern of utilities wherever the customer density is such that a hired deliverer can hit seven or eight hundred doors in rapid-fire fashion.

A report to Congress by the Comptroller General of the U.S. has already made an inadvertent case for Sen. Buckley's proposal. The Postal Service has been witnessing a steady decline in its parcel post volume, which fell off by 314 million pieces, or 40 per cent, from 1963 to 1973. The forecast is that by 1977 there will be a further drop of nine per cent from the 1973 volume.

The reason for this miserable showing is that the Postal Service's legally permitted competitors were far more efficient handlers of package delivery. Here is the damaging quote from the Comptroller General's report;

". . . Postal Service's competitors offered faster service, handled parcels with less damage, and charged lower rates . . . In November 1971 a private consulting firm in conjunction with the Postal Service conducted an extensive test mailing of fragile and nonfragile parcels. The test results showed that surface shipments made via the principle competitor were significantly faster than those of the Postal Service. Also interior damage to fragile parcels was 361 per cent greater, and exterior damage to fragile parcels was 258 per cent greater to packages shipped by the Service than those shipped by its principal competitor . . ."

Natural Extension

If that's the way it goes for parcel delivery, who should it be different for other categories of mail? I deal all the time with the Post Office, and have had consistently pleasant relations with the postmaster and the carriers of my home town. But the other day I made the mistake of mailing a release-on-receipt column to my snydicate from the next town down the line. Since the column was a post-primary day commentary, I sent it special delivery. Nobody knew me at that post office, which may account for the fact that, when the special delivery reached the Kings Features Syndicate office in New York City 48 hours later (the distance covered was about 75 miles), my worried editor noted that the postmark on the envelope indicated that it had been stamped a full 24 hours after I had dropped it in the slot. And I had mailed it four hours before the post office had closed.

Such dilatory service hits a columnist where he lives. If Sen. Buckley can break the postal monopoly, particularly when it comes to special delivery handling, I'd be almost willing to move to New York so I could vote for him.

'Porker Pandemonium' in New Paltz

By Joan L. Woinoksi

NEW PALTZ—It was a three-ring circus on Nepale Drive recently. but many of the residents there weren't laughing.

Thirteen, grunting, scrambling pigs got loose from a trailer where they were being kept, and invaded neighboring lawns and gardens, digging up grass and munching on flower bulbs.

Squeals of laughter mingled with the squeals of the trespassers as scores of youngsters watched authorities try to round up the little porkers.

Several tales have come out of the episode, some humorous, some serious, depending upon the narrator's degree of involvement and his sense of humor.

According to Supervisor William Yeaple, the pigs are the property of Michael Welch of New Paltz. Welch built many of the homes in that area and owns 50 acres of land including the section bearing the trailer which the pigs called home.

Somehow the pigs got out of their confinement and called on the neighbors. They had reportedly rooted up septic systems, torn up flower beds, spread garbage around. Irate residents contacted the New Paltz Police Dept., complaining 1) about the damage to their properties; 2) about junk cars on Welch's land; 3) that having a trailer on the property was against the zoning ordinance in the first place.

Arrangements were made by Kathy Upright, Plattekill representative of Newburgh SPCA (on orders by New Platz police) to pick up the 13 pigs that were "roaming free" in the development. The pigs were boarded in pens in a barn for one week, fed stale bread and bacon fat feed, and then returned to Welch, who had obtained a court order from New Paltz Justice Rexford Schneider for their return. Welch wouldn't tell the SPCA where he was taking them.

Mrs. Upright said there were some civil damage claims in New Paltz Town Court by residents of Nepale Drive, lodged through New Paltz police. She said every time they had visited the area, the pigs had been outside, not confined to a mobile home.

At Police Headquarters, it was stated that Welch appeared in Court and to their knowledge, had complied with all requests. But a visit to the property this week showed the trailer still in evidence along with a couple of unlicensed cars on the lot. There were no pigs, however.

Neighbors seem to be divided in their opinions of the situation. One woman said B.J. Dutto, Commissioner of Health, Ulster County Dept. of Health, had been contacted; the charging that was a health hazard. There was fear that leftover food in the trailer would attract rodents.

On the other hand, a gentleman resident said: "Mike's O.K. He'd make good for any of the damage. It's just a big 'to do' about nothing."

As for Michael Welch, he feels it's his property so he can do what he wants. About the cars on his land he said, "Two of them are licensed, the others I use for parts." And, regarding the trailer: "Other people have trailers on their land and nothing is said about it."

The pigs? They are alive and well and, reportedly, receiving the best of care.

Little Red Riding Hood—San

An adaption of "Little Red Riding Hood" in Japanese Kabuki Theatre style was given recently by fourth graders in the Rosendale Elementary School. Called, "Small Crimson Parasol," the play was given against a background of Japanese musical selections. Orff instruments and auto harps were played by the children. Scenery and costumes were designed and made under the direction of the art department and a dance was developed by the physical education department. The young thespians take time out for the photographer.

John D. And His 'Friend'

NEW YORK CITY—When the Friars Club, the shown business fraternal organization, honored Frank Sinatra last month as its Entertainer of the Year, he noted, "It's nice to be among friends."

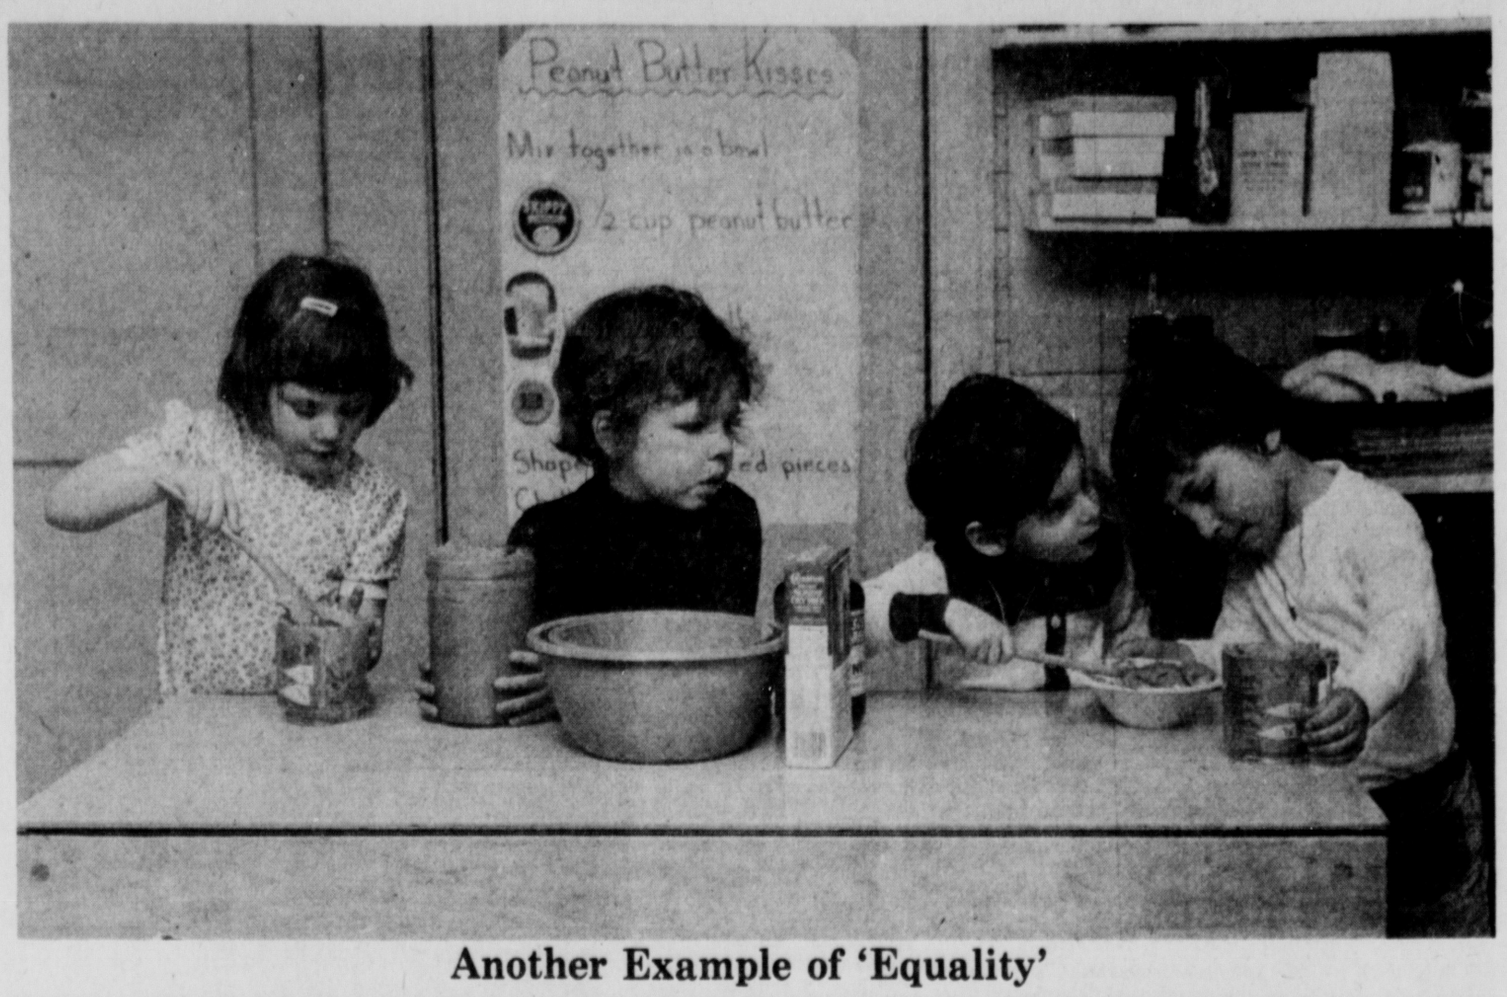

He'll be among friends again when he stars with John Denver on the ABC-TV special, JOHN DENVER AND FRIEND, Monday, March 29, 9-10 p.m. (ET). A segment of the show will salute the big band days of the 1930s and 1940s and Denver and Sinatra will be joined by such giants of that swinging era as Count Basie, the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra, Harry James and his Orchestra and Nelson Riddle and his Orchestra.

For Sinatra, the program will be a happy reunion with some old pals and one comparatively new one, John Denver. They met last August when they appeared back-to-back at Harrah's, Lake Tahoe, Calif. where Denver made his first night club appearance. It was the beginning of a remarkable personal and professional friendship between two stars who, while being strikingly different in personality and style, have enormous repect for one another.

Sinatra and Count Basie have been friends and show business colleagues for more than three decades.Their association dates back to 1943, when they made their respective film debuts in "Reveille With Beverly." Over the years they've recorded together and worked with each other in countless night club and concert engagements. When Las Vegan began to flourish as an entertainment center, it was Sinatra who introduced the Basie band to audiences in the casino-resort city.

Most Caves

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri has 3,111 recorded caves — more than any other state.

Another Example of 'Equality'

Hubbie's Running A Little Late

There are no records to prove it, but I have every reason to believe my husband was an 11-month baby.

And he's been running two months late ever since.

Through marriage (and bad association), I have become a member of that great body of tardy Americans who grope their way down theater aisles in the dark, arrive at parties in time to drink their cocktails with their dessert, and celebrate Christmas on Dec. 26.

Frankly, I don't know how a nice, punctual girl like me got stuck with a man who doesn't need a watch . . . but a calendar and a keeper.

Would it shock you to know I have never seen a bride walk "down" the aisle? I have never seen a choir or a graudate in a processional? I have never seen the victim of a mystery BEFORE he was murdered. I have never seen a parking lot jammed with people. I have never seen the first race of a daily double or a football team in clean uniforms.

The other night I had it out with my husband. "Look, I am in the prime time of my life and I have never heard the first 30 seconds of the munute waltz. Doesn't that tell you something?"

"What are you trying to say?" he asked.

"I am saying that once before I die I would like to see a church with empty seats."

"We've been through all this before," he sighed. "Sitting around before an event begins is a comlete waste of time when you could be spending it sleeping . . . reading . . . working . . ."

"Don't forget driving around the block looking for a parking place. I don't understand you at all," I continued. "Don't you get curious as to what they put into first acts? Aren't you just a bit envious of people who don't have to jump onto moving trains? Aren't you tired of sitting down to a 44-minute egg for breakfast each morning?"

"I set my alarm clock every night. What do you want from me?"

"I have seen you set your alarm clock. Whey you want to get up at 6:30 you set it for 5:30. Then you smack it and say, 'Don't tell me what to do, Buddy.' Then you reset it for six. At six when it goes off you hit it again and shout, 'Ha, ha, I was only kidding. I got another half hour.' You reset it for 6:30, at which time you throw your body on it and say, 'I don't need you. I don't need anybody.' Then you go back to sleep."

"I just happen to believe there is no virtue in being early. What time is it?"

"It's eight o'clock. You're supposed to be at work at eight."

"Yes. Lucky, I've got 20 minutes to spare."

I have a feeling I will go through life and never again hear The Star Spangled Banner.

Rice paper is not made from rice, but from the pith of a Formosan plant, "Fatsia papyrifers".

The average car in the United States travels about 10,000 miles each year and consumes more than 700 gallons of gasoline.

"Guide to the Game of Draughts," as checkers is called in England, was published in London in 1756 by mathematician William Payne. The forward to the book was written by Dr. Samuel Johnson, a devotee of the game.

Dear Newcomer to the Kingston area:

A week ago Sunday, the people who came to a certain Reformed Church at the corner of Pearl and Fair said to one another, "This is a cold church!"

They were right. The oil burner had shut off in the night, and the temperature in the sanctuary was down in the 50's.

But most Sundays, the people who attend that church say, "Fair Street Church is a warm church", not just because the oil burner is operating, but because of the friendliness of "Fairstreeters".

Come find out for yourself. Join us this Sunday at the 9:30 or 11 a.m. service and visit the Coffee Hour between services.

Dear Abby

Chronic Lovebirds

DEAR ABBY: My sister and her husband come to our town three times a year on business and always expect to be put up in our home.

Their behavior is unreal, and I'm considering putting them up in a motel on their next visit.

I don't object to couples holding hands and showing signs of affection in public, but you should see these two! They're like a couple of dogs in heat! He has his hands all over her and even under her blouse (at the dinner table, yet!), and my sister just giggles and thinks it's cute.

They've been married for 23 years, so there's no excuse for this. His filthy talk about their intimate relationship is too embarrassing to repeat. He brags in front of our teenaged children that he and his wife bathe together!

I can't ask my children to spend the whole time in their rooms when this moron and my sister visits us.

My husband is a softy. He says we should look the other way when they're here. Have you ever tried to carry on a conversation with someone without looking at them?

Am I being a prude? Please advise me.

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: I'm for putting up the lovebirds in a motel, tree, kennel or some other appropriate place. And don't make up any excuse. Tell them why.

DEAR ABBY: As a steady reader of your column, I have noticed that you often say, "Mother Nature decides at what age a woman should stop bearing children."

That undoubtedly gives comfort to women who for one reason or another bear children in their later years. But I think you should point out that the older a woman, the older her eggs are, and as an egg ages, it deteriorates, increasing the chances of having a defective child—as with mongolism.

Perhaps many people are not aware of this rather unhappy fact of life.

HUMANITARIAN

DEAR HUMANITARIAN: You make an important point. I was remiss in failing to mention it, and I thank you for doing so.

DEAR ABBY: Last summer, while running my fingers through the sand at the beach, I found an opal ring. I took it to a jeweler who appraised it at approximately $100. I would like to wear it, but here's the situation:

I have heard that bad luck is associated with the opal, and only people whose birthstone is the opal should wear it. My birthstone is not the opal, and I don't need any bad luck right now.

Have you ever heard of this superstition? What is your advice?

OTTAWA LAKE, MICH.

DEAR OTT: Yes, I have heard of this superstition. I am not superstitious, but if you are, don't wear the opal.

The Young Americans

On Tap for 1976-'77 Community Concerts

A Repeat Visit for Young Americans

KINGSTON — Guess who's comin' back to Kingston? The Young Americans — that's who.

A rousing success during a previous energetic and vibrant program for Community Concerts here, they'll return for the 1976-77 season. Other performers in the upcoming series of attractions of Community Concerts will be the long-established Monte-Carlo Orchestra, and the lovely and talented operatic soprano, Marianna Christos.

Community Concerts has kicked off its mail campaign and subscribers will be receiving a program brochure with renewal forms for the 1976-77 series. Those who do not receive brochures within the next few days can contact Mrs. George Wert, campaign chairman, or Mrs. John McCullough, membership secretary. For the convenience of subscribers, the mail campaign will close out renewals on April 18.

Marianna Christos

This year's series will be a most attractive and entertaining one. Established over 100 years ago, the Monte-Carlo Orchestra, under the patronage of Prince Rainier III and Princess Grace, is known as "the artistic ambassador of Monaco." The orchestra is conducted by Serge Baudo. Kingstonian Marianna Christos was the second place winner of the 1975 Metropolitan Opera auditions; has received other operatic awards. The attractive young soprano has sung with Santa Fe Opera and New York Lyric Opera; made her New York City operatic debut as Liu in Puccini's "Turandot." The exuberant Young Americans need no introduction to Kingston audiences; have toured widely and been seen frequently on television.

Weekend

It Will Be Sawyerkill Wine and Cheese

SAUGERTIES — Plans have been completed for the Wine and Cheese Tasting Party on Sunday, March 28, at Sawyerkill Restaurant where hosts will be the Little Sawyer Association.

From 2 to 5 p.m. there will be entertainment in an international atmosphere amid wines and cheeses, with the music of Chuck Misasi of "A Taste of Honey" group.

Wines include a Beaujolais from France, selections from Italy, several from Germany including a May wine, and some very special wines from California. There will be the traditional punch table and, to complement the wines, the Cheese Barn in Saugerties has carefully chosen cheese from around the world. Fresh fruit and an abundance of breads and crackers will be served to clear the taste buds between samples of wines.

Tickets may be reserved by contacting Mrs. James Dargan, Bennet Avenue, Saugerties.

Proceeds will be used to restore the 200-year-old Grist Mill, for which purpose the Little Sawyer Association was formed in 1971. The Association at this time is involved in a concentrated finance drive to raise funds to accomplish this goal in this Bicentennial year.

This event has proved to be an enjoyable afternoon in previous years, and this year's hosts are striving to make the fourth annual wine and cheese tasting party the best to date.

'Our Town' In New Paltz

NEW PALTZ — Few plays are more attuned for Bicentennial year presentation than Thornton Wilder's Americana original, "Our Town." And few places are more appropriate for its staging than New Paltz, a town comparable to Grover's Corners, New Hampshire, the town in which "Our Town" takes place.

Small wonder, then, that the Pulitzer prize-winning play will be presented in McKenna Theatre, on the New Paltz campus, for five performances: April 7, 8, 9, 10 at 8:30 p.m., and April 11 at 2 p.m. It will be the fourth and final production of the 1975-76 season by the Department of Theatre Arts at the State Uiversity College. And will be the last in a series of distinguished American plays the department is producing in commemoration of the Bicentennial year.

In three acts, the play concerns itself with daily life, love and marriage, and death. Contrary to popular belief, "Our Town" is not offered as a picture of life in a New England village, or as a speculation about the conditions of life after death. Wilder wrote the play as an attempt to find a value above all price for the smallest events in the life of every person.

When the play was first seen on Broadway in 1938, it was greeted as "a tender idyll, brimming over with compassion; heartbreaking in the simplicity of human tragedy." Hailed then as being revolutionary in style because of its modest costuming, relaxed nature and lack of scenery, it remains just as popular today for the same reasons.

Tickets for "Our Town" may be reserved by calling the McKenna Theatre box office any time after March 31.

Valley Theater Company . . . A First

POUGHKEEPSIE — It's a "first" in the Valley Theater Company's stage history — the only occasion since its founding that a double cast has been set for a production.

The musical being offered next month by the Valley Theater thespians is "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." So, director Thom Tubbs picked a double cast from the large number of talented actors and actresses trying out. One cast will perform at all matinee shows; the other will sing and dance through the evening stagings.

Of interest, too, is the assigning of the role of Charlie Brown's dog, Snoopy, to both a man and a woman during various performances. Gary Wilkert and Arlene Wege will take turns emoting as Snoopy. Others in the cast are: Mike Harlick as Linus, Kevin Laffin and Guy Malone as Charlie Brown, Roxanne Pratten nd Kathe Cullen as Peppermint Patty, Dave Ringwood and Stephen Prutting as Schroeder, and Adeline Boiley and Margo Schuler as Lucy.

The cartoon-based romp opens Friday, April 23 at 8 p.m.; will play again Saturday, April 24, at 2 and 8 p.m. shows, and return April 30 and May 1 with the same time schedule. For more information or tickets, contact Valley Theater Company, 12 Vassar Street, Poughkeepsie.

Fish Moves to Amend SBA Act

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr., R-25th, has joined a bipartisan effort in the House of Representatives aimed at amending the Small Business Act to enable home builders to receive SBA assistance.

Fish explains that the Act doesn't specifically exclude home builders but the SBA in its broad interpretation of the definition of the term "speculative" includes home builders. Hearings are scheduled next week.

"The SBA argument that home building and contracting are speculative is also reinforced by SBA's argument that the Department of Housing and Urban Development handles home building," Fish said.

"I feel the Small Business Administration is wrong on both counts. First, I don't believe businessmen who have long and successful records should be labled "speculative" and therefore poor risks, and second, HUD assists the home buyer, not the home builder," Fish said.

Noting that building starts are off over 50 per cent with the entire construction business in a deep recession, Fish said, "I hope that in a small way the enactment of this amendment will help home builders contractors,and eventually home owners."

According to Fish, the amendment would mandate that loan eligibility by the SBA be determined on a case-by-case basis, "to prevent the wholesale exclusion of entire classes of applicants. Of course, in no way will it affect the SBA's discretion on individual cases."

Fish said it was his opinion that the proposed amendment will "be acted upon favorably by the Small Business Committee, unless some very strong negative evidence is developed in the scheduled hearings.

McHugh for Debate Broadcasts

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Congressman Matthew F. McHugh, D-27th, along with 30 other freshmen representatives, has asked the House Rules Committee to clear the way for live radio and television coverage of House debates.

"There is a serious need to honestly and openly inform the public of the workings of Congress," they wrote in a letter to Chairman Ray J. Madden, D-Ind., adding that "a vast majority of our citizens learn about government and politics from radio and television coverage."

They called for safeguards against abuses by individual members and to preserve the "dignity and decorum traditionally observed by the House."

The committee will meet to take up two nearly identical measures for gavel to gavel broadcast coverage. Both proposals would give newsmen a free hand in selecting parts of each day's session for their news broadcasts. Both would create a videotape archive of future proceedings open to scholars and libraries.

The measures differ, however, over who would operate the system. One (H.Res. 875) calls for coverage to be provided under a pool agreement with the major networks. The second (H. Res. 269) would leave that responsibility with the House through its Commission on Information and Facilities.

The letter called on the committee to act favorably on the proposals without specifying a particular approach .

Bus, Fire Bills Pass

ALBANY — Bills dealing with school bus safety and firemanics sponsored by State Senator Richard E. Schermerhorn, R-40th Dist., have passed the senate and have been sent to the assembly for action.

One of Schermerhorn's bills would provide greater safety for school children by requiring school bus drivers to have the head lights turned on when driving a school bus to provide and added warning to motorists of the bus on the highway, Schermerhorn, in noting the current law which provides for flashing red lights on school buses when receiving or discharging passengers, said, "An additional method of warning motorists that they are approaching a school bus will provide an added margin of safety which is desirable."

The other Schermerhorn bill to receive Senate approval would amend entrance qualifications for fire fighters to allow the child or children of a fireman who died in the line of duty to have absolute preference on entrance examinations.

Concerning this bill, Schermerhorn said, "All too often a fire fighter dies in the line of duty leaving a widow and children. What this legislation would do would be to offer a child of the fire fighter killed in the line of duty future employment within the fire service,'. The Cornwall lawmaker continued that, "Because of the early death of the income earner, other employment might be seriously curtailed if that child couldn't afford college,"

"The child would still have to meet all qualifications and receive a passing grade on the examination for the fire department," Schermerhorn added.

The average number of deaths in the line of duty over the past five years have been 20 in New York State. Schermerhorn said, "We are talking about an insignificant number compared to the number who take the fire fighter exams."

Local 445 Continues Coverage

YONKERS — Theodore G. Daley, secretary-treasurer of Teamster Local 445, has announced that the trustees of the three Local 445 Welfare Funds have again voted to continue the extended insurance coverage for Local 445 active members who are unemployed due to the serious economic conditions that exist in the area and the nation.

Daley noted that the trustee's voted to extend the insurance and medical coverage for unemployed active members two years ago at his request. "To be out of work is bad enough. To be out of work and not have any union life insurance and hospitalization protection for themselves and their families is unthinkable," he said.

The financial condition of the Welfare Funds, by prudent trustee money management, have the reserves to continue to provide the life insurance, weekly disability, hospitalization, surgical, major medical, diagnostic, paid prescription, dental and optical benefits and the other care provided by thee Welfare Plans of Local 445, to all the union's active employed or unemployed membership in the seven county area served by the union," Daley concluded.

Oral Cancer

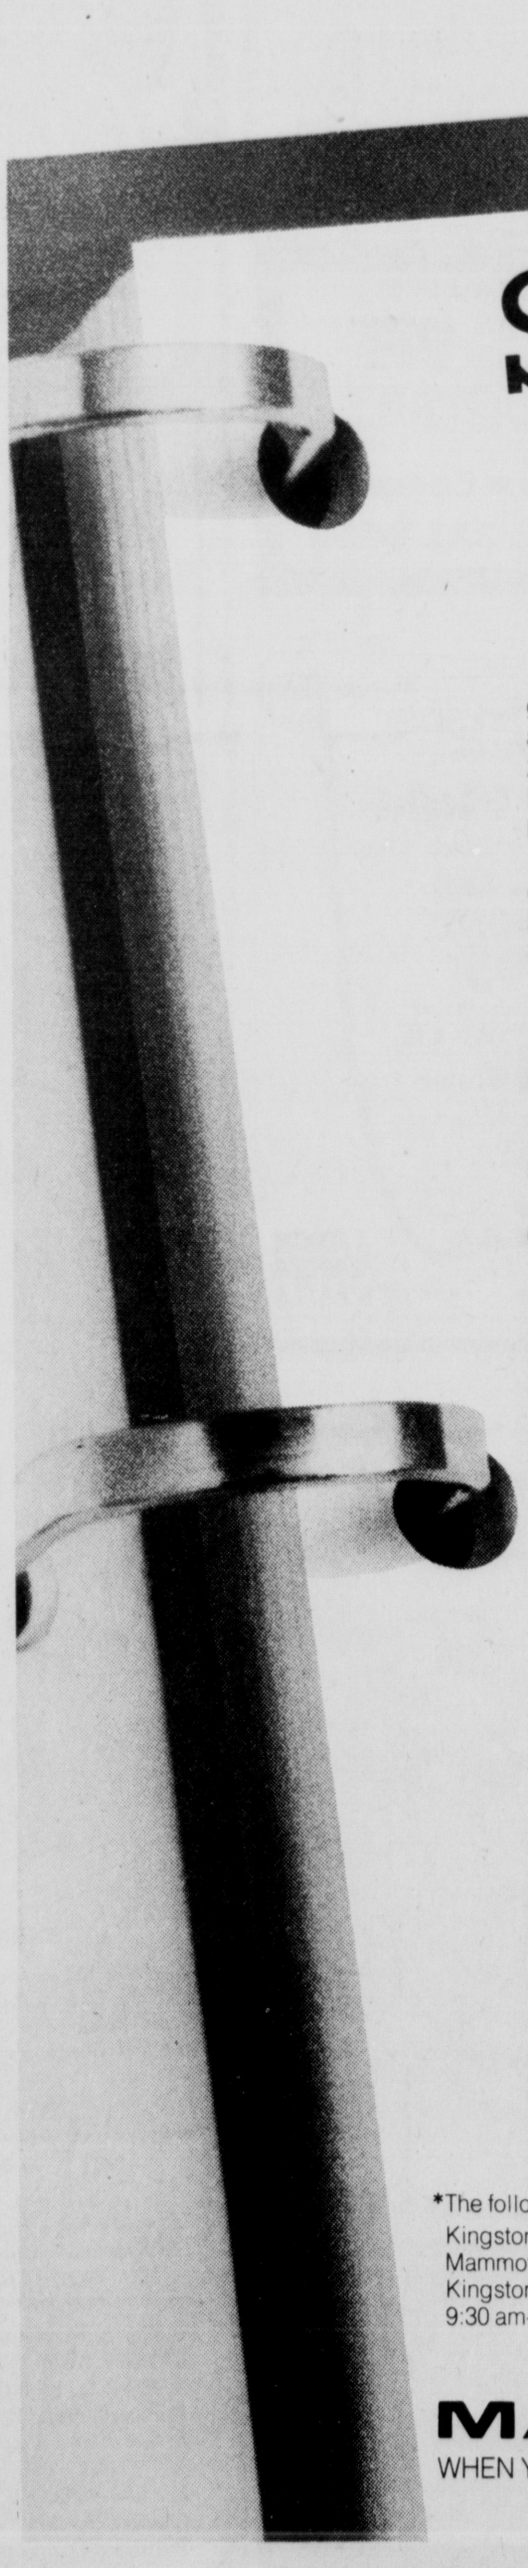

HOUSTON (UPI) — Doctors estimate 24,000 Americans will get oral cancer this year and about 8,000 will die from it.

Researchers say a person can detect early stages himself simply by looking carefully into his own mouth and examining for white scaly patches, any swelling or lump, with or without pain, any sore that does not heal promptly, numbness or tingling, repeated bleeding, or any loosening of teeth with no apparent cause.

People who wear dentures should also make careful checks, dental hygenists say.

Movies Pay Off For Murphy

HILTON HEAD, S.C. (UPI) — Bob Murphy is a movie buff.

Not your ordinary buff, mind you. He makes movies of himself whenever he has trouble with his golf swing.

That, explains Murphy, is how he cured himself of driving the ball too far left. And that's why he's the leader going into today's second round of the star-filled, $215,000 Heritage Golf Classic at this luxury island resort.

"I'd been hitting three, four shots a round to the left and it was really frustrating me," the portly Floridian said. "I went home after my finish last week (at Jacksonville) and took some stop-action pictures.

"I hit balls for about five straight hours before I figured out what was wrong. My left hand was gripping the club too strong. I was hitting the ball farther, but I had lost my rhythm."

Brooklyn-born, 33-year-old Murphy, winner of more than $127,000 last year but barely $20,000 so far this year, knew he had to make an adjustment.

"I needed a major overhaul. I told a friend that I couldn't go to the Heritage playing that way because you don't dare hit left here."

Murphy was right on target Thursday when he shot a five-birdie, no bogey 66 in the opening round of the Heritage Classic. That gave him a onestroke lead over veteran Don January and two over a large group of 68 shooters, including Hubert Green who won at Doral two weeks ago and won last week at Jacksonville.

"It was a pleasure to shoot a good round," said Murphy. "It had gotten to the point where I felt that every round I played I scored the worst I could score because of where I put the ball."

Gibby Gilbert, Dave Stockton, John Schroeder, Butch Baird, Peter Oosterhuis, Danny Edwards, and Marty Fleckman all shared third place with Green at the start of today's play.

Hale Irwin, this year's leading money winner and champion here in 1971 and 1973, was in a huge group at 2-under 69 that included Gary Player, J.C. Snead, and Tom Weiskopf. Lee Trevino was at even-par 71.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus was upset with himself after opening with a 1-over72 "which could just as easily have been a 68." But he was a lot better off than former Hilton Head resident Johnny Miller, winner here in 1972 and 1974, who opened with a 4-over 75.

Schroeder lay claim to the wildest first round of all those who shot in the 60s Thursday.

Schroeder bogeyed four of the first six holes to go 4 over, then birdied eight of the last 12. "The first six holes," said Schroeder with a shrug, "I put the ball in the center of every fairway and then couldn't hit the green."

Ali (L) shows off for Inoki

Ali Turns 'Young Lion' Into a Mere 'Pelican'

NEW YORK (UPI) — At 6 feet 3 inches, Antonio Inoki isn't accustomed to being compared with a pelican. Indeed, back home in Japan he is known as "the Young Lion."

But now that Inoki has come in contact with the garrulous Muhammad Ali, he can expect to be called a lot of other uncomplimentary things in the next three months. Not even his size, or the fact he happens to be the heavyweight wrestling champion of Japan and a karate expert, will help him.

Ali and Inoki got together Thursday to help publicize their $10 million boxer vs. wrestler bout to be staged at Tokyo the morning of June 26 (the night of June 25 in the United States, where it will be shown on closed circuit television).

It was at the get-together that Ali, pleased to unleash his repertoire of vocal jousting on an unwary victim, told Inoki that his jutting chin reminded him of a pelican.

Ali, while continuing his oration, waved his arms, pounded the table, shadowboxed, stripped off his shirt and compared biceps, glared and never stopped talking.

"I'm the greatest," he said, "you gotta fall, I'll hit you so hard your relatives in Tokyo will feel it, I'll be champion of everything."

Inoki appeared not to understand Ali's act at first, but the apprehensive look soon disappeared as he saw the surrounding crowd enjoy the champion's antics. Inoki, further reassured by the arrival of his wife, movie star Mitsuko Baisho, counter-attacked with a bit of Eastern philosophy.

"When the wind blows, I shall bend but not break," Inoki said.

Ali retorted: "I cannot miss your chin when I punch. You are 'the pelican.' Sonny Liston was the bear and Floyd Patterson was the rabbit. I'll hit your big chin."

"When your fist hits my chin I hope you do not hurt your fist," Inoki answered cheerfully.

Ali, in line for a guaranteed $6.1 million, insisted "it will be a serious fight—no gimmicks. It's no fake. As long as I'll be hitting and hurting, he can use his best stuff." Inoki's share is $2 million from international television and the entire proceeds from the live gate.

The exact rules for the bout, which the promoters insist will not be an exhibition, have not been worked out as yet except that Ali will wear four-ounce gloves and Inoki his usual wrestling garb.

When asked if it were possible he was demeaning the heavyweight boxing title by taking part in such a bout, Ali replied loftily that "it is not ridiculous—I'll be going outside my specialty and I'm drawing the greatest crowds in the history of the world."

Inoki is 33 years old and Ali 34. Each man is 6 feet 3 inches, and Ali weighs 220 p ounds.

There will be a companion boxer-wrestler bout at Shea Stadium in New York serving as a preliminary on closed circuit television. In this, Jerry Quarry, Oscar Bonavena or Henry Clark will meet wrestler Andre the Giant.

Boxing Goes Over Hump

By Charles J. Tiano
Sports Editor

KINGSTON—If Angel Oquendo was slightly confused by it all in last night's eight-round light heavyweight feature at the Municipal Auditorium, you couldn't blame him.

Wayne McGee, of Philadelphia and former New York Golden Gloves champion, attacked him frontally, from the right side and left side to win a split decision and put Oquendo's hopes for a lightheavyweight title shot farther back on the burner.

But that wasn't the real story at the hallowed boxing area. The real drama was the size of the crowd—more than 900—the spectacular action, lively enthusiasim of the crowd. And the solid feeling that permeated the crowd—that Promoter Joe Garfield went over the hump in his bid to re-establish professional boxing in Kingston.

Referee Joe Santarpia and Judge Nick Gamboli of Haverstraw voted for McGee and Judge Harold Lederman of Orangeburgh called it a draw in he main event. Oquendo weighed 176, McGee 174.

There were two quick knockouts on the five-bout card and the other three contests had the fans cheering from start to finish.

Switching from right to left, McGee took the offensive against Oquendo in the first round, opened up a slight mouse on Oquendo's right eye in the third round and shook up the veteran Puerto Rican with a couple of solid rights in the fourth round.

Trailing by a wide margin, Oquendo called on all the cunning and experience of his long career after McGee stunned him with a crunching right to stage a furious counter rally, Oquendo stung McGee with solid rights, roughed him up inside and pursued him across the ring. When the round ended, McGee hit the corner stool with a thump.

Oquendo floored McGee for no count with a couple of left hooks after a furious exchange in which they traded shots to the jaw. A left hook set up McGee for the knockdown but he bounced up without taking a count.

Oquendo made up some ground in the eighth round but not enough to convince the judges.

Ron (Beau) Whyms, 141, Brooklyn, rallied in the last three rounds to earn a popular draw with Randy Milton, 146, of Connecticut.

Milton appeared o have pushed Whyms to the canvas at the bell in the third round and that indiscretion was enough to spark Whyms' comeback. "He pushed me hard," said Whyms, "and that got me a little mad. I still felt strong and I knew I could take him."

Whyms didn't take him but closed with two fast rounds to earn the draw, pounding Milton along the ropes in a big sixth round.

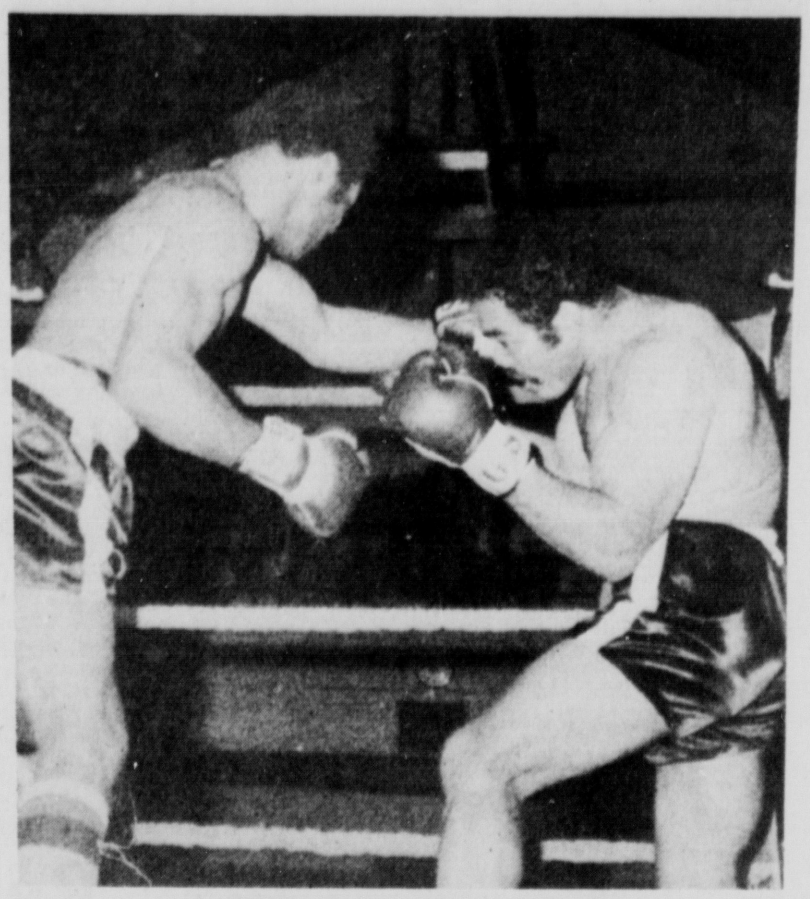

Jose Roman, 129½, of New York City, knocked out George Rivera, 130, New York, after only 50 seconds of the first round. Roman set up his outclassed opponent with a couple of left hooks and decked him with a right.

In one of the best bouts of the night, Richie Lugo, 144½, White Plains won a decision over Mike Bullock, 147, of Passaic in six rounds.

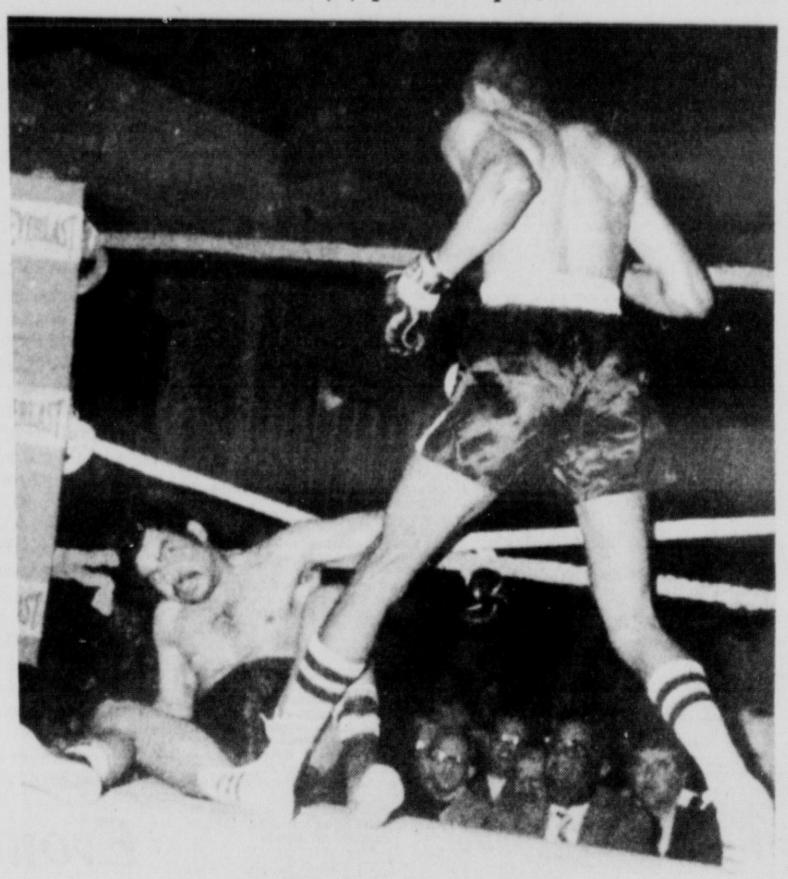

Joe Mascetta, 165, of White Plains knocked out Melendez, 157, of New York, in 1:16 of the first round of the curtain raiser.

SHORT JABS: Ray Puluse, the crack New Jersey lightweight, was unable to appear because of illness . . . George Gainford, the legendary manager of Sugar Ray Robinson, appeared with his ne find, Sugar Ray Hammond, but there w no opponent for him . . .

Dream Come True for Frosh

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — At this time last year, David Greenwood, Phil Hubbard, James Bailey and Abdel Anderson were all walking around high school hallways with dreams of leading their future college teams to the NCAA basketball championship.

As expected, the four entered schools with top basketball programs. However, instead of sitting around the bench learning the college game, they got the chance to play and each became a contributor to his team's success this year.

Now Greenwood of UCLA, Hubbard of Michigan and Bailey and Anderson of Rutgers are the four key freshman among the semifinalists in the NCAA basketball championships who are starting or playing as much as the starters.

"With the two freshmen we've had playing this season, we would never be where we are right now without them," said Rutgers coach Tom Young in echoing the sentiments of his rival coaches in Saturday's semifinal doubleheader at the Spectrum.

Greenwood, a 6-10 center, entered the starting lineup for the Bruins in late January and started their last 13 games. UCLA, now 26-4, was 12-1 in that stretch.

"He gives us more quickness," said rookie UCLA coach Gene Bartow. "He and Ralph Drollinger have been alternating in and out of that position since the Notre Dame game (Jan. 24)."

However, the slender, 217-pound Greenwood will be giving away an inch and almost 30 pounds when he pairs off against Indiana center Kent Benson in the nightcap of Saturday's doubleheader.

The 6-7 Hubbard was the highest scoring freshman in Big 10 conference action this season with a 14.3 point-per-game average and averaged 11.3 points overall. He also finished third in the conference in rebounding and field goal percentage.

He has moved right in at center on what Michigan coach Johnny Orr calls "the smallest team ever to make the final four."

The surprising Bailey, whose matchup with Hubbard could be a key, started 26 of the unbeaten Knights' 31 games. The 6-9 center is averaging nine points and seven rebounds per game and has blocked 93 shots this season.

Anderson, a 6-7 forward, has been the sixth man the entire season for the Knights and came off the bench to score 19 points in Rutgers' 93-79 win over Connecticut in the Eastern semifinals.

"Bailey has done a great job for us, both scoring and rebounding," Young said. "Anderson has also done a tremendous job for us coming off the bench."

Young added that he doesn't even consider his first-year pair freshmen any more.

"They're now sophomores. They've played 31 games and should be just as ready to handle the pressure this weekend as the rest of our team."

Indiana coach Bobby Knight has led his team to a 30-0 record while going mainly with experience but has inserted 6-5 freshman Rich Valavicius in spots.

"He has played quite a lot for us and will be the freshman who will make the largest contribution for us," Knight said.

But the coach of the topranked Hoosiers added: "We have a number of veterans. We don't expect to rise or fall on our freshmen."

In addition to Hubbard, Michigan (24-6) has some other outstanding freshman talent in 6-6 forward Alan Hardy and 6-3 guard Tom Staton.

"Staton is probably responsible for us being here the way he played against Wichita and Notre Dame," Orr said.

Stenmark and Morerod Triumph, But Italians Capture Cup

By Steve Kane

HUNTER—World Cup champion Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden and Lise-Marie Morerod of Switzerland were the individual victors Thursday in dual parallel slalom races, the final events of the World Series of Skiing.

Stenmark defeated Italy's Piero Gros in the men's finals, though Gros' 20 points for runnerup position enabled the Italians to finish the three days with 84 team points and the Nations' Cup.

Morerod, winner of Wednesday's slalom, edged the most popular skier in the competition, West Germany's Rosi Mittermaier, in the women's head-to-head championship. The Swiss finished just four points behind Italy in the team competition.

Third place winners were Italian veteran Gustavo Thoeni, who defeated his teammate Diego Amplatz in the men's race, and Austria's Monica Kaserer who eliminated Hanni Wenzel of Liechtenstein in the women's ski-off.

Italy, with its strong nucleus of slalom specialists, stormed back strongly during the final two days of the World Series to win the Nations' Cup. Morerod personally accounted for 36 of Switzerland's 80 points to lift her team into second place.

West German was third among the teams with 68 points followed by the United States with 58, Liechtenstein with 34, Sweden with 30, France with 29, Austria with 26 and Canada with seven.

With the pressures of the World Cup season over and the racers engaging in the unaccustomed head-to-head professional format, the final event of the year Thursday took on a festive nature. Not unexpectedly, two of the freer spirits on the circuit made it past three opponents in the men's competition to face each other in the finals.

Stenmark overpowered Bruno Nockler of Italy, Walter Fresch of Switzerland and Amplatz by wide margins in the first three rounds, refusing to let up even when he had substantial leads after the first run. In his first trip down the course against Gros, the Swede posted a winning margin of .398 seconds.

First Hans Hinterseeer of Austria then Greg Jones of the U.S. disqualified against Gros, then the Italians had to make two good runs against Thoeni in the semifinals. Gros skied strongly in the second run of the finals againsnt Stenmark in an exciting race, but Stenmark, with a spurt at the finish, stayed within .211 seconds of his opponent to claim the victory.

Morerod, who had a fine three days with a fifth place Tuesday and wins Wednesday and Thursday, eliminated Lindy Cochran of the U.S., Fabienne Serrat of France and Wenzel in her first three runs. Mittermaier gained the opposite berth with victories over Marie-Theres Nadig of Switzerland, Cindy Nelson of the U.S. and Kaserer.

Morerod contined to ski well, beating Mittermaier by .566 seconds in the first run. Rosi tried to make up the difference on their second run, but in another excellent duel, the Swiss champ edged her rival by eight-one thousands of a second

Each nation's top eight performers in the giant slalom and slalom events qualified for the parallel races. First place was worth 24 points toward the team championship, second was worth 20, third was worth 16, fourth 12 points, fifth eight points and ninth was worth four points. Italy and Switzerland were tied with 28 points after the first two days of competition, but the Swiss women moved their team temporarily into the lead over Germany and the U.S. after their parallel competition.

Five Americans won a first round parallel match before bowing out in the quarterfinals. Greg Jones was joined in the second round competitions by Ca Adgate in the men's race, and Jan Kurlander and Abbi Fisher, along wi Nelson, were the U.S. women who scor one victory.

Adgate, who won his opening duel w Germany's Christian Neureuther, fail to finish his first run against Amplatz a couldn't make up the automatic 1.5 s ond advantage awarded the Italian for t second run.

Nelson and Kurlander both stayed their feet to no avail in the wome competition. Nelson, a first round win over Canadien Kathy Kreiner, lost b runs to Mittermaier by times of .180 a .198 seconds. Kurlander was defeated a wider margin as Kaserer scored adv tages of .319 and .509 seconds. Kurlan had gotten past France's Patricia Emo in the first round.

Fisher defeated West German Christa Zechmeister in the first rou then crossed the finish line just .(seconds behind Hanni Wenzel in the f quarterfinal heat. She couldn't han the course her second time down, h ever, and was eliminated.

This was the final event on the Wo Cup circuit this year, though only l points, not World Cup statistics, w affected by the results. Most of European racers left immediately, so heading for additional spring competit elsewhere.

Despite warm spring weather, cor tions for the three days held up markably well.

Lunger Eyes Prix Title

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — As far as Brett Lunger is concerned, world driving champion Niki Lauda of Austria and James Hunt of Britain aren't the only men who can win the U.S. Grand Prix West Sunday.

Lunger will be the only American-born driver in the third Formula One event of 1976.

"Lauda can be beaten and so can Hunt," he said. "A lot of people are saying they're the big favorites. Well, there's no way this is a two-man race. I'm going into this thing thinking I can win. When you're racing at this partic level, you don't go around with an feriority complex. You go out there win."

Hunt won a noncounting Formula event at Brands Hatch, England, weeks ago and Lunger's Surtees te mate, Alan Jones of Australia, finis second. Lunger was not entered.

"Lauda has a great car in his Ferr the Wilmington, Del., product said, " he's going to be especially quick at I Beach because he has so much torque of the slow turns.

Good Outing for Seaver

By U P I

When Tom Seaver pushed himself into the middle of the heated labor negotiations between players and owners—and possibly cost himself a place on the New York Mets—there was some speculation how all the turmoil would affect his pitching.

The three-time Cy Young Award winner tried to assure one and all that there was no need to worry. When the work was there to be done, the war of words would be left behind.

Seaver got his first chance to prove his point Thursday and he responded admirably by allowing only two hits and no runs in four innings during a 10 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals at St. Petersburg, Fla.

"It was very good," Seaver said. "It wasn't like a first game, it felt more like my third. I felt I could have pitched seven innings. I wasn't trying to reach back, but the fast ball was there even though I wasn't trying to overpower anyone."

Seaver has yet to sign a contract for 1976 and last word from Met management still had the ace right-hander up for trading bids.

Another important pitching spot was turned in during that exhibition game as Pete Falcone, making his Cardinal debut after his trade from San Francisco, struck out seven batters in the first three innings. He allowed three hits and walked one.

The only run of the game was scored in the sixth inning after Lou Brock opened with a single off Bob Apodaca and Bake McBride tripled.

Schedules Available

A limited number of copies of 1976 New York Mets baseball schedules are now available from the Daily Freeman sports department. To obtain your free copy, come to the Freeman sports desk Monday through Friday betwen the hours of 6 a.m. and 1 p.m. or Saturdays from 5 p.m. to midnight.

New York Yankees schedules are on order and should be available shortly.

Los Angeles received two encouraging pitching performances from Don Sutton and Ron Bryant, who combined to shut out Philadelphia 7-0 at Vero Beach, Fla. Sutton, who was 16-13 last year, yielded only two hits and struck out three in six innings and Bryant, a 24-game winner for the Giants four years ago, also was touched for only two hits in three innings.

Davey Lopes led the Dodger attack with a double and a homer, driving in three runs.

Al Fitzmorris worked five shutout innings and Kansas City took advantage of two unearned runs in the third inning to beat the Chicago White Sox 2-0. Fitzmorris allowed only two infield singles.

In other exhibitions Thursday, John Ellis hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning to lift Texas to a 10-8 victory over Baltimore; Ed Herrmann drove in two runs with three singles as California beat Oakland 4-1; a two-run double by rookie outfielder Gene Richards and run-scoring singles by Bob Davis and Dave Winfield highlighted a six-run sixth inning that carried San Diego to an 8-5 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

Pinch-hitter Jose Morales drove home an unearned run with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly to e nable Montreal to squeeze by Houston 5-4; Dwight Evans hit a three-run homer and John Balaz a two-run blast to power Boston to a 7-2 victory over Minnesota; Al Oliver hit a two-run double in the sixth and made a saving catch in the bottom of the inning to help Pittsburgh beat Detroit 4-2.

Dave May scored from second on a double error by third baseman Ed Brinkman in the 10th inning to give a split squad of Atlanta Braves a 2-1 victory over the New York Yankees; Bob Oliver, seeking a job with the White Sox, hit his second homer of the spring to lead Iowa of the American Association to a 5-2 success over the parent club; Alan Ashby homered to ignite a fiverun, ninth-inning rally to lift Cleveland over Milwaukee, 8-7; and Tom Paciorek and Cito Gaston had scoring singles for Atlanta's other split squad in a 7-6 win over Cincinnati.

Ilie, Stockton in Near Fight

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Ilie Nastase and Dick Stockton almost came to blows Thursday when the Romanian became upset over an official's call and then refused to shake Stockton's hand after a comefrom-behind, 3-6, 6-0, 7-6, win.

The victory enabled Nastase, seeded No. 4, to advance to the quarterfinals of the $200,000 American Airlines Tennis Games at Mission Hills Country Club.

Stockton, who lost a third set tie-breaker to lose the match, called Nastase a "disgrace to the game" after the controversial Romanian combined spectacular tennis and his infamous routine of baiting his opponent to win the last two sets.

"Nastase did everything he could to win the match in an unfair way," said Stockton, who won the first set 6-3. "He stalls between points, he calls the officials every name in the book and he calls his opponents names during the match.

"I think he's a disgrace to the game and I'm not ashamed to say it."

Nastase's tempermental tactics began after Stockton was awarded a point in the first set although he appeared to have illegally carried the ball. Nastase turned his anger into superb play in the second set to blank Stockton 6-0.

"I almost walked off the court at the end of the second set," said Stockton. "The only reason I stayed was that I wanted to beat him so bad."

He almost did. The pair went into a tie-breaker that Nastase won 10-8.

After the win, Nastase refused to shake Stockton's outstretched hand, but after some moments, extended his own—but it was too late. Stockton already was heading toward the locker room, where the two later got into a heated argument and had to be restrained by other players.

"I see no reason why he didn't shake hands with me," said Stockton. "It was not my call that made him upset. It's unfortunate that he acts that way because he's such a great player.

"He doesn't have to pull that kind of stuff, but I don't think he can help himself."

Nastase left the locker room with his best friend, Jimmy Connors, who earlier disposed of Bob Lutz, 6-2, 6-4.

"I'm enjoying tennis more than ever before," said Connors. "Lutz hits the ball as firm as anyone in the game, but I felt I played very well today."

In other matches, Rod Laver thrashed Mike Estep, 6-1, 6-2, and Arthur Ashe beat Cliff Richey, 6-3, 6-4, to win his 19th consecutive match of the season.

Also, defending champion John Alexander defeated Raul Ramirez, 6-2, 6-3, and No. 3-seeded Bjorn Borg defeated Stan Smith, 7-6, 7-5. Roscoe Tanner and John Newcombe were also winners.

Wilkins Dreams of Healthy Team

By UPI

The dreams that fill Portland Coach Lenny Wilkins' head these days are not of winning National Basketball Association championships.

Rather they are simply of seeing his team healthy.

His Trail Blazer squad, playing as a healthy unit for its fifth straight game, Thursday night held off the Washington Bullets for a 108-105 National Basketball Association victory and its fourth win during that span.

"Man, how I like to see these guys play when they are healthy," said Wilkins. "I saw it for seven games to begin the season and I have seen it for the last five. If that's any indication, we could really be powerful."

The most prominent addition during those last five games has been 6-11 center Bill Walton, who missed 21 games with a stress fracture. Against the Bullets he had nine points and four rebounds but helped the Blazers shut off Washington's fast break in the final period.

"Bill gives us a mental and physical lift every time he goes into the game," said Wilkins. "I'm bringing him around slowly now, not starting him until he's fully recovered, but when he's healthy what can I do but start him."

Washington, which trailed by as many as 11 points in the third period, reeled off a 13-4 outburst early in the final period and took the lead 94-93 with 5:14 left on Len Robinson's three-point play.

Then with Walton adding three free throws and rookie guard Lionel Hollins four free throws, the Blazers stormed back into the lead with an 8-2 burst.

Lloyd Neal's three-point play with 2:03 left gave Portland a 106-100 lead it never lost. Neal, another of the Blazer casualties this year, plays with a face mask to protect a fractured cheek bone that caused him to miss 10 games earlier in the season.

"With Neal and Walton, we have height, strength and movement," added Wilkins. "And Hollins, why he may just become one of the NBA's finest guards before he's through."

Sidney Wicks led Portland with 25 points and Neal added 17. Hollins and Geoff Petrie each had 16. Phil Chenier had 24, Len Robinson 20 and Dave Bing 17 for Washington.

In other games, Buffalo ripped Cleveland 109-94, Phoenix tripped Atlanta 107-98 and Houston smothered Golden State 123-104. There were no games in the American Basketball Association.

Braves 109, Cavaliers 94

Bob McAdoo, Jim McMillian and Randy Smith combined for 86 points, including 28 in the fourth period, to spark Buffalo. McAdoo led all scorers with 36 points while McMillian added 25 and Smith 25. Dick Snyder led Cleveland with 21. Suns 107, Hawks 98

Paul Westphal scored 27 points to help Phoenix post its eighth straight home victory and pull the Suns to the .500 mark. Curtis Perry had 19 and Gar Heard and Alvan Adams 14 apiece for the Suns. Rockets 123, Warriors 104

Guards Mike Newlin and Calvin Murphy combined for 48 points to snap a three-game Houston losing streak and a four-game Golden State win string. Newlin had 26 points and Murphy 22 while Jamaal Wilkes of the Warriors led all scorers with 29.

Ratelle's Fluke Goal

UPI

"A goal like that happens to a player once in 10 years," said Jean Ratelle, "and this was it."

Ratelle was talking about his fluke goal Thursday night that started the Boston Bruins to a 4-2 win over the Chicago Black Hawks. The victory moved Boston to to within two points of clinching first place in the NHL Adams Division.

Ratelle's goal tied the game at 1-1 at 5:22 of the second period and Hank Nowak scored the tie-breaker at 8:07 on an equally peculiar play.

Chicago had taken a 1-0 lead at 2:16 of the period on a goal by Pit Martin. But while the Bruins were on a power play, Ratelle, from an impossible angle to the side of the Chicago net, tried to pass the puck into a swarm of players crowding near the crease. Instead, the puck bounced off a skate and behind suprised goalie Gilles Villemure.

Less than three minutes later, Nowak batted a pass in front in an effort to keep the puck moving. It hit J.P. Bordeleau and bounded into the net to put Boston ahead for good.

"All I was trying to do was get the puck in front of the net," said Ratelle. "I didn't even see it deflect. You know, a goal like that happens to a player once in 10 years and this was it. It's the first time it's ever happened to me. It was lucky and so was Hank's. But it was two goals and two points. Who cares how we get 'em."

The actual-game winner, at 19:10 of the second stanza, was more conventional. Bobby Schmautz fed Wayne Cashman at the goal mouth and he lifted the puck into the net and Boston led 3-1.

Boston's Terry O'Reilly and Chicago's Dennis Hull scored goals in the third period.

"We controlled the game from the start and that's what I like," said Coach Don Cherry. "We backchecked well and, to my mind, the game was never in doubt. That's the kind of game I like."

In other NHL games, Philadelphia defeated the New York Rangers 4-1 and St. Louis trounced Pittsburgh 5-2. In the World Hockey Association, Indianapolis topped Houston 4-3, Quebec downed Edmonton 7-5 and San-Diego routed Cincinnati 9-1. Blues 5, Penguins 2

Chuck Lefley scored two goals to offset a record first period tally by Pittsburgh's Jean Pronovost and give St. Louis the victory. Pronovost's goal, his 51st, came just six seconds into the game. Lefley's goals gave him a team record tying 41. Flyers 4, Rangers 1

Gary Inness kicked out 36 of 37 New York shots in his Philadelphia debut to give the Flyers their NHL record 34th home ice victory. Tom Bladon, Bill Barber, Andre Dupont and Don Saleski scored the Flyer goals. WHA

Rene Leclerc's second goal of the game in overtime pushed Indianapolis past Houston ... Marc Tardif scored his 65th and 66th goals to guide Quebec past Edmonton ... and Norm Ferguson also scored twice to pace San Diego in its clobbering of Cincinnati.

Evonne Likes to Be Nervous

BOSTON (UPI) — "Just relax when you hit the ball. Don't be so nervous." That may be a tennis teacher's standard advice for a struggling beginner.

But not for Evonne Goolagong.

"I like to get nervous and tense for a match. It helps my game," said Goolagong, the second-ranked player in the $75,000 Virginia Slims of Boston tennis tournament, Thursday after beating Kerry Melville Reid, 6-3, 6-2. In fact, Goolagong said her biggest problem is feeling too loose when she walks out on the court.

"Sometimes, I feel like I have to kick myself to get started, especially when I'm down. I've lost first sets and then gotten mad and won the last two."

Goolagong hardly relaxed for a moment Thursday night as she trounced fellow Australian Reid in straight sets to advance to Saturday's semifinal against Rosie Casals.

Casals, who downed Lesley Hunt of Australia, 6-4, 6-4, has met Goolagong twice this year and lost both times.

"Both matches were close. If I can keep being consistent and hit good shots, I can beat her," said Casals.

"Her weak spot is how she feels," said Casals echoing Goolagong's opinion of herself. "If she's loose it means she's not nervous. When she gets nervous she gets tighter and plays better. It helps to grab an early lead off her."

Casals was unable to build an early edge over Hunt in their quarterfinal, but won by playing an aggressive net game. Hunt was serving at 4-4 but broke herself by making a pair of unforced errors to hand Casals the lead.

The Sausalito, Cal., resident finished Hunt in the 10th game by serving at love.

"I thought both of us played well," said Casals. "It was a close match, just a matter of points. The difference was she missed more easy shots than I did. It's a matter of who serves and volleys better. Lesley got hesitant here and there and I was able to pass her."

Delta, Immaculata Win

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Top seeded Delta State (Miss.) met Wayland Baptist (Tex.) and second seeded Immaculata (Pa.) played William Penn (Iowa) today in the semifinals of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women national basketball tournament.

Delta State trounced Baylor 97-55, Immaculata trimmed Montclair State (N.J.) 103-82, William Penn edged Cal State (Fullerton) 64-61 and Wayland Baptist defeated Mississippi College 75-59 in the quarterfinals Thursday.

Cornelia Ward was instrumental in Delta's victory, hitting 18-of-25 shots en route to a tournament high 38 points. Teammate Lusia Harris, bothered by fouls, settled for 16 points while hitting 7-of-8 shots.

Sue Martin and Sandy Miller combined for 42 points and Immaculata shot 62 per cent to post its easy victory over Montclair State. Martin sank 12 field goals and two foul shots for 26 points and Miller added 16 for the Mighty Macs. Carol Blazejowski and Pat Colasurdo scored 30 points each to pace Montclair.

Networks Battle For Olympic TV

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI) — An inter-network battle appears to be shaping up, with NBC Television now saying it will pay more than ABC-TV for the broadcast rights to the 1980 Winter Olympics.

Officials at this northern New York village, host of the upcoming games, already have a letter of intent with ABC setting the figure at $10 million, but no contract has been signed. Thursday, NBC-TV President Robert T. Howard said in a telegram his network was ready to offer a higher bid, but he did not disclose how much.

In the telegram to John M. Wilkins, chairman of the Lake Placid Winter Olympic Organizing Committee's TV and Marketing Committee, Howard said, "NBC is prepared to make a higher bid than the ABC bid, which has been reported in press accounts. NBC is seeking the opportunity to make this bid and have it considered fairly on the merits. Please advise promptly where and when we can meet to discuss this further. Respectfully, Robert T. Howard."

A copy of the telegram was sent to International Olympic Committee President Lord Michael Killanin.

Howard also sent a separate telegram to Killanin:

"Since you have advised us you were making inquiries into a reported agreement between the Lake Placid committee and ABC for the sale of television rights for the 1980 Winter Games, we have heard nothing further from the IOC or the Lake Placid Committee. We have sent the following telegram to the Lake Placid Committee (the text of the above telegram).

"In accordance with the assurances you have made that broadcasters would have the opportunity fairly to compete for the television rights to the 1980 games, we urge you to act promptly to afford opportunity to those interested in bidding for those rights and to have those bids fairly considered on the merits."

Gene Walsh, NBC's vice president for public affairs, said the network is prepared to include in its offer technical requirements for a world signal.

Greg Kohls With Trotters

STONE RIDGE — Greg Kohls, a former basketball star at Roosevelt High School in Dutchess County, will be in the lineup for the New Jersey Reds when they take on the Harlem Globetrotters Tuesday, March 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the Senate Gym at Ulster County Community College.

Kohls, a Hyde Park resident, played on the Roosevelt High basketball team from 1965 to 1968 and holds the Section One record for scoring with 51 points in one game. In his final season at Roosevelt, he scored 630 points and established a record by netting 126 points in three games, also a Section One record.

After graduating from Roosevelt, Kohls went to Syracuse University where he also starred in basketball. At Syracuse, he was named to the All-East team and the Helms Foundation All-American team.

Kohls broke Dave Bing's Syracuse scoring record, averaging 26.7 points a game, and finished his collegiate career as the seventh leading scorer in the nation.

Kohls was drafted by the St. Louis Hawks and Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association. He also played pro ball in Europe before joining the Jersey Reds.

The 6-2 Roosevelt alumnus isn't playing for the Reds for only his scoring ability. He is also a fine ball handler and a guard who knows how to move, a team leader who will drive the offense.

Tickets for the game can be purchased from the Senate Shop on the UCCC campus; Valley Gardens in Accord; Kaye Sports, Kingston; Carvel Ice Cream Store and Mammoth Mart in Mammoth Mall; Smith's Hardware Store in Saugerties; Abrams Music Store in Kingston and Randall Grocery store on Lucas Avenue extension.

Betting Gains In Rhode Island

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — A bill to legalize limited betting in Rhode Island on three professional sports has picked up support from some of the legislature's top Democratic leaders.

The measure, introduced Thursday, would allow the state Lottery Commission to sell multiple-game wagering cards on professional football, basketball and hockey.

House Speaker John J. Skiffington said he expects pro sports betting to be legalized eventually in Rhode Island.

"If it don't come this year, it's gonna come next year," he said. "Other states like Massachusetts and Connecticut are moving in the same direction, so I don't think we should be left at the post."

Skiffington said it would "bring additional revenue into the state of Rhode Island which is badly needed at this time."

Rep. William G. Grande, the bill's principal sponsor, said he envisions betting cards requiring picks on at least three of nine listed games, with a greater payoff for successful bettors who pick more games.

Perry's Score Fifth Victory

KINGSTON—Perry's scored their fifth win in eight starts with a 110-95 victory over Joyous Lake in the YMCA "A" Basketball League. It was the Lakers' second straight loss and put them at 3-5 in the standings.

John McAuliffe engineered the Perry victory with a 41-point explosion and 29 rebounds for one of the season's best all-round performances in the Y league. Pistol Pete Koola had 27 and Jerry Hawkins and Scott Miller had 16 each.

Rod Chando maintained his league leading status with 41 points and Ted Wood rimmed 27 points and 23 rebounds for the Lakers. Victor Gold added 16.

Perry's led only 48-46 at the half but outscored the Lakers 62-49 after the recess.

Expect Report On Horse Fire

EAST PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The state fire marshal's office says it hopes to have a report within the next few days on Monday's deadly fire at Narragansett Park horse race track.

At last count, 26 horses died in the blaze that swept through two wooden stables.

State and East Providence fire officials are checking reports of arson but as yet have found no evidence the fire was set, according to Chief Deputy State Fire Marshal Earl Shannon.

The East Providence fire department received a rash of calls claiming the fire was set but most were from "cranks and kooks," according to Capt. Robert Sauer.

Fire officials found no substances that might have been used to ignite the fire, but a match could have set off the blaze, Sauer said.

A small portable heater was found in the tack room of the barn where the fire started, he added.

Officials planned to have a list of dead horses and an estimate of their value today.

Kingston's Ron Reedy Competes Against Poles

KINGSTON — Kingston High School wrestler Ron Reedy has qualified for an Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) international match against a team from Poland.

Reedy, who won the Dutchess County Scholastic League title at 138 pounds and placed third in the Section One Divisional meet, will compete with the Adirondack AAU Juniors against the Polish Junior Olympic team April 12 at upstate Amsterdam.

To earn a berth in this pretigious event, Reedy finished first in his weight class at the 10th annual AAU Junior Olympic Trials sponsored by Chevrolet at Burnt Hills High School

Ready won all eight of his matches during the Burnt Hills event, two coming by pins, two by superior decision. Enroute to the title, Reedy defeated two sectional champs, one from Section Two, the other from Section Seven.

KHS coach Dean Short noted that this is believed to be the first time in Kingston wrestler has qualified for international compeittion.

County Reports Heavy Tourist, Fishing Interests

KINGSTON—More than 1,000 responses to free publicity and advertising in metropolitan areas promoting the fishing season and historic sites in the travel and vacation sections have already been received by the Ulster County Resort Information Office of the County Legislature.

Responses in the hundreds are coming in the mails daily from people seeking Ulster County fishing and historic sites information which indicates that the Mid-Hudson Valley and Ulster County in particular can expect a tremendous Bicentennial year in tourism, according to Albert Cawein, County Public Relations Director.

The names are available in packets of 100 to any resort or related tourism business in Ulster County wishing to send out their literature to these prospects. The inquiry lists include people in the New York Metropolitan area, Connecticut, New Jersey, Long Island, the lower Hudson Valley and Westchester and other surrounding states. Those requesting lists should send a 13-cent stamp for each 100 requested to cover cost of postage.

Interested resort owners or those in tourism related businesses, may contact Cawein, at the County Office Building, Kingston, or they may call in person and pick up as many lists as they can handle. There is no charge.

Last year was a good year for tourism business and it has been estimated that more than $20 million was poured into the local economy by hunters, fishermen, skiiers and other vacationers.

Using this as a base figure, there is no reason why the tourism gross for 1976, the Bicentennial Year, should not reach $50 million. The numbers of inquiries we are receiving now give every indication that this could happen, Cawein said. This figure, including food and lodging also includes entertainment, county attractions, liquor, soft drinks, gasoline and oil, auto services, souvenirs, clothing and tolls among others.

'Face in the Crowd

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bill Putch is a man with many irons in the show business fire but who seldom collects a crowd in public.

His face and unusual surname are virtually unknown, but he is a man well worth knowing nonetheless.

Putch is producer, director, actor, restaurateur, writer and theater operator.

He is comparatively new to the Hollywood scene, having moved here only four years ago. There is nothing strange in that except almost all of Putch's work is in Pennsylvania.

"I've operated the Totem Pole Playhouse in Fayetteville (Pa.) for 28 years," he said modestly. "During that time I've produced 228 plays. Directed most of them myself.

"We've introduced such stars as Sandy Dennis, Barbara Feldon, Keir Dullea and Andy Prine. I love the theater, but we operate only from June to September."

Putch is a bald man with a wide smile and girth to match. He and his wife, Jean, have been married almost 20 years and he might be considered the perfect husband.

He and Jean have appeared in scores of his Totem Pole productions.

Asked why a man with so many interests in Pennsylvania would live in California, Putch said, "Well, my wife likes it out here and she does quite a bit of work in Hollywood."

It was for Jean's sake that he moved to Hollywood, enhancing her acting career.

Jean Putch is not a world renown name either. But she is charming, a fine dramatic actress and the most beloved comedienne in the united States today.

If the name Jean Putch doesn't ring a bell, you might know her by her maiden name, Jean Stapleton, none other than the lonv suffering dingbat of "All In The Family." n

Sweet as she is off screen, it is no easy thing for a man to be married to a celebrity of Miss Stapleton's magnitude. Yet Putch has managed very well indeed.

"It's a lot of work just keeping up with her," Putch said. "Sometimes I think I ought to own at least two tuxedos to attend all the functions and award shows she attends. Jean doesn't go out to be seen. She thinks it's a duty to support show business affairs.

"She wears contact lenses and I spend a lot of time at some banquets trying to find them.

"She is, of course, better known than I am, so I keep getting re-introduced to people who remember her but don't remember me.

We invite you to join with us in the restoration and renovation of one of the most important Historic Communities in the United States, the Rondout section of Kingston. Nine yrs. after Jamestown and four yrs. before Plymouth Rock, the Dutch founded a settlement in the vicinity of Post and Abeel Sts. The bicentennial is a fit year to inaugurate a program of investment and rehabilitation in what should be one of America's most distinguished and historic communities and equal to, if not superior to Jamestown, Williamsburg, Georgetown and Mystic.

We offer 37 properties for sale or long term lease in Rondout.

Please call us at 338-4680 and ask for Roger, Barbara, Norma or Herta.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, MARCH 27

Your birthday today: Success this year relates to optimistic approaches, as you find yourself liberated from old limitations. Don't try to return to previous comfortable situations. Anything else within reason promises well. Relationships run in rapid repetitive cycles; be selective about getting involved. Today's natives have effective peculiarities in their manner of speech, and often rely too much on talk.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Relax. A long cycle is ending and you are on the faint beginnings of the upsweep. A new way of viewing old problems comes through meditation.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Attend to business first; be firm about details. Afterwards, socialize with friends. Welcome new people into your set. Romantic intrigue is possible.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Communications on philosophic, religious and intellectual topics are favored. Today's fanciful thought may become a reality. Enjoy a party tonight.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Professional advice brings fresh perspective. Projects advance rapidly, often with multiple results. People honestly believe the erroneous things they tell you.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Hold on to realistic approaches and avoid impulsive promises. You have much news to catch up on. Be selective in choosing leisure-hour company.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: A serious mood is useful. Reevaluate your basic circumstances modestly, then build up. Reconcile discrepancies. Make amends where indicated.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Work hardest at whatever will benefit you the most financially. Complete the bothersome task. Old habits give way to new as your inner being reorients itself.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Step right up and ask for what's coming to you. Pleasure goes along with successful business. If you finish in time, pleasure is for its own sake.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Attention to other people's activities tips you off as to what is worth knowing and what to pass up. Get busy on obvious tasks to improve your situation.

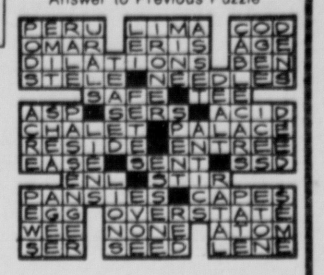

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Gamble a bit if you must, but not more than you can afford to lose. Stop early, while you're ahead. Share social pastimes of educational value.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: The story is either superlative or disappointing. Ask questions. Get a consensus and then make up your mind.

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

KISSING: (Q.) I would really like to know if 14 is old enough to be kissing a boy. I read your column all the time and I agree with most all your views and opinions, so I want to ask you what you think.—Not Sure in Pennsylvania

(A.) Some girls are ready to kiss some boys at 14. Some girls are not ready to kiss boys until they are 16, some not until 18, some not until even later than that.

I believe that if you were ready you would not have written.

Do not kiss a boy because one of your 14-year-old friends is kissing a boy or boys and you think you should be doing what she is doing.

Kiss a boy only when it seems natural and rewarding, to you and to him. For you, this time may be very close, or it may not be for years.

If I could be more precise I would. But I can't. That is the way kissing is. Very personal.

BREAKING UP: (Q.) Just because you break up with a boy doesn't mean you don't like him anymore, does it? I broke up with Glen because I did not want to get too serious with him, but my feelings toward him have not changed.

I am in love with him, I thnk he just thinks of me as a friend. I would like to go out with him again and show him that I love him and am really sorry I broke up with him.

Our age, in case you might need to know, is 13. He is the only boy I want to go out with. Without him I'm lost. I truly love him.

Could you please tell me how to get him back?—In Pain in Pennsylvania

(A) Breaking up does not necessarily change the way a girl feels toward a boy. It is only a step. After she breaks up for the reason you did, she should turn her thoughts in other directions.

You have not done that. You have stopped going out wit Glen, but you have not stopped thinking about him. He is still the center of your thoughts.

You have two choices. You can get interested in another boy, or you can try again with Glen. I advise the first course. At your age, one boy should not be all-important to you.

If you are determined, however, to try again, tell Glen you are sorry you did what you did. He may ask you to go out with him again. If he doesn't don't chase him.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

Opening lead — Q ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

West's queen of spades is allowed to hold the first trick. He continues the suit and dummy is in with the king.

A low diamond is led and it is up to you to play from the East hand. What do you play?

If you have been reading this week's articles, you should have no problem. You play your ace of diamonds. Second hand high!

This play is not at all hard to make in a bridge column. It is much tougher at the table, yet any expert worth his salt would make it.

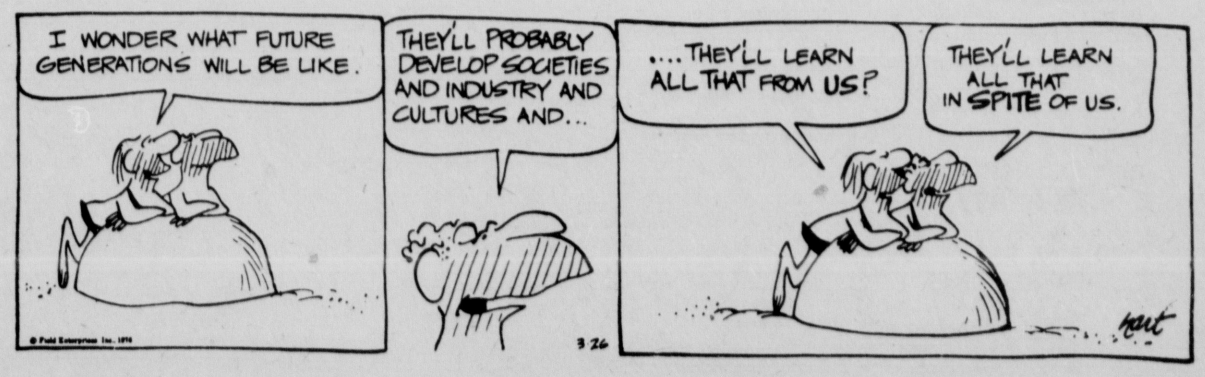

He can see that the only way to beat three notrump will be for his partner to score some spade tricks. He can also see that West can't hold much in high cards. But he can be looking at the king or queen of diamonds and it is up to East to let him keep that high diamond in his hand until the ace of spades is knocked out.

SATURDAY, MARCH 27

Your birthday today: Success this year relates to optimistic approaches, as you find yourself liberated from old limitations. Don't try to return to previous comfortable situations. Anything else within reason promises well. Relationships run in rapid repetitive cycles; be selective about getting involved. Today's natives have effective peculiarities in their manner of speech, and often rely too much on talk.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Relax. A long cycle is ending and you are on the faint beginnings of the upsweep. A new way of viewing old problems comes through meditation.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Attend to business first; be firm about details. Afterwards, socialize with friends. Welcome new people into your set. Romantic intrigue is possible.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Communications on philosophic, religious and intellectual topics are favored. Today's fanciful thought may become a reality. Enjoy a party tonight.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Professional advice brings fresh perspective. Projects advance rapidly, often with multiple results. People honestly believe the erroneous things they tell you.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Hold on to realistic approaches and avoid impulsive promises. You have much news to catch up on. Be selective in choosing leisure-hour company.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: A serious mood is useful. Reevaluate your basic circumstances modestly, then build up. Reconcile discrepancies. Make amends where indicated.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Work hardest at whatever will benefit you the most financially. Complete the bothersome task. Old habits give way to new as your inner being reorients itself.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Step right up and ask for what's coming to you. Pleasure goes along with successful business. If you finish in time, pleasure is for its own sake.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Attention to other people's activities tips you off as to what is worth knowing and what to pass up. Get busy on obvious tasks to improve your situation.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Gamble a bit if you must, but not more than you can afford to lose. Stop early, while you're ahead. Share social pastimes of educational value.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: The story is either superlative or disappointing. Ask questions. Get a consensus and then make up your mind.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

KISSING: (Q.) I would really like to know if 14 is old enough to be kissing a boy. I read your column all the time and I agree with most all your views and opinions, so I want to ask you what you think.—Not Sure in Pennsylvania

(A.) Some girls are ready to kiss some boys at 14. Some girls are not ready to kiss boys until they are 16, some not until 18, some not until even later than that.

I believe that if you were ready you would not have written.

Do not kiss a boy because one of your 14-year-old friends is kissing a boy or boys and you think you should be doing what she is doing.

Kiss a boy only when it seems natural and rewarding, to you and to him. For you, this time may be very close, or it may not be for years.

If I could be more precise I would. But I can't. That is the way kissing is. Very personal.

BREAKING UP: (Q.) Just because you break up with a boy doesn't mean you don't like him anymore, does it? I broke up with Glen because I did not want to get too serious with him, but my feelings toward him have not changed.

I am in love with him, I thnk he just thinks of me as a friend. I would like to go out with him again and show him that I love him and am really sorry I broke up with him.

Our age, in case you might need to know, is 13. He is the only boy I want to go out with. Without him I'm lost. I truly love him.

Could you please tell me how to get him back?—In Pain in Pennsylvania

(A) Breaking up does not necessarily change the way a girl feels toward a boy. It is only a step. After she breaks up for the reason you did, she should turn her thoughts in other directions.

You have not done that. You have stopped going out wit Glen, but you have not stopped thinking about him. He is still the center of your thoughts.

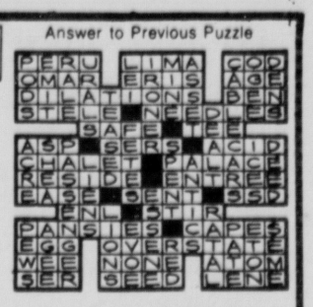

You have two choices. You can get interested in another boy, or you can try again with Glen. I advise the first course. At your age, one boy should not be all-important to you.

If you are determined, however, to try again, tell Glen you are sorry you did what you did. He may ask you to go out with him again. If he doesn't don't chase him.

West's queen of spades is allowed to hold the first trick. He continues the suit and dummy is in with the king.

A low diamond is led and it is up to you to play from the East hand. What do you play?

If you have been reading this week's articles, you should have no problem. You play your ace of diamonds. Second hand high!

This play is not at all hard to make in a bridge column. It is much tougher at the table, yet any expert worth his salt would make it.

He can see that the only way to beat three notrump will be for his partner to score some spade tricks. He can also see that West can't hold much in high cards. But he can be looking at the king or queen of diamonds and it is up to East to let him keep that high diamond in his hand until the ace of spades is knocked out.

Ancient Traver Hollow Bridge . . . the Rx Will Be Costly

WEST SHOLAN—The New York City Environmental Protection Administration, in a letter to Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey D-101st, states that it has spent more than $900,000 on the safety inspection and repair of the Traver Hollow Bridge since last June.

Robert A. Low, director of the city's EPA, in a memorandum dated March 22, states that the city originally planned to effect repairs on all six bridges around the Ashokan Reservoir, maintaining traffic by keeping at least one lane of every bridge open. The city let an inspection contract with the firm of Ammann and Whitney at an estimated cost of $160,000 of which $33,500 was earmarked for the Traver Hollow Bridge.

"On June 5, during initial phases of the repair work on the Traver Hollow Bridge columns," Low wrote, "deterioration far greater than had been aniticipated was discovered. It was determined by Ammann and Whitney that a potentially dangerous situation existed and that the bridge should be closed to all traffic pending further investigation."

Ammann and Whitney recommended the hiring of another firm to run further tests on the Traver Hollow Brodge. On Sept. 9 the firm of Muenow and Associates was authorized to perform tests. That firm completed its report and forwarded it to Ammann and Whitney in early November, according to Low.

A report of Nov. 17 indicated the roadway on the Traver Hollow Bridge "had lost virtually all of its strength and should be replaced." The report further noted serious deterioration in the upper columns of the bridge. Heavy use of salt has been blamed for the deterioration of the steel reinforced concrete bridge. It was built some 70 years ago.

On Dec. 19, 1975, work commenced on Phase II of the testing project, the use of ultrasonic beams in an effort to determine interior strength of the support beams on the bridge. That testing was completed Jan. 28, 1976 and a final report was sent to the city EPA on March 5, 1976.

"As you can see from the above chronology," Low wrote Hinchey on March 11, "the city of New York is proceeding as fast as humanly possible to determine the best course of action to take to restore the Traver Hollow Bridge to service, consistent with public safety. This can be verified by reading the opinion of Justice George L. Cobb concerning an Article 78 proceeding brought by various residents affectrd by the closing of the bridge, dismissing their petition on the grounds that the city was ineffect proceeding as fast as can be expected."

Low said work on the other five bridges around the Ashokan is proceeding despite evidence of advanced deterioration that he says has cost the city an additional $500,000" and further changes might well be necessary."

"The engineering study, design, and construction supervision by Ammann and Whitney, plus the actual repair work on the six bridges have therefore already cost the city more than $3 million and the final solution for the Traver Hollow Bridge will increase that total substantially," Low wrote. The "final solution" he refers to is a $1.3 million estimate for a new Traver Hollow Bridge.

Marlow Move Is Attacked

BOICEVILLE—"We may have to pay Superintendent Dr. Frank Marlow's salary, but we don't want him working," Onteora School Board member Howard Lewis said today taking strong issue with Marlow's contention that he has been returned to full duty without restrictions.

Lewis labeled the statement, "untrue", explaining that there is nothing in Education Commissioner Ewald Nyquist's stay order which refers to restrictions.

Marlow, who was ousted in February by the board of education, said Wednesday that Commissioner Nyquist ruled he should be returned to his post pending full review of hearing transcripts.

Lewis contends that Marlow cannot be considered for reinstatement until after Nyquist reviews the case. "No final judgement has been made," Lewis said, standing by the board's contention that Marlow was dismissed because he "demonstrated he is unfit to occupy office."

The board has therefore appealed to Nyquist to vacate the stay order and "restore to the office of acting superintendent a competent administrator."

Lewis feels the commissioner's order merely returns Marlow to his $40,000-a-year post, but does not provide that he assume his full duties. Marlow has been on a paid leave from duty since Oct. 21 by board order. He attempted to enter his office March 11 but was met at the door by School Board Vice President John Mower, who claimed the commissioner's ruling didn't entitle Marlow to return to work. Marlow claims that several hours later State Education Department attorneys ruled that he should be allowed to resume his duties and he returned to work the following day without incident.

Lewis said that because there was ample evidence at the hearings that Marlow allegedly failed to give honest or complete reports to the board, the board members have required him to keep a file of copies of every memo, directive or correspondance that passes through his office. Also, "for the protection of the taxpayers, the board has taken business administration out of Marlow's hands," Lewis explained. He said the business administrator is now reporting directly to the board.

Udall Vote Is Possible

KINGSTON — Area Democrats still can vote for Rep. Morris Udall in the April 6 primary, despite the fact that the original slate pledged to Udall is off the ballot.

Janet C. Yallum, who headed the Udall slate in the 25th Congressional District, noted that recent stories in area media said that the Udall slate had been eliminated, which she acknowledged. "The Udall slate was taken off the ballot for technical reasons — it was withdrawn because the number of valid signatures on our nominating petitions totalled less than the required 1,250."

"However, after the withdrawal of Sen. Birch Bayh from active campaigning, a coalition slate was formed. The former Bayh slate in the 25th C.D, with the addition of one former Udall delegate candidate, is pleged to Morris Udall."

Mrs. Yallum urged that those Democrats who wish to support the man she termed "the leading progressive in the race" support the slate which includes Arthur Kass, Sandra Goldberg, Michael Murphy, Joseph Blum, Herbert Stoller and Nancy Gold. The ballot will identify the line as a Udall slate.

The 25th C.D. includes the City of Kingston and the Towns of Ulster, Saugerties, Esopus and Lloyd in Ulster County, as well as Dutchess and Putnam Counties and the northern part of Westchester. A Udall slate is also on the ballot in the 26th and 27th C.D.s, which include the rest of Ulster County. Anyone who has specific questions about Udall's stand on any issues should contact Mrs. Yallum

INTRODUCING AN OIL THAT SAVES YOU GAS.

Mobil 1 synthesized engine lubricant is an entirely new kind of motor oil.

It's man-made.

We created new molecules to build an engine lubricant that's tougher than ordinary motor oil.

Even though Mobil 1 looks like motor oil and smells like motor oil, it's really a revolutionary lubricant that outperforms ordinary motor oil.

Mobil 1 saves gas.

The first big advantage of Mobil 1 is that it saves gas. Mobil 1 lubricates the moving parts of your engine better than ordinary oil. Since it reduces friction and drag in the engine, you can get more miles out of every tankful of gas. In fact, Mobil 1 will give the average car up to 10 extra miles per tankful.

Mobil 1 saves oil.

But Mobil 1 does a lot more than just save gas. It also saves oil (if your engine's in good mechanical condition, of course). Mobil 1 doesn't evaporate as fast as ordinary motor oil, even at high engine temperatures. As a result, you use less oil. In both city and highway fleet tests, Mobil 1 cut oil consumption up to 25%.

Mobil 1 saves your engine.

Mobil 1 protects your engine better than ordinary motor oil. To prove it, we put Mobil 1 in a fleet of highway patrol cars for 12,000 miles. Then we tested the "used" Mobil 1 against ordinary motor oil. Mobil 1 still protected the engine like the brand-new ordinary oil.

And Mobil 1 not only helps your car's engine last longer. It helps it run cleaner. We've added a detergent to Mobil 1 that outperforms detergents found in ordinary oil. Our tests showed that with Mobil 1 you'll have less engine sludge.

Mobil 1 improves high temperature performance.

Ordinary motor oil thins out at very high temperatures. Mobil 1, however, will continue to spread a protective film over the moving parts of your engine even if the temperature on the outside is 110 degrees F. And the temperature inside the engine is 580 degrees F.

Mobil 1 improves cold weather starts.

In extremely cold temperatures, ordinary motor oil becomes so thick your engine can't turn over. But Mobil 1, even at 35 degrees below zero, will continue to flow and help you start your engine more easily.

So no matter what kind of car you drive, or how hard you drive it, or what kind of weather you drive it in, Mobil 1 is the best motor oil you can buy.

The oil that saves you gas.

Dutchess 'Dumps' Ulster

By Lynn Mulvaney

POUGHKEEPSIE—Dutchess County, which has to find by next Thursday a new place other than its airport to dump its unbaled garbage, will look for a new site "somewhere in its own county" instead of looking to Plattekill in Ulster County.

Dutchess County Executive Edward Schueler said he will research sites with an eye toward condemnation proceedings. The move came on the heels of a one-vote defeat of a proposed county contract with Dutchess Sanitation Service Inc. The board voted 17 to 14 (18 votes were needed for passage) not to contract with Dutchess Sanitation to bale refuse and cart it to the Dutchess County Airport at $6.90 per ton. The baling was to have taken place at a Van Wagner Road site in the Town of Poughkeepsie and transported to the airport, the county's present dumping site.

However, Joseph Fiorello who owns Dutchess Sanitation, reportedly implied that if a breakdown of his baler occurred, he would cart the Dutchess garbage to his privately-owned Plattekill landfill in Ulster County, according to Schueler.

A huge delegation of Plattekill residents appeared at the Thursday night meeting of the Dutchess County Board of Representatives to protest the proposed dumping in their town, feeling that if the airport landfill is closed next week Plattekill would become heir-apparent to the garbage.

"I don't blame them," Schueler said. "It is not correct to even look to Ulster County. If Ulster were looking to us, I'd have state troopers at the bridge."

An opponent of the proposed contract, Robert Robar, Dist. 6, Town of Poughkeepsie, voted against the proposal with Dutchess Sanitation because there was no backup or alternative to the baling; because the airport site is not prepared for baled dumping April 1; and because there is a law suit pending, brought by Town of Poughkeepsie against Dutchess Sanitation for alleged violation of zoning laws.

Robar suggests that each town now solve its own refuse problems or that the county establish its own baling facility. He said he does not feel an interim solution is the county's responsibility.

Schueler, however, feels the towns and villages should "fend for themselves" until such time as the county researches a new site.

The airport facility is being closed to dumping of unbaled garbage due to the Federal Aviation Administration's warning that it would close the airport unless the dumping ceased. The loose garbage, a great attraction for birds, poses a safety problem, FAA said.

The Plattekill site has also been recognized as a possible dumping site for City of Kingston garbage. The town has been mentioned as the possible dumping ground for Spada Sanitation Inc. which was recently awarded a contract to haul 400 tons of garbage a week.

The Jury's Still Out On County Construction

KINGSTON—Enveloped in an austerity program in which just about everything from paper clips to personnel is frozen, Ulster County must now ponder what to do about the capital construction projects it has contemplated, underway or just beginning.

Until the emergency financial program was unanimously apporved earlier this week, the county had at least five projects on the drawing boards, under construction or planned for a future date.

One .project, .the New Paltz pool, is nearing completion, Another, the renovation of the Court House on Wall Street and conversion of the old County Jail into courtroom and office space ahs had its contract awarded, nd demolition bids are expected next week for the old Buick garage, the site of a proposed paid parking facility. Although plans have been drawn for a new administration building for the highway deprtment and proposals have been made for an addition to the new infirmary, the county has taken no concrete steps have been made toward either.

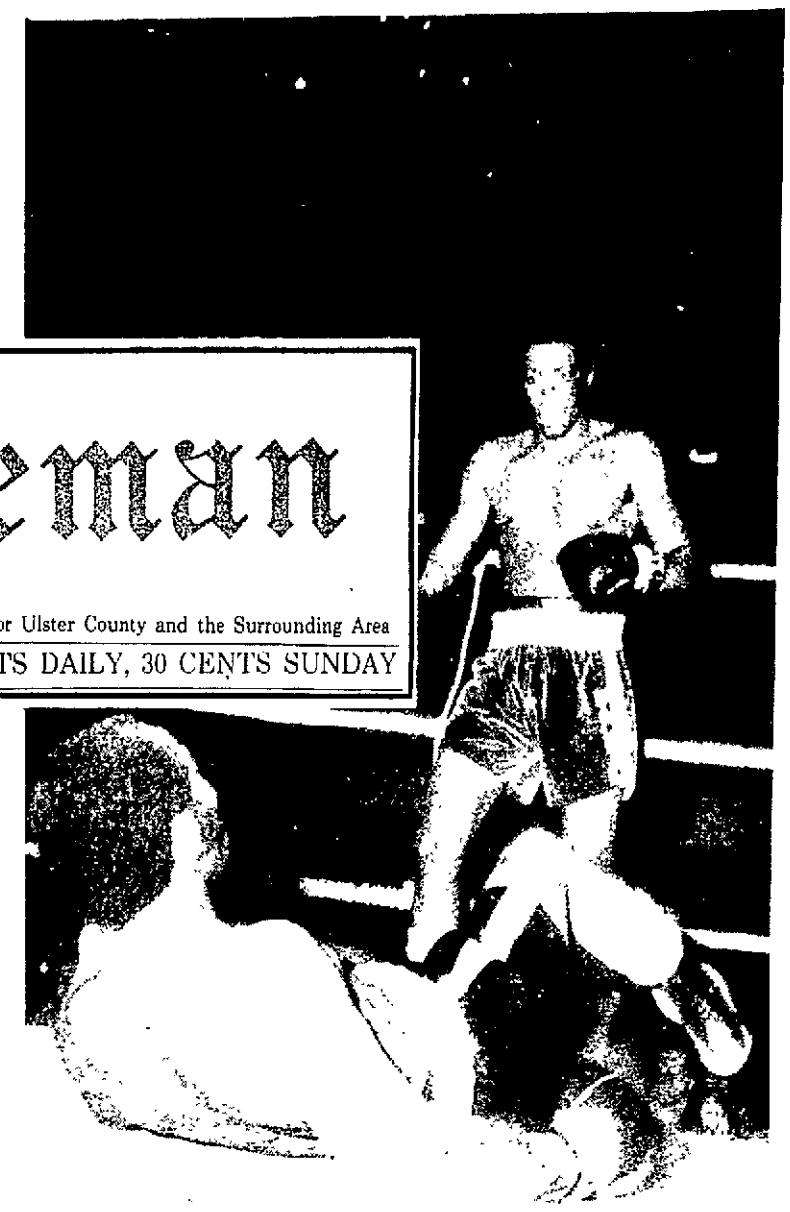

Those projects already underway including the pool and the jail renovation, will be completed, Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Dist. 8, said Thursday. Much of the money for those projects will come from federal revenue sharing funds and the balance from county ources but just how much of each has yet to be finalized Savago said, explaining that a study is presently in progress in view of the changing financial conditions. For instance, the Court House bids came in many thousands of dollars under estimate; therefore, some of the excess funds allocated to one project may be diverted to another, as needed.

Savago sees the highway administration building as one project which can be delayed or abandoned. The pool is completed and filled with water but other buildin construction at the site and finishing touches to the pool decks are among the things still to be completed, according to county contracts.

Demolition of the garage property adjacent to the Ulster County Office Building will be carried out since the bids ahve already been advertised and not a gread deal of money is involved. The present Buick garage is seen as a safety hazard and legislators feel it ould be in the interests of the ounty to emolish it. Savago also pointed out that the property will become income-producing when the parking lot is completed and he sees it as a profitable venture rather than a financial burden.

Meetings are being held now by the various committees involved in the building projects according to Kenneth Whispell, county superintendent of buildings. Once all cost factors nd priorities are taken into consideration, the county plans to make know the status of th e projects.

The question of building an addtion to the ounty Infirmary may hinge on state mandates. The ounty has been notified by the State Health Department that it cannot continue to use the old TB Hospital as a health-related facility and plans to use the building for its welfare department.

NEVER FELT IT . . .Randy Milton appears to have Beau Whyms at his mercy during their junior welterweight bout Thursday night at the Municipal Auditorium, but it was merely a slip that caused Whyms to hit the canvas. Beau recovered from the temporary setback and battled Milton to a draw. The fight card, which contained five action-packed contests, drew the largest crowd yet since the sport returned to town leaving ringside observers to agreee that boxing is here to stay. Dragnet for Paltz Robbers

By Matt Spireng

NEW PALTZ—A massive night-long manhunt for three armed robbers who fled with some $3,300 in cash from the New Paltz Shop-Rite supermarket late Thursday wound down somewhat at mid-morning today, but state and local police, using roving patrols, continued to seek the trio, considered "armed and very dangerous," in the New Paltz area.

The huge manhunt, conducted from the air, using a helicopter, and on the ground, with roadblocks and building-to-building searches, was launched following the 11:35 p.m. robbery.

State police said three black males, all believed to be in their mid-twenties, entered the Shop-Rite store on Route 299. Brandishing two shotguns and one handgun, the trio collected $3,300 in cash from employes on duty.

The three jumped into a car in the store's parking lot, but in their haste to flee the scene, they ran the car across a roadway and into a deep ditch, authorities said. Leaving one shotgun behind in the vehicle, the trio fled on foot into a nearby wooded area off South Putt Corners Road, near the Thruway.

State police and New Paltz police threw up roadblocks around the area and teams of police went from house to house attempting to locate the trio. At daybreak, the state police helicopter hovered in the sky over the area where the three were last seen, but later returned to its base in Middletown when nothing was found. The roadblocks, no longer considered useful according to one investigator, were also later taken down. Roving patrols remained in the area, however.

Police described three holdup men as follows: one was about 6-feet, 4, wearing a black jacket; the other two were both said to be about 5-feet, 10, with one wearing a beige sweater. None were masked at the time of the robbery.

Highland State Police Senior BCI Investigator Roger Gardner said authorities are investigating the possibility that Thursday night's robbery is connected with similar armed holdups last September and October at the New Paltz Shop-Rite and the Highland Grand Union supermarket.

In the September holdup at the New Paltz Shop-Rite, two black males armed with sawed-off shotguns confronted workers and customers and fled with some $1,200.

In the October robbery in Highland three black males, one armed with a shotgun, made off with $6,500 from the Grand Union store.

In January, Linwood Spearman, 35, of 25 South Miller Street, Newburgh, was charged by state police with first degree robbery in connection with the September holdup. Last month he was released after an Ulster County Grand Jury dismissed the charge.

Another Nickel

The new controversial 20-minute parking meters on Wall and North Front Streets in the uptown Kingston Stockade area are being installed this week. One of the first customers was Frank Ferraro of Saugerties shown putting his nickel in for 10 minutes of parking. Two nickels or a dime are required for 20 minutes. The short parking time was implemented in order to keep a flow of traffic moving in the shopping area. (Freeman photo)

Pinch Prostitute Promoter

KINGSTON—A 48-year-old Kingston man who authorities said allegedly offered two teenage girls ages 13 and 15, for the purposes of prostitution, was arrested Thursday nigh' on multiple felony and misdemeanor charges after allegedly delivering the two girls to state police undercover investigators at an undisclosed motel outside the City of Kingston.

BCI investigators charged Samuel Rauch of 38 Furnace Street, Kingston, with two counts each of promoting prostitution in the first degree, a misdemeanor, and incest, a felony, and with one count of endangering the welfare of a child, a misdemeanor.

The two teenage girls were charged with juvenile delinquency (prostitution) and were placed in juvenile detention facility pending action in Ulster County Family Court.

Rauch was taken before Hurley Town Justice C. H. DuMond and was ordered held at the Ulster County Jail on $5,000 bail pending further court action.

Authorities said the arrests were made at about 10 p.m. after Rauch allegedly solicited and received money from an undercover investigator in return for promised sexual favors of the two girls. The "fee" was reportedly $150.

Police said the investigation was begun by Hurley BCI Investigators Wayne Beyea and Robert Stabile, who were assisted by Hurley BCI Investigator Frank Petraglia, Middletown BCI Investigator Robert King and Trooper Maureen Gardinier.

'War of Genocide' in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Moslem leftists battled rightwing Christians across Beirut and the Mt. Lebanon countryside today in what one newspaper described as a "war of genocide."

In the capital, raging fires and furious artillery barrages tinted the skies the color of blood and left the streets littered with corpses.

Mrs. Hearst Blames Terrorism

SAN FRANCISCO — Patricia Hearst's mother said it was impossible for her daughter to get a fair trial because the public has failed to understand the potency of terrorism in the United States.

Mrs. Catherine Hearst said Thursday in an interview with the Chicago Tribune that her daughter was "the first civilian casualty of the terrorist assaults in this country."

Claims Their Policy Erred

TEL AVIV, Israel — Defense Minister Shimon Peres today blamed 28 years of misguided Israeli policy for the recent wave of Arab protests on the occupied West Bank of Jordan and within Israel itself.

"Israel has erred for 28 years in its attitude to its Arab minority," Peres said in an interview with the newspaper Ma'ariv.

Ford Halting Its Lines

DETROIT — Ford Motor Co. will begin the complex task of stopping its auto assembly lines next week because of a strike at a key manufacturing plant that eventually could idle more than 150,000 workers.

The first assembly plants to be closed are the Dearborn, Mich., and Metuchen, N.J., idling 4,675 workers. They will be closed all of next week even if the labor dispute is settled.

Leftist Parties Outlawed

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Argentina's new military government has outlawed five leftist parties in a move to check opposition and announced the country's next president will come from the armed forces.

In a new law decreed late Thursday, the government announced that a three-man junta made up of the commanders of the army, navy and air force will be the country's supreme governing body and the president "will be a high ranking officer of the armed forces appointed by the military junta."

This Veto Favors Israelis

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United States has vetoed a Security Council resolution criticizing Israel's administration of occupied Arab territory, prompting Arab charges the vote was motivated by election year politics.

Newly appointed U.S. Ambassador William W. Scranton, who earlier criticized Israeli policies, cast the veto Thursday after four days of debate. The Council's other 14 members, including the Soviet Union, voted for the resolution sponsored by five nonaligned nations.

South Africans Pulling Out

CALAI, Angola — South African troops completed preparations for their withdrawal from war-torn Angola today in exchange for assurances that vital water and power installations along the border will be protected.

The South African soldiers will leave this ramshackle town on the banks of the Kavango river — the international frontier between Angola and South West Africa (Namibia) — at 7 a.m. Saturday, closing the ferry that leads to Rundu in South West Africa.

There Is an Oasis for Spring Lake Area

KINGSTON—Members of the Ulster Town Board will be meeting with the Kingston Water Board on April 8 for a review of the Spring Lake water situation but indications are the water board won't budge from its 4-1 rejection of a petition to sell water to Spring Lake unless it is convinced that the town has exhausted every effort to get the water elsewhere.

The latest word on "elsewhere" is that up to two million gallons per day of top quality water could be available from the Rolling Meadows/Elmendorf Heights water company owned by Kendall Vogt.

"We're ready, willing and able to supply it," Vogt told the Freeman.

Whether or not the residents of some 60 homes in Spring Lake immediately adjacent to the city line are ready, willing and able to afford the difference in cost between hooking up to the city system 100 feet away and hooking up to Vogt's, perhaps half mile or more distant remains to be seen.

The difference in cost would be substantial given the limited tax base available from 60 homes. The latest figures on water pipe installation indicate a cost of around $30 a linear foot. Connecting to the Rolling Meadows/Elmendorf Heights system would cost a minimum of $80,000, based on linear feet. Indications are that a million-gallon water tower may be needed; figures on that have not been made available.

Town officials indicate, however, that the tax base could be broadened considerably by the inclusion of some other nearby areas that presently don't have water. A number of homes on Lucas Avenue have been mentioned along with other homes on a hill overlooking Spring Lake but not Hillside Acres itself which has its own water supply.

The idea of pumping water into the Spring Lake Area—specifically, Gulf Terrace, Saccoman Avenue and Catskill Avenue and to a lesser extent, Spring Lake Drive—is not a new one. The area has been victimized by impure water for at least 15 years.

Ten years ago a plan was put forth whereby water would be piped in from Elmendorf Heights and Hurley. Residents of that area successfully petitioned against it.

Since then the situation has changed somewhat. Vogt bought out the Elmendorf Water Company and in his words, "ours (Rolling Meadows) and Elmendorf function as one." The Vogt water company services 265 homes along with the Coleman High School and the Hudson Valley Quality Meat Plant on Hurley Avenue. "The engineers say we've got at least two million gallons," he said. "We don't use a fraction of that."

The emphasis the last few years has been on city water or as one town official put it, "Our first priority was getting Kingston water. Our second was getting it any way we could." City officials feel the town has its priorities reversed.

Town officials engaged the engineering firm o f Brinnier and Larios several months ago for a feasibility study. The results of that study are expected within a few weeks.

Residents of the affected area are aware of the study—it was detailed at a recent Ulster Town Board meeting—but apparently have little hope for it leading to solution to their problem. "We still think that joining the Kingston water system is the most economical way to go," said Kenneth Pillsworth, a spokesman for the Spring Lake residents.

Final Days of Nixon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Nixon, in the final phase of his days as President of the United States, was portrayed in newspaper and magazine accounts today as a man who drank to excess and was obsessed with suicide.

His wife, the quiet First Lady, also was reported to have sought solace in alcohol and began slipping down to the servants quarters at night and returning to her private bedroom with glasses full of bourbon

The New York Daily News and Time magazine based their reports of the final days of Nixon's reign at the White House on a soon to be published book by Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, the Washington Post reporters credited with breaking the Watergate scandal

Both publications reported that Nixon's drinking became a big problem in the summer of 1974 and the Daily News said Pat Nixon had confided to someone in the White House physician's office that she and her husband had not had sexual relations for the last 14 years of their marriage.

The reports said that Nixon became erratic and despondent and began drinking heavily despite a low tolerance for alcohol

The former President's son-in-law, David Eisenhower, according to the Daily News, was the source of a report in Time magazine that Nixon wandered through the White House saying "goodbye" to the portraits of his predecessors.

Ax Honed Again in 'Fun City'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mayor Beame has unveiled a new "tough" budget-balancing plan which includes the elimination of 8,500 city jobs, a 50 per cent cut in air pollution funds and the withdrawal of most municipal workers from the Social Security plan.

The mayor Thursday told a joint session of the Board of Estimate and City Council that his new city solvency plan called for spending cuts of $379 million in the coming fiscal year.

In addition, Beame's new timetable provides for cuts of $442 million in the 1977-78 fiscal year for a total of 821 million — the city's current estimated deficit.

"This is a tough plan," Beame said. "It means a further reduction of the work force and it offers nothing in the way of wage increases over the next two years."

Beame planned to submit the revised plan to the state-creatd Emergency Finanical Control Board today. Under state law, the city is required to balance its spending budget by the end of fiscal year 197778.

$100 Million Heroin Racket From Cell

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A 50-year-old retired master sergeant has been charged with running — from his federal prison cell — a $100 million heroin smuggling operation using military aircraft.

Authorities announced one of the largest heroin rings in the world was broken Wednesday with the arrest of 14 persons in North Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and California.

According to the indictments, the Thailand-to-America ring was headed by Leslie "Ike" Atkinson even after he was sentenced to federal prison in Atlanta last year on drug charges.

"I would say this organization would have to be classified as one of the largest heroin smuggling organizations in the world which directly affects the United States, particularly the East Coast," said Don Ashton, the chief Drug Enforcement Administration agent in North Carolina.

The six-page indictment charged the heroin was flown in from Thailand by unsuspecting Air Force transport crews and funneled through Atkinson's home at Goldsboro, N.C., for distribution on the East Coast.

The shipments allegedly came into the country at Seymour Johnson Air Force base in Goldsboro, Travis Air Force base in California and Langley Air Force base in Virginia.

Ashton said the operation had been going on "roughly seven years — since 1967. We've been working on it for some time. Over the years we've been knocking little chunks out of it various places.

The indictment said Atkinson "ran the organization from the United States with frequent trips to Thailand" and after he was jailed his daughter and son-in-law "did transmit messages to and from Leslie Atkinson and other members of the organization and assisted in running the Atkinson organization acting under the advice and orders of Leslie Atkinson."

The heroin bought by the "Atkinson organization," said the indictment, came from a Thai national identified as Luchai Ruviwat, known as "Chai."

Ashton said two of those charged, James Warren Smedley, 53, and Jasper Myrick Jr., 23, both among the military personnel allegedly involved, were jailed earlier by Thai authorities and were held at Khlang prison in Bangkok.

Leslie Atkinson Arrington, Atkinson's daughter, and her husband, Michael Otis Arrington, both 24, of Raleigh, were jailed in Raleigh on $250,000 bonds.

Nuclear 'First Use' Upheld

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has promised its allies for years that it would use nuclear weapons if necessary to assure their survival, senior state department officials have disclosed to Congress.

Thus, they said, for the United States to forswear "first use" of nuclear weapons would strike a blow at allied confidence and could encourage non-nuclear nations to acquire atomic weapons.

A House subcommittee heard this testimony as it considered a variety of resolutions calling on the Ford administration to renounce the "first use" of nuclear weapons.

"Over the years," said Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense James P. Wade, "we have given repeated assurances to our allies that nuclear weapons would be used in their defense, if needed to assure their survival."

He said denying the first use option "would tell all of our allies that we would be willing to see them suffer a conventional defeat without coming to their aid with nuclear weapons."

"It could convince them they must acquire their own nuclear weapons with all the attendant implications for nuclear proliferation," he said.

George S. Vest, director of the State Department's Bureau of Politico-Military Affairs testified Thursday: "We cannot ... categorically rule out the tactical use of nuclear weapons in response to major nonnuclear aggression if such an attack could not be contained by conventional forces."

This is a scenario which U.S. military planners have specifically envisioned in the event of an overwhelming Soviet bloc attack in central Europe against NATO countries, or across the 17th parallel on the Korean peninsula.

Soviet Lashes U.S. on Terror Acts

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union accused the United States today of backing "Zionist thugs" in acts of terrorism against Soviet interests in New York.

A spokesman at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow said this was the first time in his recollection that the Soviets had, in effect, accused American authorities of supporting the actions of the radical Zionist groups.

Previous protests, in which Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel Jr. has been admonished three times in recent days, had accused American officials of not trying hard enough to prevent the actions.

Referring to the placing of a bomb Thursday in the building of the Soviet trade organization Amtorg in New York, the Tass news agency said:

"Zionist thugs, enjoying the patronage of U.S. authorities, resort to new provocations."

Tass said directors of Amtorg "lodged a resolute protest with the U.S. authorities in view of the new outrage by the Fascist Zionist gangs, and demanded that drastic measures be taken immediately to put an end to the Zionists' criminal acts."

The bomb was safely removed from the building.

The embassy spokesman said the implication that Washington officially supports the Zionist groups apparently was in retaliation for accusations that the Soviet government instigated a campaign of harassment against the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

The campaign included a recent series of harassing telephone calls and a bomb threat that forced the evacuation of part of the embassy Thursday.

U.S. officials said they believe Soviet authorities are behind the harassment incidents.

The United States has protested officially in Moscow and Washington about the harassment campaign.

Coming amid heated SovietAmerican exchanges over Kremlin involvement in Angola and at a time when the two countries have been unable to draw up a new arms limitation treaty, the incidents were another indication of chilling relations between the superpowers.

The bomb scare came minutes after noon Thursday. A man speaking fluent English telephoned the embassy and told a Marine security guard: "I want to inform you that a bomb has been placed on the first floor of the embassy. It will go off at 12:27."

Questioned by the guard, the man said the device was "a block of C-4" — a type of plastic explosive — "with a timer and a detonator." Then he hung up.

Fifty persons — including 14 infants from a nursery — were evacuated from the basement and first two floors of the nine-story building, but no explosives were found.

The scare followed two nights of telephone calls to diplomats living outside the embassy compound. More than 20 officials received calls on Tuesday night alone.

Help for the Bench

KINGSTON—A second judge has been assigned to Ulster County Court for several weeks next month to help clear up the backlog in criminal cases.

Last December, with some 100 criminal ases pending going into the new year, County Judge Raymond J. Mino requested the assignment of a second judge.

Mino said Thursday that Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Staley Jr , administrative judge of the Third Judicial District (of which Ulster County is a part) has assigned Sullivan County Family Court Judge Louis Scheinman to handle county court cases beginning April 12. The assignment will last through the month.

According to Mino, some 60 to 70 cases are ready to go to trial.

Last year, Scheinman, Schoharie County Judge Robert Ecker and Greene County Judge John J. Fromer were assigned to Ulster County for periods of from two to four weeks to help clear up the backlog in criminal cases.

When he made his request for the assignment of a second judge, Mino noted that such assignments last year resulted in "a great deal of success" in reducing the backlog of cases.

Mino had cited the state's drug laws, which carry mandatory life prison sentences on major charges, as a major reason for the backlog.

Indict Two for Phoenicia Bar Brawl

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON—Two Greene County men allegedly involved in an attack on several patrons of a Phoenicia bar in February were indicted Thursday on three counts each of first degree assault.

Named in the indictment handed up in Supreme Court were Lawrence Fay, 26, and Raymond Lindsay, 30, both of Lanesville.

The two men were arrested Feb. 3 along with several companions following the incident that has been described as "something out of a horror movie—people stabbed and beaten without provacation" by authorities who investigated.

The incident at the Sportsman's Grill, Main Street, Phoenicia left five patrons injured, one of whom was stabbed in the back, allegedly by Lindsay. Another man had part of his ear severed. Five police officers were also reported injured when they attempted to arrest the alleged assailants in Lanesville after they fled the bar. Charges against several were also lodged in Greene County.

Meanwhile, others indicted Thursday included:

• Mrs. Nina Vanderlaan, 36, of Turkey Hill Road, Kerhonkson, on one count of second degree grand larceny for allegedly defrauding the Ulster County Social Services Department out of more than $5,000 in welfare payments over the past four years. She was arrested on the charge last September following an investigation by the special investigation unit of the Social Services Department.

• Peter Ferraro, 35, of Kingston, on one count of third degree burglary in connection with a Dec. 5, 1975 burglary at the Lagnaf Lounge, Foxhall Avenue, Kingston.

• Randolph Miller, 17; Martin Miller, 17; and Ronald Sneyd, 20, all of Wappingers Falls, and Michael Lamb, age and address not available, on one count each of third degree burglary for a July 13, 1975 at the Marlboro Bakery in which cash and checks in excess of $1,000 were reported taken.

The grand jury dismissed the following charges:

• Two counts of first degree robbery against Trevor Anthony James, 22, of Poughkeepsie, a sophomore at the State University College at New Paltz. The charges stemmed from two armed robberies on the campus at the college earlier this year. First Assistant District Attorney Michael Kavanagh explained that eye witnesses were unable to identify James, leading to the dismissal of the charges.

• Sexual abuse and attempted rape against Stanley Benner, 40, of Queens. Benner was arrested during January following an alleged attack on a woman guest at the Granit Hotel where he was also staying.

The grand jury asked that charge of driving while intoxicated against Mrs. Julie Ann Horvath, 36, of 30 Clinton Avenue, Ellenville, be returned to local court. Mrs. Horvath was arrested on the charge last month after her car struck Mrs. Arlene Sashin, 43, of 18 Sandra St nville. Mrs. Sashin was killed in the accident.

Arrest Napanoch Parolee For Holdup in Ellenville

Police Beat

By Matt Spireng

ELLENVILLE—A 31-year-old parolee from the Eastern Correctional Facility in Napanoch was arrested at his Ellenville home Thursday afternoon by a contingent of state and local police on a charge of first degree robbery in connection with a March 15 shotgun holdup.

The arrest culminated an intensive investigation by Ellenville State Police and Ellenville Village Police.

Authorities identified the suspect charged with the robbery as Mario Richard Morales of 9 Park Street, Ellenville. Police said he was on parole from Eastern Correctional Facility where he had been serving sentence for armed robbery.

The investigation began March 15 after Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kroop of Ulster Heights were robbed at their son's residence at 5 Warren Street. Police said the elderly couple had gone to their son's home to check it and were confronted by a man with a shotgun. The robber forced the couple to lie on the floor, tied the husband's hands with electric cord and fled with some $150 taken from the couple.

Thursday at about 3:30 p.m. a detail of state and village police under the direction of State Police Senior BCI Investigator James A. Fitzgerald and Village Police Chief George Sheeley arrested Morales at his residence.

Arraigned before Village Justice Ronald Elias, Morales was ordered confined in the Ulster County Jail without bail pending further court proceedings.

A 36-year-old Kingston man was charged with second degree assault Thursday after he allegedly broke a soda bottle in the face of a 44-year-old Town of Ulster woman at her residence.

John Myrick of 31 Gill Street, Kingston, was arrested on the felony assault charge by Ulster County Sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said he allegedly assaulted Earltine Paschall of Sunset Garden Apartments at about 2 p.m. She was treated for facial injuries at Kingston Hospital and was later released.

Myrick was jailed in lieu of $2,500 bail pending further court action.

New Paltz Police Thursday night arrested a 15-year-old female runaway from the Highland Training School on charges of first degree possession of stolen property and second degree grand larceny.

Police said the girl had stolen a 1973 Cadillac valued at $5,000 from the school grounds and ran it off Route 299 in New Paltz. The girl was turned over to school authorities.

Ulster County Sheriff's Department detectives late Thursday charged a 16-year-old Connelly youth with third degree burglary in connection with a break-in earlier this week at the Republic Marina in Connelly.

The youth, who was not identified because he is eligible for youthful offender treatment, allegedly took some $50 worth of fishing equipment, most of which was recovered, deputies said. He was jailed in lieu of $2,5000 bail.

Fire apparently of electrical origin damaged an unoccupied house on Stoll Road in Pine Grove late Thursday. Some 38 Centerville firemen battled the blaze from about 11:30 p.m. until 1:15 a.m. today. Fire Chief Warren Benz said the one-story house had been for sale. Fire damage was confined to the attic.

Group Care Petition 'All Messed Up'

By Hugh Reynolds

PORT EWEN—"The thing was all messed up. I figured the best way to go was start from scratch and go the whole route again."

That from Jonathan Wagman, chairman of the Esopus Zoning Board of Appeals on a petition for a variance to permit a group care facility at the McCauley House on Horton Lane.

Wagman blamed the McCauley family for some of the confusion at Wednesday night's ZBA public hearing at the town hall, attended by about 125 persons.

"They filed a petition with us stating that the St. Cabrini Home in West Park wanted to set up a youth care facility for youngsters 10 to 14 years old," Wagman said.

In fact, the organization seeking the variance was the Ulster County Chapter of the Association for Retarded Children and they wanted to set up group care home for "mildly mentally retarded" adults in the 20-40 age bracket.

Wagman said, "The people at Cabrini told me they first heard about it when Emeel Betros called them and wanted to know what was going on." Betros is the assemblyman who represents the 99th District which includes Esopus. He had gotten word that it was a state facility. It an't that, either.

A recent article in the Freeman added fuel to the fire and not a little bit of confusion. It dealt with an incident where a youth, described by police as a charge of the Cabrini Home, stole a car and smashed it up after leading police on high speed chase. The youth, Cabrini officials tell the Freeman, had been under their care for about week and a half. "We were doing the county a favor," said one source from Cabrini. "They didn't have any place to put the kid."

"People showed up at the public hearing waving that clipping," said Wagman. "They thought those kind of kids were going in there." Port Ewen has had serious problems with youthful vandalism the past few years.

Wagman said he didn't know what was going on, either, and he's the chairman. "It was an 11th hour thing," he said. "I thought we were dealing with a petition from St. Cabrini and I read in the paper at 6 o'clock (90 minutes before the hearing commenced) that it's the association children."

Wagman said he realized nothing could be accomplished by pursuing the "Cabrini petition" he had received from McCauley—"We thought about accepting an amendment to show that it wasn't really Cabrini, that it was ARC instead"—and decided it was best to start all over.

It will take another petition from McCauley and from ARC, another meeting of the County Planning Board and probably another month.

All parties concerned agree the wait should be worth it.

In a related matter, with the Association for Retarded Children the "real applicant" for the McCauley house, questions have been raised on when the Dr. Harris House on Broadway in Port Ewen, approved last fall as a short term treatment center for retarded adults, will be operational.

"We had hoped by April 1," Joseph Ryan, executive director of ARC, told the Freeman. "Obviously, we're not going to make it." Ryan said that training of personnel for the facility will be completed by next week and that furniture and equipment have been on order for some time. Renovation of the building to accommodate its new residents is expected to begin soon.

"All I can say is we'll be in there as soon as we can," said Ryan.

CSEA Talks 'Critical'

GOSHEN, N.Y. (UPI) — Negotiations in an effort to end a strike by Orange County Civil Service employes broke off early today, with neither side commenting.

The talks were scheduled to resume later in the day.

One union official said the negotiations had reached a "critical stage," the reason why no one would comment.

The strike, which began March 17, continued despite a court injunction barring the walkout.

During negotiations last Saturday with a Public Employment Relations Board mediator, the county legislature agreed to restore pay raises, which it previously refused to grant in the second year of an existing three-year contract. However, it rejected the union's demand for two 2 per ent raises spread over six months.

The River, in Depth, At Bear Mt. Seminar

BEAR MOUNTAIN—The Hudson River, its problems and projects to solve those problems will be discussed in depth at the Hudson River Environmental Society's fourth Hudson River Symposium Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at Bear Mountain State Park.

The symposium is designed to inform and orient lay people and scientists interested in the welfare of the river to current biological problems and programs involving the Huson.

Sunday's program, which begins at 1 p.m., will be chaired by Dr. Meril Eisenbud of New York University. It will include discussion on the health effects of PCB consumption and a review of a recent river study conducted by the Department of Environmental Conservation. The dinner speaker Sunday night will be Professor Leonard Dworsky of Cornell University, who will discus the Rockefeller Foundation's Hudson Basin Project.

Monday, papers will be presented dealing with the water quality of the Huson. The papers will be technically oriented, but of concern to the general public as well as the scientific community.

Tuesday's discussions will focus on the biological aspects of the Hudson and programs relating to the water-cooling systems of industries utilizing the river as a source.

Persons interested in attending any of the symposium programs can contact the Huson River Environmental Society, 675 West 252 Street, Riverdale, for information on reservations and registration fes. Reservations can be made either in advance or on the morning of each program. Reservations for Sunday's dinner must be made today.

The society held previous symposiums in 1966, 1969 and 1973.

All of the activities and programs during the three-day symposium will be held at Overlook Lodge.

Help The Red Cross

Remember when it was a familiar practice to take a bowl of soup to an ailing neighbor? Barn-raisings, quilting bees—there was time and the need to lend a hand.

Today, we rarely are aware of the wants of those around us—but society evolved a way of seeing to those in need. It's called the Red Cross.

Everyone expects them to be on the battlefield and in foreign lands when disaster strikes. But the Red Cross serves in a multitude of ways right here, at home, in the Hudson Valley.

They're there when the rivers rise. They'll bring urgent news to a far-off serviceman. They're available to help in whatever disaster we fall heir to.

If you haven't carried that bowl of broth to an ailing neighbor lately —reach in your pocket and help those who are dedicated to helping the Red Cross.

Life-Saving Nurse

Dear Editor:

Every so often something nice happens. Perhaps you can incorporate the material in the letters for your column.

LEN CANE
Chamber of Commerce

Dear Sir:

I was wondering if you could help me out on a very important matter. The wife, daughter, nephew and myself were in an accident that happened on Rt. 9 and Milton Turnpike, Dec. 21, 1974. The wife and daughter went through the windshield and both were cut, but the wife had a cut artery after an examinatiobn by a nurse at the scene. When the ambulance arrived, the wife and daughter were transported to Vassar Hospital and on the way this nurse held her thumb against the bleeding artery. This fine piece of work saved the wife's life and so I thought that the Chamber of Commerce would bestow a certificate upon her.

Sincerely yours,
JAMES PITTSLEY
Poughkeepsie

P.S.—The wife and I are going to get her a lapel pin with wording on the back and the Red Cross is trying to get her a Life Saving Medal and the presentation will be made some time in April at a Town Meeting at the Town Clerk's Office on 9W in Marlboro.

Editor's note: A follow -up letter was written by Mr. Pittsley after he learned the name of the registered nurse who saved his wife's life.

Maam:

It is real heart warming to know that you wish to offer an helping hand. It is greatly appreciated.

The short time it took the Town of Marlboro Volunteer Ambulance Corp. to get to the scene and the quick thinking and accurate diagnosis was the difference between life and death.

The registered nurse's name is Mrs. Mary Dilberto and she is attached to the Ambulance Corps in Marlboro on Rt. 9W.

Here's thanking you for your kind attention.

Sincerely yours,
JAMES PITTSLEY

Support For Morris

Dear Editor:

I was quite distressed to read the letter you recently printed admonishing Stephen Morris, the County Director of Probation, for accepting honorariums for lecturing at the New York State Correction Academy while employed by Ulster County.

Mr. Morris is a practicing professional, not dissimilar to a doctor, a lawyer, an engineer or for that matter a university professor. I have been associated with public and industrial education for a number of years and have had occasion to draw upon practicing professionals as lecturers on a frequent basis. The payment of honorariums to such lecturers is common place. Without their participation, trainning classes tend to be theoretical. They are decidedly far less effective, and lack a perspective on the real world. The benefits are by no means one way, as the interchanges between the lecturer and student have often provided a fertile spawning ground for innovative thoughts and creative approaches to our very real problems.

As a county resident and a taxpayer I am pleased that our director of probation is thought well enough of as a professional to be invited to lecturer at the New York State Corrections Acedemy. In addition, since Mr. Morris stated in an earlier article published by your newspaper that he had lectured on his personal time, I found the letters you printed to be totally unfair, unjustly accusing and completely devoid of the real issue at hand. The letters smack of a smear campaign written by individuals with self-serving interests.

Arm Yourself

Dear Editor:

Stop fooling yourself, in thinking just because we have law enforcing officers, that you will be free from crime. They cannot be at every house and business at the time of a crime. The only way is to protect yourself. Abolish all gun control laws because they mean nothing. All it does, is to cost fuel and time for the person getting their permits.

A safe country is a country with Arms.

God gave you hands and two feet. Use them, and stop depending on others to keep you safe and sound. Arm yourself!

"I am not interested" means your house cannot be touched by the outside world and that you don't care about your fellow beings.

Sincerely,

Those 'Sick' People

Dear Editor:

As I sit here reading today's paper, I am horrified and feel terrible at what happened to the seven month fawn.

I could cry from what I saw in the picture, who ever is responsible for the brutal murdering of something that brought joy to children of this town and others who went to the zoo, in my opinion should be either shot or hung and I hope the police find the person or persons who did it, for they are truly sick.

Not Man Made

Dear Editor:

May I remind Mayor Koenig and the Water Department that water is not man made. It was put on earth for all mankind from God who gives it freely—without it we die. In effect then, is the Mayor and the Water Department saying—Whom shall live and whom shall die? They should take care of these people in Spring Lake immediately out of common decency, or God help us all.

Sincerely,

Editor, The Freeman:

Dear Editor:

I believe that extra "lulu" payments, stipends or bonuses for legislators should be made unlawful and discontined this year. The salaries, expenses, travel pay, pension system and other fringe benefits are enough. If other areas of state government have to cut back, why not legislators?

Jerry Ford's Reflex

WASHINGTON—President Ford's sudden personal opposition last week to an antitrust bill his entire administration had long supported stemmed not from any ferocious lobbying campaign but from political reflexes developed by Gerald R. Ford over 25 years in Congress.

So, after nearly two years in the Oval Office, Mr. Ford has again revealed his distinctive resistance to change from the safe old ways of Capitol Hill.

For nearly two years, the administration had backed legislation authorizing the 50 state attorneys general to file antitrust suits for treble damages in federal courts in behalf of their citizens. Not until Jan. 17, the day before the bill reached the House floor, did Mr. Ford oppose it. Even though the House on Jan. 18 amended the bill to satisfy presidential objections before passing it, the probability is that Mr. Ford would still veto it.

While reopening old splits among House Republicans, this turnaround tells much about the President. This was no rerun of his reversal on the common situs picketing bill, when he yielded to massive lobbying and political pressure. This time, Mr. Ford instinctively responded to the big business position after a single telephone call from an old congressional colleague, scarcely considering the significant body of Republican opinion which feels the party must end its suicidal marriage with corporate business—or perish.

The Justice Department first supported the bill during the Nixon presidency. But shameless White House efforts to brand it a Nixon proposal are sheer nonsense. In truth, the measure never was put before either President.

It never had to go to the Oval Office because of unanimous approval inside the administration, with the Office of Management and Budget approving endorsement of the bill by the Justice Department's antitrust division. Inside the White House, the bill received clearance early this year from Mr. Ford's Economic Policy Board. Just one month ago, the Justice Department again formally endorsed the proposal.

Moreover, helping citizens recover damages from illegal price fixing fit Mr. Ford's State of the Union pledge to "strictly enforce the federal antitrust laws" in order to "foster competition and bring prices down for the consumer." Even some conservatives see reversion to Teddy Roosevelt Republicanism as a political imperative.

Although opposition from big business was tepid, its champions in Congress were active—particularly brainy Rep. Charles Wiggins of California, a relentless foe of the bill inside the Judiciary committee. Wiggins was not only lobbying the White House but talking to House Republican leaders, including Minority Leader John Rhodes of Arizona.

On March 10, Rhodes telephones Mr. Ford, his old comrade and predecessor as minority leader. That was the first the President had ever heard of the bill, and instinctive, visceral reaction was negative. He ordered his staff to restudy the bill, but it was clear Mr. Ford had made up his mind. No opposite recommendation came from Atty. Gen. Edward Levi, who, curiously, informed both Wiggins and Rhodes he agreed with them and not with his own antitrust division.

When the campaigning President met privately with businessmen in Chicago March 13, a corporate executive—not knowing he was preaching to the newly converted—urged Mr. Ford to oppose the treble damages bill. The President responded that businessmen ought to be more vocal in making their wishes known.

Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, the bill's principal Republican supporter on the Judiciary Committee, telephoned the White House to protest. "We are not the party of big business," McClory, a moderate conservative pleaded. "We are the party of the broad cross-section of the American people."

To no avail. When the President's March 17 letter to Rhodes opposed the bill, its Republican supporters were stunned. Rep. William Cohen of Maine, who backed the bill in the Judiciary Committee following Assistant Atty. Gen. Thomas Kauper's support for it, angrily suggested on the House floor that perhaps congressional committees should accept testimony only from cabinet members.

What followed was grimly reminiscent of 1974, when senior Republicans chided Cohen for his role in the Nixon impeachment proceedings. After Cohen charged the administration had "misled" the Judiciary Committee, the usually even-tempered Rhodes stalked into the cloakroom. Returning to the floor shortly thereafter, Rhodes engaged in a heated dialogue wih Cohen observable from the galleries and overheard by several Congressmen.

Will the President now sign the bill considering the changes adopted by the House? "He certainly should," McClory told us. But a key White House aide advised us the "serious reservations about the concept" remain. Against the unanimous approval of his staff and the judgment of shrewd Republican strategists, Jerry Ford is displaying the reflexive action of a party slowly suffocating in the embrace of big business.

Shah And The Oil

WASHINGTON—Secret intelligence reports warn that the shah of Iran, if he wanted to, could land his army in Saudi Arabia and annex its oil fields.

This possibility worries high-level U.S. officials. The shah, they realize is living beyond his means. For all his vaunted riches, he is deeply in debt. Iran has several billion dollars in bilateral and multilateral loans. The outstanding debt to the United States alone is over $1 billion.

Iran's oil reserves, meanwhile, are expected to last no longer than two decades. World demand for Iranian oil, at the same time, has fallen off sharply. This has left the shah embarrassingly short of money to pay for his grandiose dreams of a modern Persian empire.

He is burdened down, heaviest of all, with expensive armaments. The United States has sold him $8.6 billion worth of weapons during the past three years. The purpose has been to make the shah the protector of the Persian Gulf, the source of oil now needed to run America's factories and automobiles.

But some Arab nations, particularly Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, are beginning to wonder who will protect them from their protector. Intelligence reports tell of mounting tension in the vital Persian Gulf area.

The Pentagon's intelligence estimates, stamped "Secret-Sensitive," indicate that the shah's military machine could overwhelm Saudi Arabia. According to these documents, Iran has an Air Force of 75,000 men, including 645 pilots of whom 450 are trained to fly jets.

Saudi Arabia, in contrast, has a far smaller 15,000-man air force. Of these, 200 are pilots and only 90 are jet trained. The Saudis' 114 fighter planes would also be no match for the shah's 338 planes, which include 162 supersonic F-4 Phantoms.

Iran also has a fleet of 483 helicopters, many of them suitable for airlifting troops. Saudi Arabia has but 35 helicopters, all of them described as "utility" aircraft.

On the sea, the shah's 18,500-man navy is training to man three destroyers, four frigates and three submarines recently purchased from the United States. Saudi Arabia's insignficant 1,500-man navy doesn't possess a single warship of any size.

The shah, meanwhile, has established peaceful relations with neighboring Iraq, a traditional enemy of Iran. If the shah should move against Saudi Arabia, however, some analysts believe the Iraqis would break their agreement with the shah and support the Saudis.

This would involve a 15,000-man air force, with 358 jet fighters and 171 helicopters, plus a 3,000-man navy with 11 missile boats. And from a greater distance, Egypt and Jordan would also be expected to back Saudi Arabia. This would add another 628 fighter planes, 37 jet bombers, 5 destroyers, 12 submarines and 14 missile boats to the Arab forces.

SCREW SCANDAL: In a classic case of a battle being lost for want of a horseshoe nail, shoddy screws have cost the government billions and have contributed to air crashes.

Metal screws hold together everything from computers to high-stress airplane parts. When screws snap or loosen, the equipment may cease to function or may evenself-destruct.

Yet unscrupulous manufacturers have produced screws that have caused costly accidents. The nut-and-bolt industry could have avoided these disasters by manufacturing more craftsman like products. But the specifications for screws and nuts are fixed by industry-run "standards committees," which have been more interested in profits than in safety.

These are the disturbing findings of investigators for the Senate Antitrust subcommittee. In a staff report, they have put it bluntly:

"The present specifications for . . . screw-threads," they charge, "allow manufactures and distrubutors to dump millions of worthless fasteners into the market each year . . .

"Screw thread failures have cost the government billions of dollars and . . . contributed to the loss of aircraft and human life."

Although manufacturers and distributors are fully aware of this, the report adds grimly, they "have continuously blocked the development of new standards."The wreckage was inspected by Army experts who determined that faulty screw threads were "a probable contributing factor in the failure."

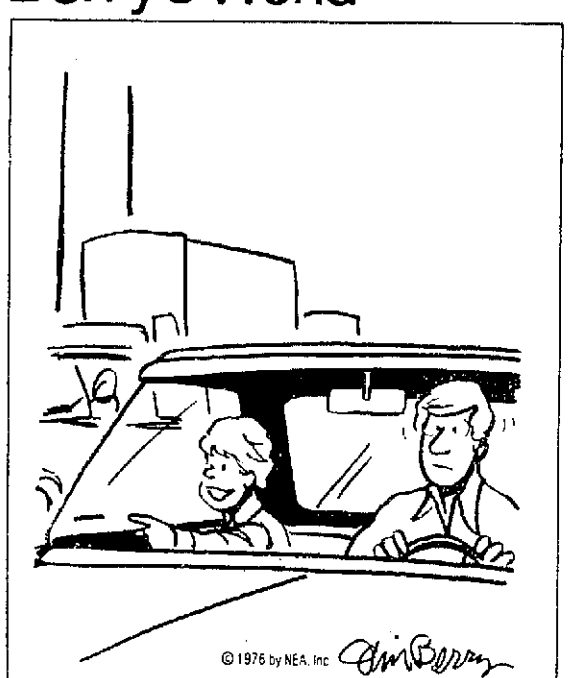

Another crash study reports that a helicopter suddenly lunged crazily at 126 miles an hour. "The tail rotor separated from the aircraft at 800 feet," states the study. The cause? Army specialists traced it to metal fatigue originating "at the intersection of a thread root and pin hole."

Army metallurgical scientists were outraged over the screws and nuts they found in crashed planes. In some parts, they discovered that 100 per cent of the screws and nuts failed to meet safety specifications. The best batch was only 47 per cent safe.

Yet the companies that made the faulty, perhaps fatal parts didn't seem to care. "Inspection . . . is not sufficient," the scientists concluded.

Footnote: Industrial spokesman insist that "the present specifications have served industry well" and that any new method would be "to costly and unnecessary."

Politics By the Numbers

WASHINGTON (KFS) — American politics have become a part of statistics. We are still dominated by the male gestalt this

numerology may be traceable back to baseball, a game that is especially loved because small boys can qualify for it so easily

Millions of us are trained to know at least a little bit about bookkeeping, so that it may seem reasonable to capture politics and fracture it so that it can be reduced to a ledger. The computer has accelerated these tendencies not only by making more numbers more quickly available but also by enabling us to match these digits up into more and more fanciful statistical runs. Television stations can now instantaneously display the wildest correlations on our screens such as the fact that R. Sargent Shriver received 85 per cent of the vote of South Milwaukee one-eyed Roman Catholic lesbians of German descent.

Original Point Spread

The pervasion, or should we say perversion, of politics with numbers begins with the introduction of the public opinion poll in the 1930s. At first it wasn't taken that seriously. Men like George Gallup were regarded as fancy-pants versions of Jimmy the Greek. Public opinion polls established the point spread . . . Franklin Roosevelt by 57 per cent, two points either way and if you want to bet against that you could get better odds.

As entertainment it could hardly have seemed worth the bother to challenge. So few people asked whether indeed there is a public to be polled, or is the polled public like the public-interest public, a product of epistemological creativity? Today, however, the novelty of the numbers is an important device that the mass media uses to reinforce faith in democracy. The public opinion poll is the perpetual plebiscite, the proof that by the infallibility of the theory of random numbers that you count, that you are being consulted, that there is a place in the grand egalitarian scheme of things for your participation.

You yourself may never be polled personally but, if random probability theory is being followed in drawing the sample, your statistical alone 1,500 miles away will be called and, because you and he or she agree, you may for practical purposes feel as though you too had taken part in the plebiscite. Who is your statistical clone? Look at the paper the next time they print a public opinion poll and you'll be able to recognize yourself. "White Protestant," "college under 35," "blue collar," "female head of household, $9,000 to $12,000 a year," and so forth and so on.

The people that you are cloned with don't exist as a group except for the purposes of political discussions in the media. "White Protestant" or "Black" or any of the other designations whose opinions have been sampled on questions like "Detente" or "Busing" are fictional constructs necessary for quantification. "White Protestant," for example, covers everything from rural hard-shell Baptists, to Mormons who don't like to pray with Blacks, to hoity-toity Anglicans who love to pray with them.

The categories of people that polisters poll are so broad they contradict our every-day social knowledge. "'Blacks" simply don't all think alike, except perhaps when confronted by a white figure in a sheet burning a fiery cross.

In order to sample the opinion of a group that is sufficiently well-defined to have cohesion, to have anything like enough common history and situation for someone to believe the members of it might think alike, you'd have to throw a number of other elements into the pot. White Protestants would have to be distinguished a s high church-low church, as rural-suburban, by years of school completed, in which case you'd have about eight different groups and a much, much more costly survey. That's why they don't do them, but rely on the cheapies in which imaginary groups have their temperatures taken.

By The Grunt

Nevertheless, people put into these imaginary categories do tend to respond to pollsters' inquiries in certain patterned fashions. The people assigned to the blue-collar classification will tend to show up in the numbers in somewhat the same way over a period of time when topics like law and order, inflation, detente or whatever are raised. These responses give no inkling as to what people are thinking, but only how they react when a pollster says certain words to them, and tells them they must agree, disagree or register on opinion. It is preposterous to assert that the mathematical conclusions drawn from this procedure, this counting up of positive and negative grunts, can give the tiniest indication of what one single individual, much less a nonexistent public, thinks.

This is not to say that polling may not be useful in manipulating the outcome of elections, but so in stealing votes. The point is that neither has much to do with "the public opinion." Since polling results are now massively disseminated by television as well as the newspapers, you can't help wondering how much public opinion polls affect opinion? When John Chancellor announces that the newest NBC polls show that Blacks think thus and so, do some Black people decide they ought to think the same way also? Can the polls be considered a foxy device for encouraging people to identify with fictional groups in such a way that they are made easier to manipulate?

But you don't have to buy that chilly hypothesis to understand the part polls play in legitimating a political status quo by conducting the perpetual plebiscite. In that sense they probably contribute more to public frustration than anything that happens on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

Bass and the Reformers

"This silly Watergate business," Rep. Philbert Bass exclaimed the last time I interviewed him, "is like spreading manure on weeds! They're out to ruin Congress!"

But when I saw Rep. Bass the other day he looked happy. I asked him why.

"The enemy has been routed, that's why I'm happy," chortled the 98-year-old chairman of the powerful reform subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee.

"We outflanked those scalawags . . . " he performed a complicated maneuver with his wheelchair in the middle of the room, brandishing his cane like a sword. ". . . and now we're going to crush them with a final frontal assault."

With that, Rep. Bass wheeled straight ahead, dispatching imaginary foes with vicious swings of his cane.

"They said they were going to reform everything," Bass said, chuckling and wheezing. "Tax reform, election reform, campaign reform, White House reform, judicial reform, CIA reform, FBI reform, and even," he sneered, "congressional reform.

"But we set 'em back on their be-hinds, son. You can bet those yellow-livered reformers are sorry they ever tangled with the likes of Wayne Hays, F. Edward Hebert, and me."

"It's a tough team to beat," I admitted. "What did you do?"

"Well, we didn't have much to worry about on the tax reform front, what with old Huey Long heading the Senate Finance Committee."

"You mean Russell Long, not Huey," I explained. "Huey is dead. Russell is his son."

"Sorry to hear about that," Bass said, shaking his head sadly. "I'm going to miss old Huey.

"Anyway, what we did was chop a piece off election reform, and slice a rasher off congressional reform, and then the Supreme Court helped us cut a hunk off campaign fund reform. And before you know, swoosh!" the cane cut through the air, "there wasn't anything left but bloody stumps.""So reform is dead, eh?"

"Not quite yet, son. But after the Ethics Committee gets those report-leaker reformers and . . . "

"The what?"

"The report-leaker reformers. The rodents who give away all our secret congressional reports in order to get the public all worked up over nothing. The Ethics Committee is investigating those low-down leakers, and when they're finished off . . . " He smiled a victorious smile.

"I'm glad you brought that up, Congressman Bass. This is the first time the Ethics Committee has ever investigated anyone. Don't you think there are members of Congress who deserve to be investigated as much as a television reporter and his source?"

Bass wheeled his chair over to me and squinted into my eyes.

"I'm going to pretend I didn't hear that, son," he said grimly, "but this interview is over. Congress investigate congressmen?! You're lucky I don't report you to the Un-American Activities Committee!"

"The Un-American Activites Committee has been abolished, Congressman Bass."

"Balderdash!" he roared. "They wouldn't dare! Anyway, somebody would have told me. J. Edgar Hoover wouldn't let something like that happen without giving me a call."

As Bass angrily rolled away, I noticed for the first time that the back of his wheelchair bore a bumper sticker. It said, "Congress — Love It or Leave It!"

Buckley's Mail Call Has a Real Backer

Sen. Jim Buckley has come out for permitting some test competition between the U.S. Postal Service and private enterprisers who would like to get into the mail-carrying field.

This can hardly please Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar, who has recently complained that the postal business has been drying up at the very time operating expenses have been climbing. Even though the Postal Service has a legal monopoly of the letter-carrying service, it is already suffering from the defensive ingenuity of companies that are organizing their own hand delivery departments. The competition is already there, and it is about to snowball.

In South Florida, for example, the Florida Power and Light Company has discovered through pilot projects that, at current postage rates, it costs four cents more to mail a bill than to deliver it by hand, which can be done for nine cents. Accordingly, the big Florida utility is commencing hand delivery of bills this month to 214,000 residential customers in the Miami and Hollywood districts. It will get around the rule against putting private messages in boxes that are post office property by enclosing the monthly statements in plastic bags that can be fastened to doorknobs.

Each deliverer will carry some 700 bills a day. When the service has been extended all the way from Miami to West Palm Beach, the company thinks it will achieve an annual savings of more than $250,000. Last year the company mailed bills to 1.8 million customers at a cost of some $2 million. With the increased postal rates and additional customers, the 1976 bill would be just short of $3 million. So a savings of $250,000 is very much worth making a change and telling Postmaster Bailar what he can do with his 13-cent stamp.

On the Bandwagon

Elsewhere Carolina Power and Light, Duke Power, Narragansett Electric and New Orleans Public Service plan to go the hand delivery route. This will shortly be the pattern of utilities wherever the customer density is such that a hired deliverer can hit seven or eight hundred doors in rapid-fire fashion.

A report to Congress by the Comptroller General of the U.S. has already made an inadvertent case for Sen. Buckley's proposal. The Postal Service has been witnessing a steady decline in its parcel post volume, which fell off by 314 million pieces, or 40 per cent, from 1963 to 1973. The forecast is that by 1977 there will be a further drop of nine per cent from the 1973 volume.

The reason for this miserable showing is that the Postal Service's legally permitted competitors were far more efficient handlers of package delivery. Here is the damaging quote from the Comptroller General's report;

". . . Postal Service's competitors offered faster service, handled parcels with less damage, and charged lower rates . . . In November 1971 a private consulting firm in conjunction with the Postal Service conducted an extensive test mailing of fragile and nonfragile parcels. The test results showed that surface shipments made via the principle competitor were significantly faster than those of the Postal Service. Also interior damage to fragile parcels was 361 per cent greater, and exterior damage to fragile parcels was 258 per cent greater to packages shipped by the Service than those shipped by its principal competitor . . ."

Natural Extension

If that's the way it goes for parcel delivery, who should it be different for other categories of mail? I deal all the time with the Post Office, and have had consistently pleasant relations with the postmaster and the carriers of my home town. But the other day I made the mistake of mailing a release-on-receipt column to my snydicate from the next town down the line. Since the column was a post-primary day commentary, I sent it special delivery. Nobody knew me at that post office, which may account for the fact that, when the special delivery reached the Kings Features Syndicate office in New York City 48 hours later (the distance covered was about 75 miles), my worried editor noted that the postmark on the envelope indicated that it had been stamped a full 24 hours after I had dropped it in the slot. And I had mailed it four hours before the post office had closed.

Such dilatory service hits a columnist where he lives. If Sen. Buckley can break the postal monopoly, particularly when it comes to special delivery handling, I'd be almost willing to move to New York so I could vote for him.

An Arab Show of Strength

By Stewart Kellerman

JERUSALEM (UPI) — A mood of militancy is taking hold among Arabs ruled by Israel, adding a new dimension to the drive for a Palestinian homeland.

Arabs in Israel, on the occupied West Bank and in annexed East Jerusalem are becoming more active politically and are carrying their protests daily into the streets.

The Israeli government has sent thousands of troops to the West Bank and East Jerusalem in an attempt to quell seven weeks of turmoil in lands captured from Jordan in 1967.

Israeli officials predicted the show of strength would put an end to the disturbances, but Arabs insist the unrest is far from over.

Some diplomatic analysts attribute the Arab militancy to the Palestine Liberation Organization's growing acceptance around the world.

Many Palestinians ruled by Israel are proud of PLO leader Yasser Arafat's new diplomatic respectability.

The 500,000 Arabs in Israel emerged from more than a quarter-century of political docility to elect a Communist as mayor of Nazareth last December.

Mayor Tawfik Zayyad, who won the support of non-Communist intellectuals and professionals, has been an outspoken critic of Israeli policy since his election.

"The government throws stones at us, so it is time to throw stones at it—and it should keep in mind that it lives in a glass house," he recently told cheering supporters.

The government added fuel to the new militancy last month by approving the seizure of thousands of acres of Arab-owned land in the Galilee for a predominantly Jewish housing project and an army base.

Some Jewish leaders said the government took over the lands to encourage Jewish settlement and to keep the Arabs from becoming a majority in the region.

Arabs in the Galilee promptly formed a committee to fight against projects that take over Arab land

"The issue is not one of development that requires land expropriations but the existence and future of half a million Arabs," the committee said.

The leaders of more than 30 Arab towns called on all Arabs in the region to strike, fast and demonstrate March 30 at an "Arab Lands Day" protest against the takeover.

The most serious anti-Israeli protests have taken place in the Old City of Jerusalem and the West Bank.

Young Arabs have demonstrated nearly every day since a Jerusalem magistrate ruled Jan. 29 that Jews have the right to pray at an Old City site sacred to both Moslems and Jews.

The government quickly condemned the decision and promised to keep barring Jews from the site, where both the silver-domed Al Aqsa mosque and the remains of a Jewish temple destroyed in 70 A.D. are located.

But Arab leaders turned the issue into an international ca use celebre. The mayors of nine Arab towns on the West Bank resigned in protest. Islamic nations complained to the U.N. Security Council.

The protests—the most serious in the region since 1967—have gradually evolved into a campaign against Israel's nine-year occupation of the West Bank and Old City.

"We are opposed to occupation and we want to be free," Bethlehem Mayor Elias Freij said.

'Battle of Holiday Inn'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There have been three major wars and a whole passel of minor ones in my lifetime and I reckon a body could never say anything good about armed conflict

But if somebody stuck a gun to my head and forced me to name my all-time favorite battle, I would have to cite this week's fierce seesaw struggle in Lebanon for control of the Holiday Inn.

The dispatches from the front have been positively entrancing.

According to one account, "leftist and Moslem forces, backed by armored cars," attacked the Holiday Inn in the fashionable seaside area of Beirut and "overran the lobby."

Later, according to another dispatch, Christian Phalangist militia, "backed by tanks, artillery and antiaircraft fire, launched a counteroffensive" and recaptured the inn.

(I swear I'm not making this up. It was in all the papers.)

Details were scant but from the many Holiday Inns I have stayed in, I could picture it all in my mind. Armored cars deployed behind the potted palms...The surrender of the room clerk. .

And through it all, amid shot and shell, the doughy reservations operator continuing to make bookings for the next dental convention.

You might think I'm joshing about the reservations. But apparently that service was not interrupted by the clash of arms.

Telephone directories in most American cities list a number you can call for "worldwide reservations" at Holiday Inns.

After reading about the combat raging in and around the inn in Beirut, I dialed the number and asked to reserve a room there for the night of March 31.

"One moment, please. I'll see if I can confirm," the operator said. Then, so help me, Hannah, she came back on the line and reported the place was already "completely filled" for that date.

The only question is, by which side?

I have no way of knowing who will be occupying the inn by the time you read this, but if I were the military type this is one campaign I would hate to have missed.

The rewarding part, if you survived, would come in later years when your grandchilden came to visit.

"Hey, Gramps, how come you walk with a limp?"

"Well, I'll tell you, Sonny. I was wounded in the Battle of Holiday Inn."

Holiday Inn — a name that will live with Waterloo, Balaklava, Stalingrad, Gettysburg, Yorktown. It would be well worth a shard of shrapnel in the leg to be able to spring something like that on your grandchildren.

Could what took place in Lebanon this week signal a new direction in warfare? Will future conflicts be decided by the conquest of franchises?

After the fall of the Holiday Inn, will the victors lay siege to the Kentucky Fried Chicken outlet and then storm the Pizza Hut?

Perhaps the Biblical prophesy was wr ong. The world may not end at Armageddon but at McDonald's.

Communist Chairman To Speak at Vasser

POUGHKEEPSIE—Gus Hall, chairman of the American Communist Party, will speak on "Capitalism in Crisis and the Role of Racism" Tuesday evening at Poughkeepsie's Vassar College.

The lecture will begin at 8 p.m. in Blodgett Auditorium. It is open to the public without charge and will be sponsored by the department of religion and the Blanche Kahn Memorial Committee of Poughkeepsie.

Hall was born in Minnesota in 1910 and joined the Communist movement when he was 16. A U.S. Navy veteran during World War II, he served eight years in prison in the 1950's for violation of the Smith Act and in 1959 was elected general secretary of the American Communist Party. He was the organization's presidential candidate in the 1972 elections.

'Porker Pandemonium' in New Paltz

By Joan L. Woinoksi

NEW PALTZ—It was a three ring circus on Nepale Drive recently but many of the residents there weren't laughing

Thirteen, grunting, scrambling pigs got loose from a trailer where they were being kept and invaded neighboring lawns and gardens, digging up grass and munching on flower bulbs

Squeals of laughter mingled with the squeals of the trespassers as scores of youngsters watched authorities try to round up the little porkers

Several tales have come out of the episode some humorous, some serious, depending upon the narrator's degree of involvement and his sense of humor

According to Supervisor William Yeaple, the pigs are the property of Michael Welch of New Paltz Welch built many of the homes in that area and owns 50 acres of land including the section bearing the trailer which the pigs called home

Somehow the pigs got out of their confinement and called on the neighbors They had reportedly rooted up septic systems, torn up flower beds, spread garbage around Irate residents contacted the New Paltz Police Dept , complaining 1) about the damage to their properties 2) about junk cars on Welch's land, 3) that having a trailer on the property was against the zoning ordinance in the first place

Arrangements were made by Kathy Upright, Plattekill representative of Newburgh SPCA (on orders by New Platz police) to pick up the 13 pigs that were "roaming free" in the development The pigs were boarded in pens in a barn for one week, fed stale bread and bacon fat feed, and then returned to Welch, who had obtained a court order from New Paltz Justice Rexford Schneider for their return Welch wouldn't tell the SPCA where he was taking them

Mrs Upright said there were some civil damage claims in New Paltz Town Court by residents of Nepale Drive, lodged through New Paltz police She said every time they had visited the area, the pigs had been outside, not confined to a mobile home

At Police Headquarters, it was stated that Welch appeared in Court and to their knowledge, had complied with all requests But a visit to the property this week showed the trailer still in evidence along with a couple of unlicensed cars on the lot There were no pigs however

Neighbors seem to be divided in their opinions of the situation One woman said B J Dutto, Commissioner of Health, Ulster County Dept of Health had been contacted the charging that was a health hazard There was fear that leftover food in the trailer would attract rodents

On the other hand a gentleman resident said Mike's O K He'd make good for any of the damage It's just a big to do' about nothing

As for Michael Welch he feels it's his property so he can do what he wants About the cars on his land he said, 'Two of them are licensed the others I use for parts And, regarding the trailer 'Other people have trailers on their land and nothing is said about it '

The pigs? They are alive and well and, reportedly receiving the best of care

John D. And His 'Friend'

NEW YORK CITY—When the Friars Club, the shown business fraternal organization, honored Frank Sinatra last month as its Entertainer of the Year, he noted, "It's nice to be among friends."

He'll be among friends again when he stars with John Denver on the ABC-TV special, JOHN DENVER AND FRIEND, Monday, March 29, 9-10 p.m. (ET). A segment of the show will salute the big band days of the 1930s and 1940s and Denver and Sinatra will be joined by such giants of that swinging era as Count Basie, the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra, Harry James and his Orchestra and Nelson Riddle and his Orchestra.

For Sinatra, the program will be a happy reunion with some old pals and one comparatively new one, John Denver. They met last August when they appeared back-to-back at Harrah's, Lake Tahoe, Calif. where Denver made his first night club appearance. It was the beginning of a remarkable personal and professional friendship between two stars who, while being strikingly different in personality and style, have enormous repect for one another.

Sinatra and Count Basie have been friends and show business colleagues for more than three decades.Their association dates back to 1943, when they made their respective film debuts in "Reveille With Beverly." Over the years they've recorded together and worked with each other in countless night club and concert engagements. When Las Vegan began to flourish as an entertainment center, it was Sinatra who introduced the Basie band to audiences in the casino-resort city.

Another Example of 'Equality'

Hubbie's Running A Little Late

There are no records to prove it, but I have every reason to believe my husband was an 11-month baby.

And he's been running two months late ever since.

Through marriage (and bad association), I have become a member of that great body of tardy Americans who grope their way down theater aisles in the dark, arrive at parties in time to drink their cocktails with their dessert, and celebrate Christmas on Dec. 26.

Frankly, I don't know how a nice, punctual girl like me got stuck with a man who doesn't need a watch . . . but a calendar and a keeper.

Would it shock you to know I have never seen a bride walk "down" the aisle? I have never seen a choir or a graudate in a processional? I have never seen the victim of a mystery BEFORE he was murdered. I have never seen a parking lot jammed with people. I have never seen the first race of a daily double or a football team in clean uniforms.

The other night I had it out with my husband. "Look, I am in the prime time of my life and I have never heard the first 30 seconds of the munute waltz. Doesn't that tell you something?"

"What are you trying to say?" he asked.

"I am saying that once before I die I would like to see a church with empty seats."

"We've been through all this before," he sighed. "Sitting around before an event begins is a comlete waste of time when you could be spending it sleeping . . . reading . . . working . . ."

"Don't forget driving around the block looking for a parking place. I don't understand you at all," I continued. "Don't you get curious as to what they put into first acts? Aren't you just a bit envious of people who don't have to jump onto moving trains? Aren't you tired of sitting down to a 44-minute egg for breakfast each morning?"

"I set my alarm clock every night. What do you want from me?"

"I have seen you set your alarm clock. Whey you want to get up at 6:30 you set it for 5:30. Then you smack it and say, 'Don't tell me what to do, Buddy.' Then you reset it for six. At six when it goes off you hit it again and shout, 'Ha, ha, I was only kidding. I got another half hour.' You reset it for 6:30, at which time you throw your body on it and say, 'I don't need you. I don't need anybody.' Then you go back to sleep."

"I just happen to believe there is no virtue in being early. What time is it?"

"It's eight o'clock. You're supposed to be at work at eight."

"Yes. Lucky, I've got 20 minutes to spare."

I have a feeling I will go through life and never again hear The Star Spangled Banner.

Coping

Rice paper is not made from rice, but from the pith of a Formosan plant, "Fatsia papyrifers".

The average car in the United States travels about 10,000 miles each year and consumes more than 700 gallons of gasoline.

"Guide to the Game of Draughts," as checkers is called in England, was published in London in 1756 by mathematician William Payne. The forward to the book was written by Dr. Samuel Johnson, a devotee of the game.

Dear Abby

Chronic Lovebirds

DEAR ABBY: My sister and her husband come to our town three times a year on business and always expect to be put up in our home.

Their behavior is unreal, and I'm considering putting them up in a motel on their next visit.

I don't object to couples holding hands and showing signs of affection in public, but you should see these two! They're like a couple of dogs in heat! He has his hands all over her and even under her blouse (at the dinner table, yet!), and my sister just giggles and thinks it's cute.

They've been married for 23 years, so there's no excuse for this. His filthy talk about their intimate relationship is too embarrassing to repeat. He brags in front of our teenaged children that he and his wife bathe together!

I can't ask my children to spend the whole time in their rooms when this moron and my sister visits us.

My husband is a softy. He says we should look the other way when they're here. Have you ever tried to carry on a conversation with someone without looking at them?

Am I being a prude? Please advise me.

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: I'm for putting up the lovebirds in a motel, tree, kennel or some other appropriate place. And don't make up any excuse. Tell them why.

DEAR ABBY: As a steady reader of your column, I have noticed that you often say, "Mother Nature decides at what age a woman should stop bearing children."

That undoubtedly gives comfort to women who for one reason or another bear children in their later years. But I think you should point out that the older a woman, the older her eggs are, and as an egg ages, it deteriorates, increasing the chances of having a defective child—as with mongolism.

Perhaps many people are not aware of this rather unhappy fact of life.

HUMANITARIAN

DEAR HUMANITARIAN: You make an important point. I was remiss in failing to mention it, and I thank you for doing so.

DEAR ABBY: Last summer, while running my fingers through the sand at the beach, I found an opal ring. I took it to a jeweler who appraised it at approximately $100. I would like to wear it, but here's the situation:

I have heard that bad luck is associated with the opal, and only people whose birthstone is the opal should wear it. My birthstone is not the opal, and I don't need any bad luck right now.

Have you ever heard of this superstition? What is your advice?

OTTAWA LAKE, MICH.

DEAR OTT: Yes, I have heard of this superstition. I am not superstitious, but if you are, don't wear the opal.

CONFIDENTIAL TO THE GRADUATES OF THE CLASS OF 1936, CENTRAL HIGH, SIOUX CITY, IOWA: "Our" class reunion will be held at the Hilton Hotel, June 25th and 26th. Please contact Evie or Sally, Box 894, S.C., Iowa, for details. Plan to be there. Eppie and I do.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Dear Newcomer to the Kingston area:

A week ago Sunday, the people who came to a certain Reformed Church at the corner of Pearl and Fair said to one another, "This is a cold church!"

They were right. The oil burner had shut off in the night, and the temperature in the sanctuary was down in the 50's.

But most Sundays, the people who attend that church say, "Fair Street Church is a warm church", not just because the oil burner is operating, but because of the friendliness of "Fairstreeters".

Come find out for yourself. Join us this Sunday at the 9:30 or 11 a.m. service and visit the Coffee Hour between services.

This event has proved to be an enjoyable afternoon in previous years and this year's hosts are striving to make the fourth annual wine and cheese tasting party the best to date

'Our Town' In New Paltz

NEW PALTZ — Few plays are more attuned for Bicentennial year presentation than Thornton Wilder's Americana original, 'Our Town" And few places are more appropriate for its staging than New Paltz, a town comparable to Grover's Corners, New Hampshire, the town in which "Our Town" takes place

Small wonder, then, that the Pulitzer prize-winning play will be presented in McKenna Theatre, on the New Paltz campus, for five performances April 7, 8, 9, 10 at 8 30 p m , and April 11 at 2 p m It will be the fourth and final production of the 1975 76 season by the Department of Theatre Arts at the State University College And will be the last in a series of distinguished American plays the department is producing in commemoration of the Bicentennial year

In three acts, the play concerns itself with daily life, love and marriage and death Contrary to popular belief 'Our Town" is not offered as a picture of life in a New England village, or as a speculation about the conditions of life after death Wilder wrote the play as an attempt to find a value above all price for the smallest events in the life of every person

When the play was first seen on Broadway in 1938, it was greeted as "a tender idyll brimming over with compassion, heartbreaking in the simplicity of human tragedy Hailed then as being revolutionary in style because of its modest costuming, relaxed nature and lack of scenery it remains just as popular today for the same reasons

Tickets for "Our Town' may be reserved by calling the McKenna Theatre box office any time after March 31

Valley Theater Company . . . A First

POUGHKEEPSIE — It's a "first" in the Valley Theater Company's stage history — the only occasion since its founding that a double cast has been set for a production

Fish Moves to Amend SBA Act

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr R 25th has joined a bipartisan effort in the House of Representatives aimed at amending the Small Business Act to enable home builders to receive SBA assistance

Fish explains that the Act doesn't specifically exclude home builders but the SBA in its broad interpretation of the definition of the term "speculative" includes home builders Hearings are scheduled next week

'The SBA argument that home building and contracting are speculative is also reinforced by SBA's argument that the Department of Housing and Urban Development handles home building," Fish said

'I feel the Small Business Administration is wrong on both counts First, I don't believe businessmen who have long and successful records should be labled "speculative' and therefore poor risks, and second, HUD assists the home buyer, not the home builder,' Fish said

Noting that building starts are off over 50 per cent with the entire construction business in a deep recession, Fish said "I hope that in a small way the enactment of this amendment will help home builders contractors,and eventually home owners '

According to Fish, the amendment would mandate that loan eligibility by the SBA be determined on a case by case basis, "to prevent the wholesale exclusion of entire classes of applicants Of course, in no way will it affect the SBA's discretion on individual cases "

Fish said it was his opinion that the proposed amendment will ' be acted upon favorably by the Small Business Committee unless some very strong negative evidence is developed in the scheduled hearings

McHugh for Debate Broadcasts

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Congressman Matthew F McHugh, D 27th, along with 30 other freshmen representatives, has asked the House Rules Committee to clear the way for live radio and television coverage of House debates

"There is a serious need to honestly and openly inform the public of the workings of Congress," they wrote in a letter to Chairman Ray J Madden, D Ind , adding that "a vast majority of our citizens learn about government and politics from radio and television coverage '

They called for safeguards against abuses by individual members and to preserve the "dignity and decorum traditionally observed by the House "

The committee will meet to take up two nearly identical measures for gavel to gavel broadcast coverage Both proposals would give newsmen a free hand in selecting parts of each day's session for their news broadcasts Both would create a videotape archive of future proceedings open to scholars and libraries

The measures differ, however, over who would operate the system One (H Res 875) calls for coverage to be provided under a pool agreement with the major networks The second (H Res 269) would leave that responsibility with the House through its Commission on Information and Facilities

The letter called on the committee to act favorably on the proposals without specifying a particular approach

Bus, Fire Bills Pass

ALBANY — Bills dealing with school bus safety and firemanics sponsored by State Senator Richard E Schermerhorn R 40th Dist have passed the senate and have been sent to the assembly for action

One of Schermerhorn's bills would provide greater safety for school children by requiring school bus drivers to have the head lights turned on when driving a school bus to provide and added warning to motorists of the bus on the highway Schermerhorn in noting the current law which provides for flashing red lights on school buses when receiving or discharging passengers said An additional method of warning motorists that they are approaching a school bus will provide an added margin of safety which is desirable

The other Schermerhorn bill to receive Senate approval would amend entrance qualifications for fire fighters to allow the child or children of a fireman who died in the line of duty to have absolute preference on entrance examinations

Concerning this bill Schermerhorn said All too often a fire fighter dies in the line of duty leaving a widow and children What this legislation would do would be to offer a child of the fire fighter killed in the line of duty future employment within the fire service The Cornwall law maker continued that Because of the early death of the income earner other employment might be seriously curtailed if that child couldn t atford college

The child would still have to meet all qualifications and receive a passing grade on the examination for the fire department Schermerhorn added

The average number of deaths in the line of duty over the past five years have been 20 in New York State

HOUSTON (UPI) — Doctors estimate 24 000 Americans will get oral cancer this year and about 8 000 will die from it

Researchers say a person can detect early stages himself simply by looking carefully into his own mouth and examining for white scaly patches any swelling or lump with or without pain any sore that does not heal promptly numbness or tingling repeated bleeding or any loosening of teeth with no apparent cause

HILTON HEAD, S.C. (UPI) — Bob Murphy is a movie buff.

Not your ordinary buff, mind you. He makes movies of himself whenever he has trouble with his golf swing.

That, explains Murphy, is how he cured himself of driving the ball too far left. And that's why he's the leader going into today's second round of the star-filled, $215,000 Heritage Golf Classic at this luxury island resort.

"I'd been hitting three, four shots a round to the left and it was really frustrating me," the portly Floridian said. "I went home after my finish last week (at Jacksonville) and took some stop-action pictures.

"I hit balls for about five straight hours before I figured out what was wrong. My left hand was gripping the club too strong. I was hitting the ball farther, but I had lost my rhythm."

Brooklyn-born, 33-year-old Murphy, winner of more than $127,000 last year but barely $20,000 so far this year, knew he had to make an adjustment.

"I needed a major overhaul. I told a friend that I couldn't go to the Heritage playing that way because you don't dare hit left here."

Murphy was right on target Thursday when he shot a five-birdie, no bogey 66 in the opening round of the Heritage Classic. That gave him a onestroke lead over veteran Don January and two over a large group of 68 shooters, including Hubert Green who won at Doral two weeks ago and won last week at Jacksonville.

"It was a pleasure to shoot a good round," said Murphy. "It had gotten to the point where I felt that every round I played I scored the worst I could score because of where I put the ball."

Gibby Gilbert, Dave Stockton, John Schroeder, Butch Baird, Peter Oosterhuis, Danny Edwards, and Marty Fleckman all shared third place with Green at the start of today's play.

Hale Irwin. this year's leading money winner and champion here in 1971 and 1973, was in a huge group at 2-under 69 that included Gary Player, J.C. Snead, and Tom Weiskopf. Lee Trevino was at even-par 71.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus was upset with himself after opening with a 1-over72 "which could just as easily have been a 68." But he was a lot better off than former Hilton Head resident Johnny Miller, winner here in 1972 and 1974, who opened with a 4-over 75.

Schroeder lay claim to the wildest first round of all those who shot in the 60s Thursday.

Schroeder bogeyed four of the first six holes to go 4 over, then birdied eight of the last 12. "The first six holes," said Schroeder with a shrug, "I put the ball in the center of every fairway and then couldn't hit the green."

Ali (L) shows off for Inoki

Ali Turns 'Young Lion' Into a Mere 'Pelican'

NEW YORK (UPI) — At 6 feet 3 inches, Antonio Inoki isn't accustomed to being compared with a pelican. Indeed, back home in Japan he is known as "the Young Lion."

But now that Inoki has come in contact with the garrulous Muhammad Ali, he can expect to be called a lot of other uncomplimentary things in the next three months. Not even his size, or the fact he happens to be the heavyweight wrestling champion of Japan and a karate expert, will help him.

Ali and Inoki got together Thursday to help publicize their $10 million boxer vs. wrestler bout to be staged at Tokyo the morning of June 26 (the night of June 25 in the United States, where it will be shown on closed circuit television).

It was at the get-together that Ali, pleased to unleash his repertoire of vocal jousting on an unwary victim, told Inoki that his jutting chin reminded him of a pelican.

Ali, while continuing his oration, waved his arms, pounded the table, shadowboxed, stripped off his shirt and compared biceps, glared and never stopped talking.

"I'm the greatest," he said, "you gotta fall, I'll hit you so hard your relatives in Tokyo will feel it, I'll be champion of everything."

Inoki appeared not to understand Ali's act at first, but the apprehensive look soon disappeared as he saw the surrounding crowd enjoy the champion's antics. Inoki, further reassured by the arrival of his wife, movie star Mitsuko Baisho, counter-attacked with a bit of Eastern philosophy.

"When the wind blows, I shall bend but not break," Inoki said.

Ali retorted: "I cannot miss your chin when I punch. You are 'the pelican.' Sonny Liston was the bear and Floyd Patterson was the rabbit. I'll hit your big chin."

"When your fist hits my chin I hope you do not hurt your fist," Inoki answered cheerfully.

Ali, in line for a guaranteed $6.1 million, insisted "it will be a serious fight—no gimmicks. It's no fake. As long as I'll be hitting and hurting, he can use his best stuff." Inoki's share is $2 million from international television and the entire proceeds from the live gate.

The exact rules for the bout, which the promoters insist will not be an exhibition, have not been worked out as yet except that Ali will wear four-ounce gloves and Inoki his usual wrestling garb.

When asked if it were possible he was demeaning the heavyweight boxing title by taking part in such a bout, Ali replied loftily that "it is not ridiculous—I'll be going outside my specialty and I'm drawing the greatest crowds in the history of the world."

Inoki is 33 years old and Ali 34. Each man is 6 feet 3 inches, and Ali weighs 220 pounds.

There will be a companion boxer-wrestler bout at Shea Stadium in New York serving as a preliminary on closed circuit television. In this, Jerry Quarry, Oscar Bonavena or Henry Clark will meet wrestler Andre the Giant.

Boxing Goes Over Hump

By Charles J. Tiano
Sports Editor

KINGSTON—If Angel Oquendo was slightly confused by it all in last night's eight-round light heavyweight feature at the Municipal Auditorium, you couldn't blame him.

Wayne McGee, of Philadelphia and former New York Golden Gloves champion, attacked him frontally, from the right side and left side to win a split decision and put Oquendo's hopes for a lightheavyweight title shot farther back on the burner.

But that wasn't the real story at the hallowed boxing area. The real drama was the size of the crowd—more than 900—the spectacular action, lively enthusiasim of the crowd. And the solid feeling that permeated the crowd—that Promoter Joe Garfield went over the hump in his bid to re-establish professional boxing in Kingston.

Referee Joe Santarpia and Judge Nick Gamboli of Haverstraw voted for McGee and Judge Harold Lederman of Orangeburgh called it a draw in he main event. Oquendo weighed 176, McGee 174.

There were two quick knockouts on the five-bout card and the other three contests had the fans cheering from start to finish.

Switching from right to left, McGee took the offensive against Oquendo in the first round, opened up a slight mouse on Oquendo's right eye in the third round and shook up the veteran Puerto Rican with a couple of solid rights in the fourth round.

Trailing by a wide margin, Oquendo called on all the cunning and experience of his long career after McGee stunned him with a crunching right to stage a furious counter rally, Oquendo stung McGee with solid rights, roughed him up inside and pursued him across the ring. When the round ended, McGee hit the corner stool with a thump.

Oquendo floored McGee for no count with a couple of left hooks after a furious exchange in which they traded shots to the jaw. A left hook set up McGee for the knockdown but he bounced up without taking a count.

Oquendo made up some ground in the eighth round but not enough to convince the judges.

Ron (Beau) Whyms, 141, Brooklyn, rallied in the last three rounds to earn a popular draw with Randy Milton, 146, of Connecticut.

Milton appeared o have pushed Whyms to the canvas at the bell in the third round and that indiscretion was enough to spark Whyms' comeback. "He pushed me hard," said Whyms, "and that got me a little mad. I still felt strong and I knew I could take him."

Whyms didn't take him but closed with two fast rounds to earn the draw, pounding Milton along the ropes in a big sixth round.

Jose Roman, 129½, of New York City, knocked out George Rivera, 130, New York, after only 50 seconds of the first round. Roman set up his outclassed opponent with a couple of left hooks and decked him with a right.

In one of the best bouts of the night, Richie Lugo, 144½, White Plains won a decision over Mike Bullock, 147, of Passaic in six rounds.

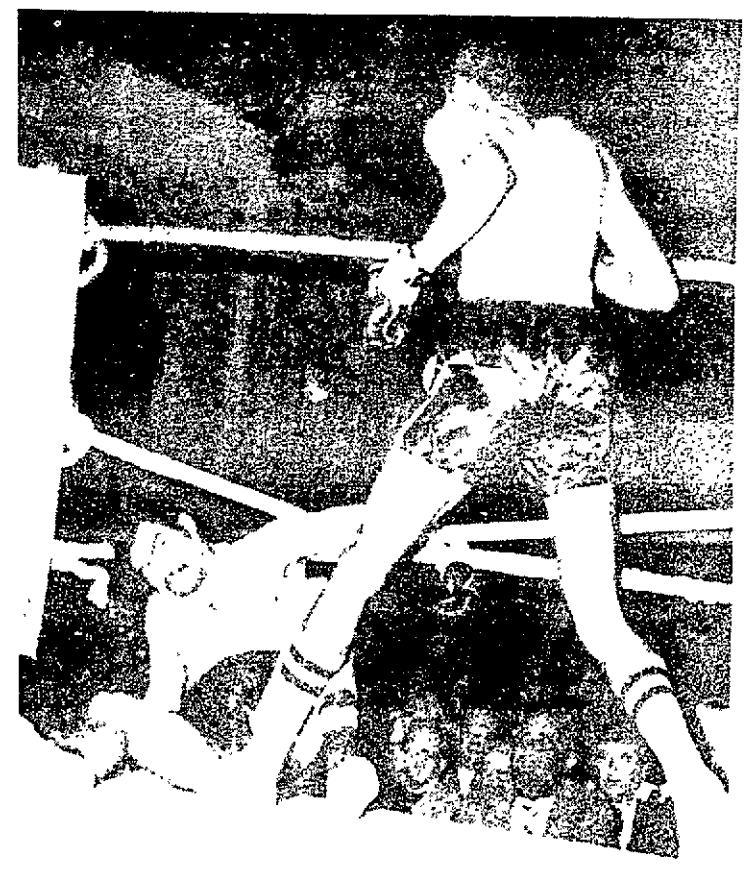

Joe Mascetta, 165, of White Plains knocked out Melendez, 157, of New York, in 1:16 of the first round of the curtain raiser.

SHORT JABS: Ray Puluse, the crack New Jersey lightweight, was unable to appear because of illness . . . George Gainford, the legendary manager of Sugar Ray Robinson, appeared with his ne find, Sugar Ray Hammond, but there w no opponent for him . . .

Dream Come True for Frosh

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — At this time last year, David Greenwood, Phil Hubbard, James Bailey and Abdel Anderson were all walking around high school hallways with dreams of leading their future college teams to the NCAA basketball championship.

As expected, the four entered schools with top basketball programs. However, instead of sitting around the bench learning the college game, they got the chance to play and each became a contributor to his team's success this year.

Now Greenwood of UCLA, Hubbard of Michigan and Bailey and Anderson of Rutgers are the four key freshman among the semifinalists in the NCAA basketball championships who are starting or playing as much as the starters.

"With the two freshmen we've had playing this season, we would never be where we are right now without them," said Rutgers coach Tom Young in echoing the sentiments of his rival coaches in Saturday's semifinal doubleheader at the Spectrum.

Greenwood, a 6-10 center, entered the starting lineup for the Bruins in late January and started their last 13 games. UCLA, now 26-4, was 12-1 in that stretch.

"He gives us more quickness," said rookie UCLA coach Gene Bartow. "He and Ralph Drollinger have been alternating in and out of that position since the Notre Dame game (Jan. 24)."

However, the slender, 217-pound Greenwood will be giving away an inch and almost 30 pounds when he pairs off against Indiana center Kent Benson in the nightcap of Saturday's doubleheader.

The 6-7 Hubbard was the highest scoring freshman in Big 10 conference action this season with a 14.3 point-per-game average and averaged 11.3 points overall. He also finished third in the conference in rebounding and field goal percentage.

He has moved right in at center on what Michigan coach Johnny Orr calls "the smallest team ever to make the final four."

The surprising Bailey, whose matchup with Hubbard could be a key, started 26 of the unbeaten Knights' 31 games. The 6-9 center is averaging nine points and seven rebounds per game and has blocked 93 shots this season.

Anderson, a 6-7 forward, has been the sixth man the entire season for the Knights and came off the bench to score 19 points in Rutgers' 93-79 win over Connecticut in the Eastern semifinals.

"Bailey has done a great job for us, both scoring and rebounding," Young said. "Anderson has also done a tremendous job for us coming off the bench."

Young added that he doesn't even consider his first-year pair freshmen any more.

"They're now sophomores. They've played 31 games and should be just as ready to handle the pressure this weekend as the rest of our team."

Indiana coach Bobby Knight has led his team to a 30-0 record while going mainly with experience but has inserted 6-5 freshman Rich Valavicius in spots.

"He has played quite a lot for us and will be the freshman who will make the largest contribution for us," Knight said.

But the coach of the topranked Hoosiers added: "We have a number of veterans. We don't expect to rise or fall on our freshmen."

In addition to Hubbard, Michigan (24-6) has some other outstanding freshman talent in 6-6 forward Alan Hardy and 6-3 guard Tom Staton.

"Staton is probably responsible for us being here the way he played against Wichita and Notre Dame," Orr said.

Stenmark and Morerod Triumph, But Italians Capture Cup

By Steve Kane

HUNTER—World Cup champion Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden and Lise-Marie Morerod of Switzerland were the individual victors Thursday in dual parallel slalom races, the final events of the World Series of Skiing.

Stenmark defeated Italy's Piero Gros in the men's finals, though Gros' 20 points for runnerup position enabled the Italians to finish the three days with 84 team points and the Nations' Cup.

Morerod, winner of Wednesday's slalom, edged the most popular skier in the competition, West Germany's Rosi Mittermaier, in the women's head-to-head championship. The Swiss finished just four points behind Italy in the team competition.

Third place winners were Italian veteran Gustavo Thoeni, who defeated his teammate Diego Amplatz in the men's race, and Austria's Monica Kaserer who eliminated Hanni Wenzel of Liechtenstein in the women's ski-off.

Italy, with its strong nucleus of slalom specialists, stormed back strongly during the final two days of the World Series to win the Nations' Cup. Morerod personally accounted for 36 of Switzerland's 80 points to lift her team into second place.

West German was third among the teams with 68 points followed by the United States with 58, Liechtenstein with 34, Sweden with 30, France with 29, Austria with 26 and Canada with seven.

With the pressures of the World Cup season over and the racers engaging in the unaccustomed head-to-head professional format, the final event of the year Thursday took on a festive nature. Not unexpectedly, two of the freer spirits on the circuit made it past three opponents in the men's competition to face each other in the finals.

Stenmark overpowered Bruno Nockler of Italy, Walter Fresch of Switzerland and Amplatz by wide margins in the first three rounds, refusing to let up even when he had substantial leads after the first run. In his first trip down the course against Gros, the Swede posted a winning margin of .398 seconds.

First Hans Hinterseeer of Austria then Greg Jones of the U.S. disqualified against Gros, then the Italians had to make two good runs against Thoeni in the semifinals. Gros skied strongly in the second run of the finals agaisnt Stenmark in an exciting race, but Stenmark, with a spurt at the finish, stayed within .211 seconds of his opponent to claim the victory.

Morerod, who had a fine three days with a fifth place Tuesday and wins Wednesday and Thursday, eliminated Lindy Cochran of the U.S., Fabienne Serrat of France and Wenzel in her first three runs. Mittermaier gained the opposite berth with victories over Marie-Theres Nadig of Switzerland, Cindy Nelson of the U.S. and Kaserer.

Morerod contined to ski well, beating Mittermaier by .566 seconds in the first run. Rosi tried to make up the difference on their second run, but in another excellent duel, the Swiss champ edged her rival by eight-one thousands of a second

Each nation's top eight performers in the giant slalom and slalom events qualified for the parallel races. First place was worth 24 points toward the team championship, second was worth 20, third was worth 16, fourth 12 points, fifth eight points and ninth was worth four points. Italy and Switzerland were tied with 28 points after the first two days of competition, but the Swiss women moved their team temporarily into the lead over Germany and the U.S. after their parallel competition.

Five Americans won a first round parallel match before bowing out in the quarterfinals. Greg Jones was joined in the second round competitions by Cl Adgate in the men's race, and Jan Kurlander and Abbi Fisher, along w Nelson, were the U.S. women who scor one victory.

Adgate, who won his opening duel w Germany's Christian Neureuther, fail to finish his first run against Amplatz a couldn't make up the automatic 1.5 s ond advantage awarded the Italian for t second run.

Nelson and Kurlander both stayed their feet to no avail in the wome competition. Nelson, a first round win over Canadien Kathy Kreiner, lost b runs to Mittermaier by times of .180 a .198 seconds. Kurlander was defeated a wider margin as Kaserer scored adv tages of .319 and .509 seconds. Kurlan had gotten past France's Patricia Emo in the first round.

Fisher defeated West German Christa Zechmeister in the first rou then crossed the finish line just .(seconds behind Hanni Wenzel in the f quarterfinal heat. She couldn't han the course her second time down, h ever, and was eliminated.

This was the final event on the W Cup circuit this year, though only points, not World Cup statistics, w affected by the results. Most of European racers left immediately, so heading for additional spring competit elsewhere.

Despite warm spring weather, cor tions for the three days held up markably well.

Lunger Eyes Prix Title

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — As far as Brett Lunger is concerned, world driving champion Niki Lauda of Austria and James Hunt of Britain aren't the only men who can win the U.S. Grand Prix West Sunday.

Lunger will be the only American-born driver in the third Formula One event of 1976.

"Lauda can be beaten and so can Hunt," he said. "A lot of people are saying they're the big favorites. Well, there's no way this is a two-man race. I'm going into this thing thinking I can win. When you're racing at this partic level, you don't go around with an feriority complex. You go out there win."

Hunt won a noncounting Formula event at Brands Hatch, England, weeks ago and Lunger's Surtees te mate, Alan Jones of Australia, finis second. Lunger was not entered.

"Lauda has a great car in his Ferr the Wilmington, Del., product said, " he's going to be especially quick at L Beach because he has so much torque of the slow turns.

Good Outing for Seaver

By U P I

When Tom Seaver pushed himself into the middle of the heated labor negotiations between players and owners—and possibly cost himself a place on the New York Mets—there was some speculation how all the turmoil would affect his pitching.

The three-time Cy Young Award winner tried to assure one and all that there was no need to worry. When the work was there to be done, the war of words would be left behind.

Seaver got his first chance to prove his point Thursday and he responded admirably by allowing only two hits and no runs in four innings during a 10 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals at St. Petersburg, Fla.

"It was very good," Seaver said. "It wasn't like a first game, it felt more like my third. I felt I could have pitched seven innings. I wasn't trying to reach back, but the fast ball was there even though I wasn't trying to overpower anyone."

Seaver has yet to sign a contract for 1976 and last word from Met management still had the ace right-hander up for trading bids.

Another important pitching spot was turned in during that exhibition game as Pete Falcone, making his Cardinal debut after his trade from San Francisco, struck out seven batters in the first three innings. He allowed three hits and walked one.

The only run of the game was scored in the sixth inning after Lou Brock opened with a single off Bob Apodaca and Bake McBride tripled.

Schedules Available

A limited number of copies of 1976 New York Mets baseball schedules are now available from the Daily Freeman sports department. To obtain your free copy, come to the Freeman sports desk Monday through Friday betwen the hours of 6 a.m. and 1 p.m. or Saturdays from 5 p.m. to midnight.

New York Yankees schedules are on order and should be available shortly.

Los Angeles received two encouraging pitching performances from Don Sutton and Ron Bryant, who combined to shut out Philadelphia 7-0 at Vero Beach, Fla. Sutton, who was 16-13 last year, yielded only two hits and struck out three in six innings and Bryant, a 24-game winner for the Giants four years ago, also was touched for only two hits in three innings.

Davey Lopes led the Dodger attack with a double and a homer, driving in three runs.

Al Fitzmorris worked five shutout innings and Kansas City took advantage of two unearned runs in the third inning to beat the Chicago White Sox 2-0. Fitzmorris allowed only two infield singles.

In other exhibitions Thursday, John Ellis hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning to lift Texas to a 10-8 victory over Baltimore; Ed Herrmann drove in two runs with three singles as California beat Oakland 4-1; a two-run double by rookie outfielder Gene Richards and run-scoring singles by Bob Davis and Dave Winfield highlighted a six-run sixth inning that carried San Diego to an 8-5 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

Pinch-hitter Jose Morales drove home an unearned run with a bases-loaded sacrifice fly to e nable Montreal to squeeze by Houston 5-4; Dwight Evans hit a three-run homer and John Balaz a two-run blast to power Boston to a 7-2 victory over Minnesota; Al Oliver hit a two-run double in the sixth and made a saving catch in the bottom of the inning to help Pittsburgh beat Detroit 4-2.

Dave May scored from second on a double error by third baseman Ed Brinkman in the 10th inning to give a split squad of Atlanta Braves a 2-1 victory over the New York Yankees; Bob Oliver, seeking a job with the White Sox, hit his second homer of the spring to lead Iowa of the American Association to a 5-2 success over the parent club; Alan Ashby homered to ignite a fiverun, ninth-inning rally to lift Cleveland over Milwaukee, 8-7; and Tom Paciorek and Cito Gaston had scoring singles for Atlanta's other split squad in a 7-6 win over Cincinnati.

Ilie, Stockton in Near Fight

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Ilie Nastase and Dick Stockton almost came to blows Thursday when the Romanian became upset over an official's call and then refused to shake Stockton's hand after a comefrom-behind, 3-6, 6-0, 7-6, win.

The victory enabled Nastase, seeded No. 4, to advance to the quarterfinals of the $200,000 American Airlines Tennis Games at Mission Hills Country Club.

Stockton, who lost a third set tie-breaker to lose the match, called Nastase a "disgrace to the game" after the controversial Romanian combined spectacular tennis and his infamous routine of baiting his opponent to win the last two sets.

"Nastase did everything he could to win the match in an unfair way," said Stockton, who won the first set 6-3. "He stalls between points, he calls the officials every name in the book and he calls his opponents names during the match.

"I think he's a disgrace to the game and I'm not ashamed to say it."

Nastase's tempermental tactics began after Stockton was awarded a point in the first set although he appeared to have illegally carried the ball. Nastase turned his anger into superb play in the second set to blank Stockton 6-0.

"I almost walked off the court at the end of the second set," said Stockton. "The only reason I stayed was that I wanted to beat him so bad."

He almost did. The pair went into a tie-breaker that Nastase won 10-8.

After the win, Nastase refused to shake Stockton's outstretched hand, but after some moments, extended his own—but it was too late. Stockton already was heading toward the locker room, where the two later got into a heated argument and had to be restrained by other players.

"I see no reason why he didn't shake hands with me," said Stockton. "It was not my call that made him upset. It's unfortunate that he acts that way because he's such a great player.

"He doesn't have to pull that kind of stuff, but I don't think he can help himself."

Nastase left the locker room with his best friend, Jimmy Connors, who earlier disposed of Bob Lutz, 6-2, 6-4.

"I'm enjoying tennis more than ever before," said Connors. "Lutz hits the ball as firm as anyone in the game, but I felt I played very well today."

In other matches, Rod Laver thrashed Mike Estep, 6-1, 6-2, and Arthur Ashe beat Cliff Richey, 6-3, 6-4, to win his 19th consecutive match of the season.

Also, defending champion John Alexander defeated Raul Ramirez, 6-2, 6-3, and No. 3-seeded Bjorn Borg defeated Stan Smith, 7-6, 7-5. Roscoe Tanner and John Newcombe were also winners.

Wilkins Dreams of Healthy Team

By UPI

The dreams that fill Portland Coach Lenny Wilkins' head these days are not of winning National Basketball Association championships.

Rather they are simply of seeing his team healthy.

His Trail Blazer squad, playing as a healthy unit for its fifth straight game, Thursday night held off the Washington Bullets for a 108-105 National Basketball Association victory and its fourth win during that span.

"Man, how I like to see these guys play when they are healthy," said Wilkins. "I saw it for seven games to begin the season and I have seen it for the last five. If that's any indication, we could really be powerful."

The most prominent addition during those last five games has been 6-11 center Bill Walton, who missed 21 games with a stress fracture. Against the Bullets he had nine points and four rebounds but helped the Blazers shut off Washington's fast break in the final period.

"Bill gives us a mental and physical lift every time he goes into the game," said Wilkins. "I'm bringing him around slowly now, not starting him until he's fully recovered, but when he's healthy what can I do but start him."

Washington, which trailed by as many as 11 points in the third period, reeled off a 13-4 outburst early in the final period and took the lead 94-93 with 5:14 left on Len Robinson's three-point play.

Then with Walton adding three free throws and rookie guard Lionel Hollins four free throws, the Blazers stormed back into the lead with an 8-2 burst.

Lloyd Neal's three-point play with 2:03 left gave Portland a 106-100 lead it never lost. Neal, another of the Blazer casualties this year, plays with a face mask to protect a fractured cheek bone that caused him to miss 10 games earlier in the season.

"With Neal and Walton, we have height, strength and movement," added Wilkins. "And Hollins, why he may just become one of the NBA's finest guards before he's through."

Sidney Wicks led Portland with 25 points and Neal added 17. Hollins and Geoff Petrie each had 16. Phil Chenier had 24, Len Robinson 20 and Dave Bing 17 for Washington.

In other games, Buffalo ripped Cleveland 109-94, Phoenix tripped Atlanta 107-98 and Houston smothered Golden State 123-104. There were no games in the American Basketball Association.

Braves 109, Cavaliers 94

Bob McAdoo, Jim McMillian and Randy Smith combined for 86 points, including 28 in the fourth period, to spark Buffalo. McAdoo led all scorers with 36 points while McMillian added 25 and Smith 25. Dick Snyder led Cleveland with 21. Suns 107, Hawks 98

Paul Westphal scored 27 points to help Phoenix post its eighth straight home victory and pull the Suns to the .500 mark. Curtis Perry had 19 and Gar Heard and Alvan Adams 14 apiece for the Suns. Rockets 123, Warriors 104

Guards Mike Newlin and Calvin Murphy combined for 48 points to snap a three-game Houston losing streak and a four-game Golden State win string. Newlin had 26 points and Murphy 22 while Jamaal Wilkes of the Warriors led all scorers with 29.

Ratelle's Fluke Goal

UPI

"A goal like that happens to a player once in 10 years," said Jean Ratelle, "and this was it."

Ratelle was talking about his fluke goal Thursday night that started the Boston Bruins to a 4-2 win over the Chicago Black Hawks. The victory moved Boston to to within two points of clinching first place in the NHL Adams Division.

Ratelle's goal tied the game at 1-1 at 5:22 of the second period and Hank Nowak scored the tie-breaker at 8:07 on an equally peculiar play.

Chicago had taken a 1-0 lead at 2:16 of the period on a goal by Pit Martin. But while the Bruins were on a power play, Ratelle, from an impossible angle to the side of the Chicago net, tried to pass the puck into a swarm of players crowding near the crease. Instead, the puck bounced off a skate and behind suprised goalie Gilles Villemure.

Less than three minutes later, Nowak batted a pass in front in an effort to keep the puck moving. It hit J.P. Bordeleau and bounded into the net to put Boston ahead for good.

"All I was trying to do was get the puck in front of the net," said Ratelle. "I didn't even see it deflect. You know, a goal like that happens to a player once in 10 years and this was it. It's the first time it's ever happened to me. It was lucky and so was Hank's. But it was two goals and two points. Who cares how we get 'em."

The actual-game winner, at 19:10 of the second stanza, was more conventional. Bobby Schmautz fed Wayne Cashman at the goal mouth and he lifted the puck into the net and Boston led 3-1.

Boston's Terry O'Reilly and Chicago's Dennis Hull scored goals in the third period.

"We controlled the game from the start and that's what I like," said Coach Don Cherry. "We backchecked well and, to my mind, the game was never in doubt. That's the kind of game I like."

In other NHL games, Philadelphia defeated the New York Rangers 4-1 and St. Louis trounced Pittsburgh 5-2. In the World Hockey Association, Indianapolis topped Houston 4-3, Quebec downed Edmonton 7-5 and San-Diego routed Cincinnati 9-1. Blues 5, Penguins 2

Chuck Lefley scored two goals to offset a record first period tally by Pittsburgh's Jean Pronovost and give St. Louis the victory. Pronovost's goal, his 51st, came just six seconds into the game. Lefley's goals gave him a team record tying 41. Flyers 4, Rangers 1

Gary Inness kicked out 36 of 37 New York shots in his Philadelphia debut to give the Flyers their NHL record 34th home ice victory. Tom Bladon, Bill Barber, Andre Dupont and Don Saleski scored the Flyer goals. WHA

Rene Leclerc's second goal of the game in overtime pushed Indianapolis past Houston ... Marc Tardif scored his 65th and 66th goals to guide Quebec past Edmonton ... and Norm Ferguson also scored twice to pace San Diego in its clobbering of Cincinnati.

Evonne Likes to Be Nervous

BOSTON (UPI) — "Just relax when you hit the ball. Don't be so nervous." That may be a tennis teacher's standard advice for a struggling beginner.

But not for Evonne Goolagong.

"I like to get nervous and tense for a match. It helps my game," said Goolagong, the second-ranked player in the $75,000 Virginia Slims of Boston tennis tournament, Thursday after beating Kerry Melville Reid, 6-3, 6-2. In fact, Goolagong said her biggest problem is feeling too loose when she walks out on the court.

"Sometimes, I feel like I have to kick myself to get started, especially when I'm down. I've lost first sets and then gotten mad and won the last two."

Goolagong hardly relaxed for a moment Thursday night as she trounced fellow Australian Reid in straight sets to advance to Saturday's semifinal against Rosie Casals.

Casals, who downed Lesley Hunt of Australia, 6-4, 6-4, has met Goolagong twice this year and lost both times.

"Both matches were close. If I can keep being consistent and hit good shots, I can beat her," said Casals.

"Her weak spot is how she feels," said Casals echoing Goolagong's opinion of herself. "If she's loose it means she's not nervous. When she gets nervous she gets tighter and plays better. It helps to grab an early lead off her."

Casals was unable to build an early edge over Hunt in their quarterfinal, but won by playing an aggressive net game. Hunt was serving at 4-4 but broke herself by making a pair of unforced errors to hand Casals the lead.

The Sausalito, Cal., resident finished Hunt in the 10th game by serving at love.

"I thought both of us played well," said Casals. "It was a close match, just a matter of points. The difference was she missed more easy shots than I did. It's a matter of who serves and volleys better. Lesley got hesitant here and there and I was able to pass her."

Delta, Immaculata Win

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Top seeded Delta State (Miss.) met Wayland Baptist (Tex.) and second seeded Immaculata (Pa.) played William Penn (Iowa) today in the semifinals of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women national basketball tournament.

Delta State trounced Baylor 97-55, Immaculata trimmed Montclair State (N.J.) 103-82, William Penn edged Cal State (Fullerton) 64-61 and Wayland Baptist defeated Mississippi College 75-59 in the quarterfinals Thursday.

Cornelia Ward was instrumental in Delta's victory, hitting 18-of-25 shots en route to a tournament high 38 points. Teammate Lusia Harris, bothered by fouls, settled for 16 points while hitting 7-of-8 shots.

Sue Martin and Sandy Miller combined for 42 points and Immaculata shot 62 per cent to post its easy victory over Montclair State. Martin sank 12 field goals and two foul shots for 26 points and Miller added 16 for the Mighty Macs. Carol Blazejowski and Pat Colasurdo scored 30 points each to pace Montclair.

Networks Battle For Olympic TV

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI) — An inter-network battle appears to be shaping up, with NBC Television now saying it will pay more than ABC-TV for the broadcast rights to the 1980 Winter Olympics.

Officials at this northern New York village, host of the upcoming games, already have a letter of intent with ABC setting the figure at $10 million, but no contract has been signed. Thursday, NBC-TV President Robert T. Howard said in a telegram his network was ready to offer a higher bid, but he did not disclose how much.

In the telegram to John M. Wilkins, chairman of the Lake Placid Winter Olympic Organizing Committee's TV and Marketing Committee, Howard said, "NBC is prepared to make a higher bid than the ABC bid, which has been reported in press accounts. NBC is seeking the opportunity to make this bid and have it considered fairly on the merits. Please advise promptly where and when we can meet to discuss this further. Respectfully, Robert T. Howard."

A copy of the telegram was sent to International Olympic Committee President Lord Michael Killanin.

Howard also sent a separate telegram to Killanin:

"Since you have advised us you were making inquiries into a reported agreement between the Lake Placid committee and ABC for the sale of television rights for the 1980 Winter Games, we have heard nothing further from the IOC or the Lake Placid Committee. We have sent the following telegram to the Lake Placid Committee (the text of the above telegram).

"In accordance with the assurances you have made that broadcasters would have the opportunity fairly to compete for the television rights to the 1980 games, we urge you to act promptly to afford opportunity to those interested in bidding for those rights and to have those bids fairly considered on the merits."

Gene Walsh, NBC's vice president for public affairs, said the network is prepared to include in its offer technical requirements for a world signal.

Greg Kohls

Greg Kohls With Trotters

STONE RIDGE — Greg Kohls, a former basketball star at Roosevelt High School in Dutchess County, will be in the lineup for the New Jersey Reds when they take on the Harlem Globetrotters Tuesday, March 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the Senate Gym at Ulster County Community College.

Kohls, a Hyde Park resident, played on the Roosevelt High basketball team from 1965 to 1968 and holds the Section One record for scoring with 51 points in one game. In his final season at Roosevelt, he scored 630 points and established a record by netting 126 points in three games, also a Section One record.

After graduating from Roosevelt, Kohls went to Syracuse University where he also starred in basketball. At Syracuse, he was named to the All-East team and the Helms Foundation All-American team.

Kohls broke Dave Bing's Syracuse scoring record, averaging 26.7 points a game, and finished his collegiate career as the seventh leading scorer in the nation.

Kohls was drafted by the St. Louis Hawks and Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association. He also played pro ball in Europe before joining the Jersey Reds.

The 6-2 Roosevelt alumnus isn't playing for the Reds for only his scoring ability. He is also a fine ball handler and a guard who knows how to move, a team leader who will drive the offense.

Tickets for the game can be purchased from the Senate Shop on the UCCC campus; Valley Gardens in Accord, Kaye Sports, Kingston, Carvel Ice Cream Store and Mammoth Mart in Mammoth Mall; Smith's Hardware Store in Saugerties, Abrams Music Store in Kingston and Randall Grocery store on Lucas Avenue extension.

Thesis Bar Completes Perfect NPBL Season

NEW PALTZ—Thesis Bar, undefeated for the season, dethroned defending champions, Barnaby's, 92-84, in the finals of the 1975-76 New Paltz Men's Basketball League playoffs.

Jim Wherry (25) and Mitch Glucksman (22) powered a second half rally by Thesis that wiped out a 45-38 Barnaby halftime margin and outscored the losers, 54-38 after the intermission.

Charlie Silverberg added 12 points and Ed Rogers 15 to the winning total. George Druttman led Barnaby's with 27 points, nine from the free throw line. Don Crispell added 22 and Bill Pitcher contributed 16.

Thesis sailed through the season with a perfect record of 16-0.

The league completed a second straight season of high calibre basketball, with most of the players recruited from area high schools and several former New Paltz State College stars.

Expect Report On Horse Fire

EAST PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The state fire marshal's office says it hopes to have a report within the next few days on Monday's deadly fire at Narragansett Park horse race track

At last count, 26 horses died in the blaze that swept through two wooden stables.

State and East Providence fire officials are checking reports of arson but as yet have found no evidence the fire was set, according to Chief Deputy State Fire Marshal Earl Shannon.

The East Providence fire department received a rash of calls claiming the fire was set but most were from "cranks and kooks," according to Capt. Robert Sauer.

Fire officials found no substances that might have been used to ignite the fire, but a match could have set off the blaze, Sauer said.

A small portable heater was found in the tack room of the barn where the fire started, he added.

Officials planned to have a list of dead horses and an estimate of their value today.

Betting Gains In Rhode Island

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — A bill to legalize limited betting in Rhode Island on three professional sports has picked up support from some of the legislature's top Democratic leaders.

The measure, introduced Thursday, would allow the state Lottery Commission to sell multiple-game wagering cards on professional football, basketball and hockey.

House Speaker John J. Skiffington said he expects pro sports betting to be legalized eventually in Rhode Island.

"If it don't come this year, it's gonna come next year," he said. "Other states like Massachusetts and Connecticut are moving in the same direction, so I don't think we should be left at the post"

Skiffington said it would "bring additional revenue into the state of Rhode Island which is badly needed at this time."

Rep. William G Grande, the bill's principal sponsor, said he envisions betting cards requiring picks on at least three of nine listed games, with a greater payoff for successful bettors who pick more games.

JUCO Stars In Classic

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Seven members of the National Junior College Athletic Association All-Tournament team, including 6-8 All-America Kenny Davis of Southern Idaho who was most valuable player, will take part tonight in the 2nd Pabst Blue Ribbon Classic all-star game at Convention Center Arena.

Boyd Grant of national champion Southern Idaho is coaching the West All-Stars for the second straight year, while Howie Landa of runner-up Mercer County Junior College of Trenton, N.J., is guiding the East team.

Landa's squad is headed by Mercer County's Mike Davis, a 6-10 center regarded as one of the country's top prospects in the major college ranks. Sixteen of the 20 participants in the contest are considered likely to go on to four-year college stardom.

Other East All-Stars are Jarvis Reynolds, 6-8 center from DeKalb, Ga.; Jerry Luckett, 6-7 forward from Burlington, Iowa; Mark Smyth, 6-8 forward from Chattahoochie, Ala.; Doug Jemison, 6-7 forward from Lakeland, Ill.; Roy Taylor, 6-5 forward from Vincennes, Ind.; John Douglas, 6-3 guard from Calhoun, Ala.; Ron Bell, 6-1 guard from Auburn, N.Y.; Richard Glaspar, 6-0 guard from Edison, Fla., and Terry Boone, 6-2 guard from Shelby State, Tenn.

The rest of the West All-Stars are Mike Schultz, 6-8 center from San Jacinto, Tex.; John Derrick, 6-7 forward from McLennan County, Tex.; Charles McMillian, 6-3 guard from Tyler, Tex.; Darrell Holliman, 6-3 guard from Amarillo, Tex.; John Hunter, 6-8 center from Independence, Kan.; Kenny Davis, 6-7 forward from Southern Idaho; Stanley Mayhew, 6-8 forward from Trinidad, Colo.; Mike Lunday, 6-6 forward from Casper, Wyo.; Mark Trammell, 6-0 guard from Murray, Okla., and Andre Wakefield, a 6-2 guard from Southern Idaho.

The game is sponsored by Pabst and Basketball Talent Services, Inc., with the proceeds to go for the Nemo Herrera Scholarship Fund, named in honor of a former coach at San Antonio Lanier High School.

All the all-stars were selected from teams participating in the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament last week in Hutchinson, Kan.

County Reports Heavy Tourist, Fishing Interests

KINGSTON—More than 1,000 responses to free publicity and advertising in metropolitan areas promoting the fishing season and historic sites in the travel and vacation sections have already been received by the Ulster County Resort Information Office of the County Legislature.

Responses in the hundreds are coming in the mails daily from people seeking Ulster County fishing and historic sites information which indicates that the Mid-Hudson Valley and Ulster County in particular can expect a tremendous Bicentennial year in tourism, according to Albert Cawein, County Public Relations Director.

The names are available in packets of 100 to any resort or related tourism business in Ulster County wishing to send out their literature to these prospects. The inquiry lists include people in the New York Metropolitan area, Connecticut, New Jersey, Long Island, the lower Hudson Valley and Westchester and other surrounding states. Those requesting lists should send a 13-cent stamp for each 100 requested to cover cost of postage.

Interested resort owners or those in tourism related businesses, may contact Cawein, at the County Office Building, Kingston, or they may call in person and pick up as many lists as they can handle. There is no charge.

Last year was a good year for tourism business and it has been estimated that more than $20 million was poured into the local economy by hunters, fishermen, skiiers and other vacationers.

Using this as a base figure, there is no reason why the tourism gross for 1976, the Bicentennial Year, should not reach $50 million. The numbers of inquiries we are receiving now give every indication that this could happen, Cawein said. This figure, including food and lodging also includes entertainment, county attractions, liquor, soft drinks, gasoline and oil, auto services, souvenirs, clothing and tolls among others.

'Face in the Crowd

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bill Putch is a man with many irons in the show business fire but who seldom collects a crowd in public.

His face and unusual surname are virtually unknown, but he is a man well worth knowing nonetheless.

Putch is producer, director, actor, restaurateur, writer and theater operator.

He is comparatively new to the Hollywood scene, having moved here only four years ago. There is nothing strange in that except almost all of Putch's work is in Pennsylvania.

"I've operated the Totem Pole Playhouse in Fayetteville (Pa.) for 28 years," he said modestly. "During that time I've produced 228 plays. Directed most of them myself.

"We've introduced such stars as Sandy Dennis, Barbara Feldon, Keir Dullea and Andy Prine. I love the theater, but we operate only from June to September."

Putch is a bald man with a wide smile and girth to match. He and his wife, Jean, have been married almost 20 years and he might be considered the perfect husband

He and Jean have appeared in scores of his Totem Pole productions.

Asked why a man with so many interests in Pennsylvania would live in California, Putch said, "Well, my wife likes it out here and she does quite a bit of work in Hollywood."

It was for Jean's sake that he moved to Hollywood, enhancing her acting career.

Jean Putch is not a world renown name either. But she is charming, a fine dramatic actress and the most beloved comedienne in the united States today.

If the name Jean Putch doesn't ring a bell, you might know her by her maiden name, Jean Stapleton, none other than the lonv suffering dingbat of "All In The Family." n

Sweet as she is off screen, it is no easy thing for a man to be married to a celebrity of Miss Stapleton's magnitude. Yet Putch has managed very well indeed.

"It's a lot of work just keeping up with her," Putch said. "Sometimes I think I ought to own at least two tuxedos to attend all the functions and award shows she attends Jean doesn't go out to be seen She thinks it's a duty to support show business affairs.

"She wears contact lenses and I spend a lot of time at some banquets trying to find them.

"She is, of course, better known than I am, so I keep getting re-introduced to people who remember her but don't remember me.

UCCC Brochure Mailed

STONE RIDGE — Ulster County Community College has mailed out a half tabloid-sized Late Spring-Summer Session bulletin to residents of Ulster County and the surrounding area.

The bulletins carry information about a Horticultural Heyday coming up April 10 and credit-free courses being offered this spring.

There also is information in the brochure about credit and credit-free courses being offered by UCCC this summer, as well as courses available for young people between 8 and 17.

There also is information in the publication about an elaborate Renaissance Faire which will be held on the Stone Ridge campus on May 1 and 2. The first such faire held last May drew nearly 5,000 persons.

Persons who haven't received the bulletin should call the college's Community Relations Office.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, MARCH 27

Your birthday today: Success this year relates to optimistic approaches, as you find yourself liberated from old limitations. Don't try to return to previous comfortable situations. Anything else within reason promises well. Relationships run in rapid repetitive cycles; be selective about getting involved. Today's natives have effective peculiarities in their manner of speech, and often rely too much on talk.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Relax. A long cycle is ending and you are on the faint beginnings of the upsweep. A new way of viewing old problems comes through meditation.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Attend to business first; be firm about details. Afterwards, socialize with friends. Welcome new people into your set. Romantic intrigue is possible.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Communications on philosophic, religious and intellectual topics are favored. Today's fanciful thought may become a reality. Enjoy a party tonight.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Professional advice brings fresh perspective. Projects advance rapidly, often with multiple results. People honestly believe the erroneous things they tell you.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Hold on to realistic approaches and avoid impulsive promises. You have much news to catch up on. Be selective in choosing leisure-hour company.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: A serious mood is useful. Reevaluate your basic circumstances modestly, then build up. Reconcile discrepancies. Make amends where indicated.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Work hardest at whatever will benefit you the most financially. Complete the bothersome task. Old habits give way to new as your inner being reorients itself.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Step right up and ask for what's coming to you. Pleasure goes along with successful business. If you finish in time, pleasure is for its own sake.

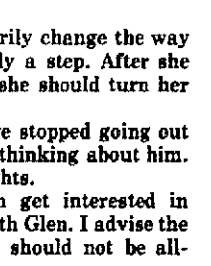

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Attention to other people's activities tips you off as to what is worth knowing and what to pass up. Get busy on obvious tasks to improve your situation.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Gamble a bit if you must, but not more than you can afford to lose. Stop early, while you're ahead. Share social pastimes of educational value.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: The story is either superlative or disappointing. Ask questions. Get a consensus and then make up your mind.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

KISSING: (Q.) I would really like to know if 14 is old enough to be kissing a boy. I read your column all the time and I agree with most all your views and opinions, so I want to ask you what you think.—Not Sure in Pennsylvania

(A.) Some girls are ready to kiss some boys at 14. Some girls are not ready to kiss boys until they are 16, some not until 18, some not until even later than that.

I believe that if you were ready you would not have written.

Do not kiss a boy because one of your 14-year-old friends is kissing a boy or boys and you think you should be doing what she is doing.

Kiss a boy only when it seems natural and rewarding, to you and to him. For you, this time may be very close, or it may not be for years.

If I could be more precise I would. But I can't. That is the way kissing is. Very personal.

BREAKING UP: (Q.) Just because you break up with a boy doesn't mean you don't like him anymore, does it? I broke up with Glen because I did not want to get too serious with him, but my feelings toward him have not changed.

I am in love with him, I thnk he just thinks of me as a friend. I would like to go out with him again and show him that I love him and am really sorry I broke up with him.

Our age, in case you might need to know, is 13. He is the only boy I want to go out with. Without him I'm lost. I truly love him.

Could you please tell me how to get him back?—In Pain in Pennsylvania

(A) Breaking up does not necessarily change the way a girl feels toward a boy. It is only a step. After she breaks up for the reason you did, she should turn her thoughts in other directions.

You have not done that. You have stopped going out wit Glen, but you have not stopped thinking about him. He is still the center of your thoughts.

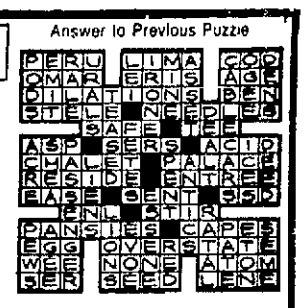

You have two choices. You can get interested in another boy, or you can try again with Glen. I advise the first course. At your age, one boy should not be all-important to you.

If you are determined, however, to try again, tell Glen you are sorry you did what you did. He may ask you to go out with him again. If he doesn't don't chase him.

Opening lead — Q ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

West's queen of spades is allowed to hold the first trick. He continues the suit and dummy is in with the king.

A low diamond is led and it is up to you to play from the East hand. What do you play?

If you have been reading this week's articles, you should have no problem You play your ace of diamonds. Second hand high!

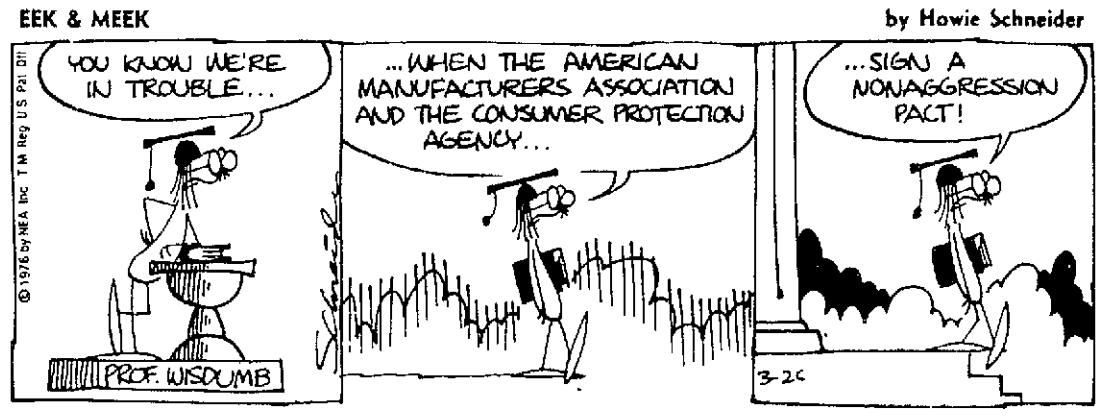

This play is not at all hard to make in a bridge column. It is much tougher at the table, yet any expert worth his salt would make it

He can see that the only way to beat three notrump will be for his partner to score some spade tricks He can also see that West can't hold much in high cards But he can be looking at the king or queen of diamonds and it is up to East to let him keep that high diamond in his hand until the ace of spades is knocked out

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, MARCH 27

Your birthday today: Success this year relates to optimistic approaches, as you find yourself liberated from old limitations. Don't try to return to previous comfortable situations. Anything else within reason promises well. Relationships run in rapid repetitive cycles; be selective about getting involved. Today's natives have effective peculiarities in their manner of speech, and often rely too much on talk.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Relax. A long cycle is ending and you are on the faint beginnings of the upsweep. A new way of viewing old problems comes through meditation.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Attend to business first; be firm about details. Afterwards, socialize with friends. Welcome new people into your set. Romantic intrigue is possible.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Communications on philosophic, religious and intellectual topics are favored. Today's fanciful thought may become a reality. Enjoy a party tonight.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Professional advice brings fresh perspective. Projects advance rapidly, often with multiple results. People honestly believe the erroneous things they tell you.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Hold on to realistic approaches and avoid impulsive promises. You have much news to catch up on. Be selective in choosing leisure-hour company.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: A serious mood is useful. Reevaluate your basic circumstances modestly, then build up. Reconcile discrepancies. Make amends where indicated.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Work hardest at whatever will benefit you the most financially. Complete the bothersome task. Old habits give way to new as your inner being reorients itself.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Step right up and ask for what's coming to you. Pleasure goes along with successful business. If you finish in time, pleasure is for its own sake.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Attention to other people's activities tips you off as to what is worth knowing and what to pass up. Get busy on obvious tasks to improve your situation.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Gamble a bit if you must, but not more than you can afford to lose. Stop early, while you're ahead. Share social pastimes of educational value.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: The story is either superlative or disappointing. Ask questions. Get a consensus and then make up your mind.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

KISSING: (Q.) I would really like to know if 14 is old enough to be kissing a boy. I read your column all the time and I agree with most all your views and opinions, so I want to ask you what you think.—Not Sure in Pennsylvania

(A.) Some girls are ready to kiss some boys at 14. Some girls are not ready to kiss boys until they are 16, some not until 18, some not until even later than that.

I believe that if you were ready you would not have written.

Do not kiss a boy because one of your 14-year-old friends is kissing a boy or boys and you think you should be doing what she is doing.

Kiss a boy only when it seems natural and rewarding, to you and to him. For you, this time may be very close, or it may not be for years.

If I could be more precise I would. But I can't. That is the way kissing is. Very personal.

BREAKING UP: (Q.) Just because you break up with a boy doesn't mean you don't like him anymore, does it? I broke up with Glen because I did not want to get too serious with him, but my feelings toward him have not changed.

I am in love with him, I thnk he just thinks of me as a friend. I would like to go out with him again and show him that I love him and am really sorry I broke up with him.

Our age, in case you might need to know, is 13. He is the only boy I want to go out with. Without him I'm lost. I truly love him.

Could you please tell me how to get him back?—In Pain in Pennsylvania

(A) Breaking up does not necessarily change the way a girl feels toward a boy. It is only a step. After she breaks up for the reason you did, she should turn her thoughts in other directions.

You have not done that. You have stopped going out wit Glen, but you have not stopped thinking about him. He is still the center of your thoughts.

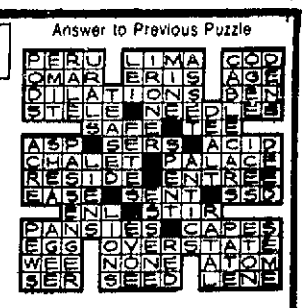

You have two choices. You can get interested in another boy, or you can try again with Glen. I advise the first course. At your age, one boy should not be all-important to you.

If you are determined, however, to try again, tell Glen you are sorry you did what you did. He may ask you to go out with him again. If he doesn't don't chase him.

West's queen of spades is allowed to hold the first trick. He continues the suit and dummy is in with the king

A low diamond is led and it is up to you to play from the East hand. What do you play?

If you have been reading this week's articles, you should have no problem. You play your ace of diamonds Second hand high!

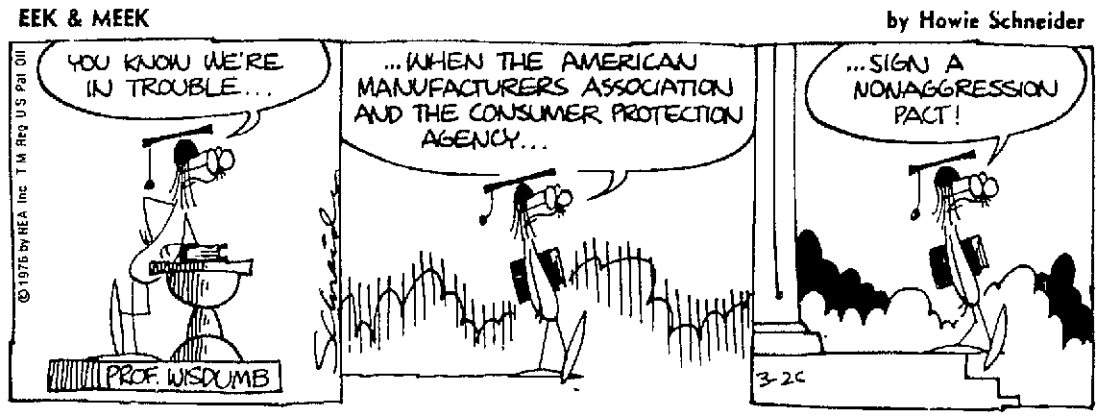

This play is not at all hard to make in a bridge column. It is much tougher at the table, yet any expert worth his salt would make it

He can see that the only way to beat three notrump will be for his partner to score some spade tricks He can also see that West can't hold much in high cards But he can be looking at the king or queen of diamonds and it is up to East to let him keep that high diamond in his hand until the ace of spades is knocked out

Ancient Traver Hollow Bridge . . . the Rx Will Be Costly

WEST SHOLAN—The New York City Environmental Protection Administration, in a letter to Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey D-101st, states that it has spent more than $900,000 on the safety inspection and repair of the Traver Hollow Bridge since last June.

Robert A. Low, director of the city's EPA, in a memorandum dated March 22, states that the city originally planned to effect repairs on all six bridges around the Ashokan Reservoir, maintaining traffic by keeping at least one lane of every bridge open. The city let an inspection contract with the firm of Ammann and Whitney at an estimated cost of $160,000 of which $33,500 was earmarked for the Traver Hollow Bridge.

"On June 5, during initial phases of the repair work on the Traver Hollow Bridge columns," Low wrote, "deterioration far greater than had been aniticipated was discovered. It was determined by Ammann and Whitney that a potentially dangerous situation existed and that the bridge should be closed to all traffic pending further investigation."

Ammann and Whitney recommended the hiring of another firm to run further tests on the Traver Hollow Brodge. On Sept. 9 the firm of Muenow and Associates was authorized to perform tests. That firm completed its report and forwarded it to Ammann and Whitney in early November, according to Low.

A report of Nov. 17 indicated the roadway on the Traver Hollow Bridge "had lost virtually all of its strength and should be replaced." The report further noted serious deterioration in the upper columns of the bridge. Heavy use of salt has been blamed for the deterioration of the steel reinforced concrete bridge. It was built some 70 years ago.

On Dec. 19, 1975, work commenced on Phase II of the testing project, the use of ultrasonic beams in an effort to determine interior strength of the support beams on the bridge. That testing was completed Jan. 28, 1976 and a final report was sent to the city EPA on March 5, 1976.

"As you can see from the above chronology," Low wrote Hinchey on March 11, "the city of New York is proceeding as fast as humanly possible to determine the best course of action to take to restore the Traver Hollow Bridge to service, consistent with public safety. This can be verified by reading the opinion of Justice George L. Cobb concerning an Article 78 proceeding brought by various residents affectrd by the closing of the bridge, dismissing their petition on the grounds that the city was ineffect proceeding as fast as can be expected."

Low said work on the other five bridges around the Ashokan is proceeding despite evidence of advanced deterioration that he says has cost the city an additional $500,000" and further changes might well be necessary."

"The engineering study, design, and construction supervision by Ammann and Whitney, plus the actual repair work on the six bridges have therefore already cost the city more than $3 million and the final solution for the Traver Hollow Bridge will increase that total substantially," Low wrote. The "final solution" he refers to is a $1.3 million estimate for a new Traver Hollow Bridge.

Marlow Move Is Attacked

BOICEVILLE—"We may have to pay Superintendent Dr. Frank Marlow's salary, but we don't want him working," Onteora School Board member Howard Lewis said today taking strong issue with Marlow's contention that he has been returned to full duty without restrictions.

Lewis labeled the statement, "untrue", explaining that there is nothing in Education Commissioner Ewald Nyquist's stay order which refers to restrictions.

Marlow, who was ousted in Februarv by the board of education, said Wednesday that Commissioner Nyquist ruled he should be returned to his post pending full review of hearing transcripts.

Lewis contends that Marlow cannot be considered for reinstatement until after Nyquist reviews the case. "No final judgement has been made." Lewis said, standing by the board's contention that Marlow was dismissed because he "demonstrated he is unfit to occupy office."

The board has therefore appealed to Nyquist to vacate the stay order and "restore to the office of acting superintendent a competent administrator."

Lewis feels the commissioner's order merely returns Marlow to his $40,000-a-year post, but does not provide that he assume his full duties. Marlow has been on a paid leave from duty since Oct. 21 by board order. He attempted to enter his office March 11 but was met at the door by School Board Vice President John Mower, who claimed the commissioner's ruling didn't entitle Marlow to return to work. Marlow claims that several hours later State Education Department attorneys ruled that he should be allowed to resume his duties and he returned to work the following day without incident.

Lewis said that because there was ample evidence at the hearings that Marlow allegedly failed to give honest or complete reports to the board. the board members have required him to keep a file of copies of every memo, directive or correspondance that passes through his office. Also, "for the protection of the taxpayers, the board has taken business administration out of Marlow's hands," Lewis explained. He said the business administrator is now reporting directly to the board.

Udall Vote Is Possible

KINGSTON — Area Democrats still can vote for Rep. Morris Udall in the April 6 primary, despite the fact that the original slate pledged to Udall is off the ballot.

Janet C. Yallum, who headed the Udall slate in the 25th Congressional District, noted that recent stories in area media said that the Udall slate had been eliminated, which she acknowledged. "The Udall slate was taken off the ballot for technical reasons — it was withdrawn because the number of valid signatures on our nominating petitions totalled less than the required 1,250."

"However, after the withdrawal of Sen. Birch Bayh from active campaigning, a coalition slate was formed. The former Bayh slate in the 25th C.D, with the addition of one former Udall delegate candidate, is pleged to Morris Udall."

Mrs. Yallum urged that those Democrats who wish to support the man she termed "the leading progressive in the race" support the slate which includes Arthur Kass, Sandra Goldberg, Michael Murphy, Joseph Blum, Herbert Stoller and Nancy Gold. The ballot will identify the line as a Udall slate.

The 25th C.D. includes the City of Kingston and the Towns of Ulster, Saugerties, Esopus and Lloyd in Ulster County, as well as Dutchess and Putnam Counties and the northern part of Westchester. A Udall slate is also on the ballot in the 26th and 27th C.D.s, which include the rest of Ulster County. Anyone who has specific questions about Udall's stand on any issues should contact Mrs. Yallum

INTRODUCING AN OIL THAT SAVES YOU GAS.

Mobil 1 synthesized engine lubricant is an entirely new kind of motor oil.

It's man-made.

We created new molecules to build an engine lubricant that's tougher than ordinary motor oil.

Even though Mobil 1 looks like motor oil and smells like motor oil, it's really a revolutionary lubricant that outperforms ordinary motor oil.

Mobil 1 saves gas.

The first big advantage of Mobil 1 is that it saves gas. Mobil 1 lubricates the moving parts of your engine better than ordinary oil. Since it reduces friction and drag in the engine, you can get more miles out of every tankful of gas. In fact, Mobil 1 will give the average car up to 10 extra miles per tankful.

Mobil 1 saves oil.

But Mobil 1 does a lot more than just save gas. It also saves oil (if your engine's in good mechanical condition, of course). Mobil 1 doesn't evaporate as fast as ordinary motor oil, even at high engine temperatures. As a result, you use less oil. In both city and highway fleet tests, Mobil 1 cut oil consumption up to 25%.

Mobil 1 saves your engine.

Mobil 1 protects your engine better than ordinary motor oil. To prove it, we put Mobil 1 in a fleet of highway patrol cars for 12,000 miles. Then we tested the "used" Mobil 1 against ordinary motor oil. Mobil 1 still protected the engine like the brand-new ordinary oil.

And Mobil 1 not only helps your car's engine last longer. It helps it run cleaner. We've added a detergent to Mobil 1 that outperforms detergents found in ordinary oil. Our tests showed that with Mobil 1 you'll have less engine sludge.

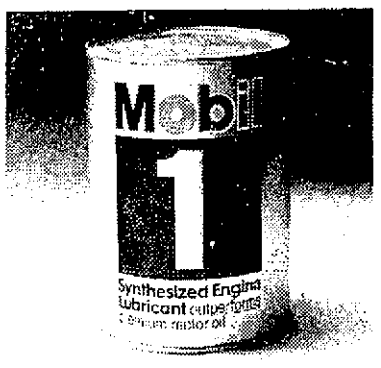

Mobil 1 improves high temperature performance.

Ordinary motor oil thins out at very high temperatures. Mobil 1, however, will continue to spread a protective film over the moving parts of your engine even if the temperature on the outside is 110 degrees F. And the temperature inside the engine is 580 degrees F.

Mobil 1 improves cold weather starts.

In extremely cold temperatures, ordinary motor oil becomes so thick your engine can't turn over. But Mobil 1, even at 35 degrees below zero, will continue to flow and help you start your engine more easily.

So no matter what kind of car you drive, or how hard you drive it, or what kind of weather you drive it in, Mobil 1 is the best motor oil you can buy.

The oil that saves you gas.
